Secretary of the Treasury Shaw Speaks to Business Men at a Banquet of the National Business League in Chicago—Her Subject Was "Commerce and Industry of the West"—Judge Gaynor of New Mexico Spoke Upon Reclamation of the Arid Lands.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Secretary of the Treasury Shaw was the principal speaker at the banquet of the National Business League last night in the Auditorium. His subject was "Commerce and Industry of the West," and he expressed some startling and interesting ideas in regard to the future of the West. He said in part:

[illegible] more attractive. I have one of the best public speakers here to-day to show for opportunity to be heard. The Secretary of the Treasury.

The first set speech was the finest address ever by John M. Hay, of Illinois, who wrote their "The Leader." He described at length the objects which the larger people in attacking that the purpose of the Business League, throughout the country included as to legislation affecting farm and to commercial development. He said in conclusion that the business men throughout the country intended
