Spaniards Notified.

Havana, Oct. 19.—The American commissioners have sent a note to the Spanish commissioners stating that our troops will begin entering Havana in November.

Spaniards Playing for Delay.

Paris, Oct. 19.—The Spanish commissioners are still playing for delay, trying to postpone decisions until after the election in the hope that McKinley will change his base when the political element is removed from conference matters.

Wildman and the Filipinos.

Hong Kong, Oct. 19.—As a result of Consul General Wildman's refusal to receive the Filipino annexation committee or proceed to Manila to advise with Aguinaldo, Maximo Cortez and his secretary will leave for Washington on the Coptic to urge President McKinley to retain the islands, and will tender the support of all the wealthy citizens. Wildman declines to give the reason for his attitude. Cortez expressed deep sorrow, but believes that Wildman is acting under instructions from Washington. All of Cortez's palaces in Manila are occupied, rent free, by American officers at his request.

Duncan May Go By Default.

Fairfax Court House, Va, Oct. 20.—Captain Louis O. Duncan, assistant surgeon, Twenty-first Kansas, will probably not be tried on the charge of desecrating the grave of Major Duke, the Confederate officer. The case has been postponed until the November term of court on account of the absence of witnesses material to the prosecution. Most of the witnesses live in the west and it is thought doubtful that they can be secured for the trial.

Captain Duncan was tried by court-martial on this charge and was convicted of not stopping the desecration by private soldiers. He was given a light sentence that was disapproved by the general in command, who reduced it to a nominal punishment.

Church History.

The Episcopal church existed in this country long before she had a governing body of her own. The church in the colonies long and in vain importuned the mother church of England to consecrate bishops of America, but those requests were denied for political and other reasons. When the independence of the colonies was acknowledge in 1783 the clergy met in various parts of the United States to arrange for better organization. Bishops were necessary for the development and extension of the church. In May, 1784, a meeting of clergy and laymen was held in New Brunswick, N. J, and a large gathering in October in New York. Delegates from eight States were present and arranged for a general convention, which met in Philadelphia in September, 1785. Meanwhile Dr. Samuel Seabury had been elected bishop by the diocese of Connecticut, had gone to England for consecration, and after waiting two years in the vain hope that political feeling would die out, and that the act of Parliament, necessarily preliminary to his consecration, might be passed, had gone to Scotland and had been consecrated by the nonjuring bishops of Aberdeen, Moray and Ross, and the bishop coadjutor of Aberdeen. On February 4, 1787, Dr. White, from Pennsylvania, and Dr. Provost, for New York, were consecrated at Lambeth chapel, London, by the archbishops of Canterbury and York, and the bishops of Peterborough and of Bath and Wells. In 1790, Dr. Madison was consecrated, in England, bishop for Virginia. The three bishops of the English succession, Provost, Madison and White, agreed to unite with Bishop Seabury in the consecration of a bishop in America, and in September, 1792, Dr. Thomas John Claggett was made bishop for Maryland. In Bishop Claggett were united, therefore, two pure lines of the apostolic succession. The episcopate was thus happily obtained for America, and this branch was complete with the three orders of the ministry—bishops, priests and deacons.—Washington Evening Post.

Yellow Fever Abating.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Information received at the marine hospital bureau is that there was a single new case of yellow fever at Franklin, La., yesterday. The appearance of frost at that place as well as at many other towns in the South, taken in connection with the fact that a number of cases and deaths have fallen to the minimum, leads officials to believe that the epidemic is at an end. The train inspection service is being gradually abated and the expectation is that the law in force will be declared off in a few days.

GOV. CULBERSON'S REPLY.

Austin, Oct. 19. — Yesterday Governor Culberson sent the following letter to Dr Souchon in reply to the one sent him, and which was published in the morning papers from New Orleans. Webster defines a malignant disease as one "tending to produce death; threatening a fatal issue." Seventy-two people have already died with this disease, excluding New Orleans, and hundreds of people have fled from the two states. If yellow fever such as prevails there were to be introduced into Texas it is not improbable the death rate here would equal that there. Besides, there would be the paralysis of business which it would occasion, the anxiety and fright of the people and the suffering and expense of the sick who might escape death:

Dr. Edmond Souchon, New Orleans:

Executive Office, Austin, Texas, Oct 18.—Dear Sir: Your letter of the 16th instant received. There is no doubt in my mind that the yellow fever now prevalent in Mississippi and Louisiana is of a malignant and fatal type, in the best meaning of those terms. Your own statement abundantly shows this. It is true other epidemics have been more malignant and fatal, but the difference is only in degree. Excluding New Orleans, you admit there have been 925 cases in Louisiana, with 24 deaths, and 736 cases in Mississippi, with 48 deaths. The people have been officially advised to flee from Jackson and scatter through the country. The disease has reached Lake Charles, within thirty miles of our own border, and the people of Texas along the boundary line are excited and alarmed. If our quarantine shall prevent the sickness and death caused in Mississippi and the consequent injury to our internal commerce and terror to our people, it will have done a noble service.

It is extremely unpleasant to have been driven to strong measures, but my duty to this people is paramount. At the earliest moment when such course will be safe the quarantine will be modified or withdrawn. Very respectfully,

C. A. CULBERSON, Governor.

LOUISIANA SITUATION.

New Orleans, Oct. 19.—President Souchon, of the state board of health, reports no new cases and no deaths in New Orleans, with no reports from other localities. Dr. Souchon sent a circular to the parishes asking consent to raise the quarantine on October 25. There are sixty nine parishes in the state. Three have replied affirmatively, one non committal, and the rest have not yet been heard from.

Two Spaniards Not Satisfied

Havana, Oct. 20.—General Parado and Admiral Manterola of the Spanish commission in a conversation recently expressed the hope that something would occur before the final evacuation of the island to warrant a renewal of hostilities, as they are credited with saying the Spanish army and navy could not accept the humiliation to which they have been subjected without an emphatic protest and opportunity to rehabilitate themselves, which, the Spaniards further claim, would be best afforded by a continuation of the war. This conversation, it is further asserted, was reported into to Rear Admiral Sampson, who is said to have replied that two months score of the war would have suited him admirably.

Admiral Sampson is deeply affected and disturbed by the adverse criticism to which he has been subjected. He appears to brood over it constantly.

Started Off Disagreeable.

A more disagreeable day for a political jubilee and barbecue could hardly be imagined. After mid night last night a storm came up and the rain fell in torrents, and a brisk norther soon after put in an appearance. To this, about 9 o'clock, showers of rain was added and the result was hundreds who would have come stayed away. A very good crowd came, however, and it is fair to estimate that there was a thousand strangers in the city. Fortunately the weather was much more pleasant at noon, and the city has presented quite an animated appearance despite the mud.

Notables Arrive.

The east bound Southern Pacific was two hours late this morning, and as a result there was a very impatient reception committee. When the train did arrive it was found that Hon. Joe Bailey, Hon. Tom Ball and Judge Norman G. Kittrell had honored us with their presence. They were at once escorted to the Crosby house, where they brushed up, after which they were taken to the French restaurant to breakfast. It was originally intended to have an address at 10 o'clock, but the delay of the train interfered with arrangements, so Judge Kittrell was put down for a speech at 11:30 and Mr. Bailey at 2:30.

There was much disappointment because Governor Culberson and Hon J. D. Sayers, candidate for governor, did not come, but it was impossible for them to do so.

At the Auditorium.

The first speaker on the program this morning was Judge Norman G. Kittrell of Houston, candidate for representative from Harris county. Judge Kittrell's speech was of the most pleasing character and caught the big crowd in attendance.

At 2:30 Hon. Joe W. Bailey entered the Auditorium, which was already filled to overflowing. His presence was acknowledged by a murmur of pleasure and a pleasing measure of applause.

Hon. S. B. Cooper called the meeting to order and made a very pleasing introductory speech and paid a tribute to the resources of Beaumont and the energy of her people. Paying a high tribute to his character and ability Mr. Cooper then introduced Mr. Bailey who took occasion to pay a very high compliment to Mr. Cooper. Mr. Bailey's speech was too long to be reported in these columns, besides there was little in it that was new and the immense audience was more of a tribute to his fame than to anything that he might be expected to say.

Mr. Bailey leaves tonight for Virginia, where he will take part in the Ninth district campaign. Mr. Bailey does not expect to return to Texas until election day.

Bill Sterrett Here.

One of the distinguished personages (we use the term advisedly) who attracted attention this morning before the orators arrived, was a well built, smooth faced, jolly appearing gentleman, who was recognized by only a few as a humorist, but who is known by name to hundreds of our people and thousands of Texans, and whose reputation is not limited to the Lone Star state. The gentleman was Col. Wm. G. Sterrett, the Washington correspondent of the Galveston News, more familiarly known in Texas as Bill Sterrett. Colonel Sterrett's appearance here is not due entirely to the fact that we had barbecued eighty three sheep, or that Congressman Joe Bailey was going to make an anti expansion speech and warn the people against a coalition with England. Of course the interest of the Galveston News will be looked after from a political standpoint, but Colonel Sterrett does not rise to fashionable silver tongued orators as do the hungry to the meal table at a fat ox roast. Of speaking political Color ol Sterrett is unrivalled, and has been for some time using his versatile pen to draw pictures of industrial Texas. While here he will visit our big mills and factories. He will look at our rice farms and tell about the development that is going on in that direction. Colonel Sterrett will find an appreciative people who do not care for such subjects who will forgive him if he gives that part of his program the right of way over politics.

PLEASANT CONTEMPLATION.

There is not a can of my goods, but is a pleasant contemplation and a still more pleasant realization. It's this relief from fear of inferiority that has led the careful housekeeper to repose more and more confidence in my canned selections and has won for me increasing orders every day.
