United States Supreme Court Decisions.
JUDGE CURTIS'S EDITION.

Reports of Decisions in the Supreme Court of the United States, with Notes and a Digest.

B. R. Curtis, one of the associate judges of the court. In 22 vols. 8vo. Price, $5 per vol.

This edition comprises the cases reported by Dallas, 4 vols.; Cranch, 9 vols.; Wheaton, 12 vols.; Peters, 16 vols.; Howard. The old series of these reports is in 58 volumes, the cost price of which is $522. This edition, in 22 volumes, is offered to subscribers at the low price of $4 a volume, or $66 for the series.

From the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

We approve the plan of Mr. Justice Curtis's Decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, and believe that its execution him will be of much utility to the legal profession and to our country.

ROGER B. TANEY, Chief Justice.
JOHN McLEAN, Associate Justice.
JAMES W. WAYNE, Associate Justice.
JOHN CATRON, Associate Justice.
PETER V. DANIEL, Associate Justice.
SAMUEL NELSON, Associate Justice.
ROBERT C. GRIER, Associate Justice.
J. A. CAMPBELL, Associate Justice.

The following opinions have been expressed of the work since the publication of the first three volumes:

From the Chief Justice of the United States.

I regard this publication as one of the most useful and valuable that have issued from the American press. I have examined the first volume. I need not say that it is evidently prepared with great judgment and care. The character of Mr. Justice Curtis is of itself sufficient guarantee that any work of this kind undertaken by him will be executed in the best manner. And when it is completed it cannot fail, I think, to meet the approbation and support of the public as well as of the profession, whether practising in the courts of the United States or the courts of a State.

R. B. TANEY.

JULY 10, 1855.

From Judge McLean, of the United States Supreme Court.

I have long desired to see just such an edition of the reports of the Supreme Court as this will be. The correction of the errors of the press in the present editions and the reference to subsequent cases where the decisions have been doubted, modified, overruled, or affirmed, as proposed in this edition, will give to it increased value.

JOHN McLEAN.

From Judge Catron, of the United States Supreme Court.

The specimen volume you have sent me is well edited and well printed; and, if the succeeding volumes are as well executed as the first one is, I have no doubt that Mr. Justice Curtis's edition will at once supersede all other reports of the Supreme Court decisions. He has disencumbered the reports of cases of useless matter, reducing them to a form and size convenient to the student and consultation of the lawyer and the judge; and then the price is reasonable.

JOHN CATRON.

NASHVILLE, July 21, 1855.

From Judge Grier, of the United States Supreme Court.

The plan of this work has already received the sanction and approbation of the whole court. This volume (the first) amply sustains the promise of its able editor. When fully executed it will make the decisions of the Supreme Court acceptable to the bar and others not only by greatly reducing the expense, but by eliminating the diffuse syllabuses, the superfluous statements, and other mass of useless matter in which many of the cases (as now reported) are enveloped and concealed. The notes at the foot of each case, referring to other and similar ones, will be valuable to the profession, and will save much time and labor in searching through ill arranged digests and worse indexes.

ROBERT C. GRIER.

PHILADELPHIA, August 22, 1855.

From Judge Daniel, of the United States Supreme Court.

Knowing the learning and ability of Judge Curtis, it was with great pleasure that I was first made aware of his purpose to undertake a republication of the decisions of the Supreme Court upon the plan adopted by him; and, judging from the specimen before me of his execution of that plan, I would conclude that my most favorable anticipations would be fully accomplished.

The exclusion from this work of matter in the form of statement and argument not necessary to the elucidation of the cases, and the safety with which the accuracy of the editor in preventing the points discussed and decided may be relied on, cannot but relieve both the bench and the bar from much labor and from the loss of much valuable time.

PETER V. DANIEL.

WASHINGTON, October 1, 1855.

From the Attorney General of the United States.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE,
September 11, 1855.

GENTLEMEN: I have, in compliance with your request, examined the volumes now in the course of publication, entitled "Reports of Decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States," by Mr. Justice Curtis, and perceive that the work possesses peculiar qualities, as follows:

1. In the preservation of whatever is of primary importance in the previous reports of the same decisions, with great saving of bulk and expense by the omission of secondary matter, such as editorial statements of the facts in the case and arguments of counsel, where these are not essential to the understanding or elucidation of the decisions themselves.

2. In the careful revisal of each case, in the sense of editorial accuracy, and the consequent correction of such errors of editorship or impression as existed in the previous reports.

3. In the addition to each case of reference by footnote to other decisions of the series in which the same is mentioned.

4. In the recomposition of the editorial statements of the cases, not merely in the sense of rejection or abridgment, but still more in that of essential improvement of the matter itself by means of information derived from the original records and files of the court.

5. In the recomposition of the head notes on a theory of judicial expositions, so that the syllabus of each case exhibits what is really adjudged in it as law, and that alone, passing over obiter dicta and mere judicial argument.

6. The digest promised will supply a want which is very sensibly felt by all who have occasion to consult the Decisions of the Supreme Court, the existing digests thereof being either antiquated or defective in plan and execution.

I think these are signal advantages of the present work, serving not only to render more accessible to the legal profession generally, but also more available and profitable for study and use, a series of judicial decisions holding the highest place among the many collections of the same class which honor and adorn the legal literature of the United States.

I am, very respectfully,
C. CUSHING.

Messrs. LITTLE, BROWN, & Co.

From Prof. Parsons, of the Cambridge Law School.

Judge Curtis is rendering to the profession a service of very great importance in bringing within our reach the law of these numerous and expensive volumes. Let the show, by no example, taken only because it happened to be the first one I examined, how he does this. In his first volume the interesting case of Graves et al. vs the B. M. Insurance Company, which determines the rules of law applicable to an insurance by one partner of the property of the firm, occupies less than six pages. In the second volume of Cranch (whose reports are far less voluminous and diffuse than those of his successors) this case occupies twenty six pages. But Judge Curtis retains everything said by the Chief Justice, who speak by unanimous consent, C. J., and everything further which a lawyer can want or use. And he puts this in so compact a form that it is really much easier to get at the true result and operation of the case thus in the original report. The same thing will I think, be found to be literally true in reference to all the contents of these volumes. His condensation of this loose mass saves us not only money, but time and labor.

Leave Charleston Monday at 7, a. m.;
Arrive at Helena next day by 9, p. m.;
Leave Helena Wednesday at 7, a. m.;
Arrive at Charleston next day by 9, p. m.

NOTE.

Proposals must be guaranteed by two responsible persons, certified to as such by a postmaster or judge of a court of record; and contract must be entered into by the successful bidder, with surety, before the 1st of July next.

No pay will be made for trips not performed, and for each of such omissions not satisfactorily explained three times the pay of the trip may be deducted. For arrivals so far behind time as to break connexion with depending mails, and not sufficiently excused, one-fourth of the compensation for the trip is subject to forfeiture. Fines will be imposed, unless the delinquency be promptly and satisfactorily explained, for neglecting to take the mail from or into a post office; for suffering it to be injured, destroyed, robbed, or lost; and for refusing, after demand, to convey the mail as frequently as the contractor runs, or is concerned in running, vehicles on the route. The Postmaster General may annul the contract for repeated failures to run agreeably to contract, or for disobeying the post office laws or instructions of the department. The Postmaster General may alter the schedule. He may also order an increase of service by allowing therefor a pro rata increase on the contract pay. He may also curtail or discontinue the service in whole or in part, at pro rata decrease of pay, allowing one month's extra compensation on the amount of service dispensed with. Bids should be addressed to the "Second Assistant Postmaster General," superscribed "Proposals for No. 7484, Mississippi." For further particulars see pamphlet advertisement for conveying the mails in Alabama, Mississippi, &c., of 1854 and 1855.

For Sale Four Hundred Negroes and Ten Thousand Acres of Cane-brake Land in Dallas and Perry Counties, Alabama.

UNDER first Monday in April next (the 7th) I will sell, at Cahawba, Dallas county, Ala., to the highest bidder, for cash, or Mobile "acceptances," at sixty or ninety days, bearing interest, one hundred and fifty likely negroes; also, fifty others, on long time. All acclimated, and experienced cotton-plantation hands.

I will also sell, at any time during this year, at private sale, for cash or on time, two hundred other valuable negroes, (in lots to suit purchasers) and 9,000 acres of the very best and most advantageously situated "cane-brake" and "black land," including the nine plantations known as the "Trigg Plantation," "Mud Hall," "Sycamore," "King Plantation," "Blevins Place," "Ludlow," "Lodebo," "Holmes Place," and the "Cross Roads," all of which, for cotton and corn, are inferior to no plantations in the world. Also, an elegantly improved and beautiful residence adjoining Summerfield, eight miles from the city of Selma, with about four hundred acres attached to it; the dwelling house, offices, out-houses, grounds, garden, &c., are all in first-rate condition. These plantations are 20 or 30 miles below the city of Montgomery, about 150 miles above Mobile, and west of, and near to, the Alabama river, which is at all seasons navigable for steamboats. Near seven thousand acres, including four of the plantations, are on the Selma and Wetumpka railroad; and on this body of land, about fourteen miles from Selma, is located the depot at the junction of the Marion railroad with the Selma road, to and from which depot the cars run regularly. Of the other plantations, one is on the Selma railroad two are two miles, and two six miles distant, one of which is within six miles of the city of Selma. These plantations are in the highest state of cultivation, with good gins, gin-houses, cotton-presses, in the negro cabins, shops, stables, siloes, wells, &c., &c.

I will sell them in tracts to suit purchasers, of 500, 1,000, 1,500, 2,000, or 3,000 acres, and so laid off as to give as much opened and wood land to each tract as may be desired, and with or without the negroes, stock, plantation tools, corn, provender, &c.

Possession of the above plantations and negroes will be given to the purchasers at any time whilst the crop is growing, or in December or January next, as they may wish.

If not sold privately previous to the first Monday in December next, I will, on that day, at Selma, sell to the highest bidder such negroes as may then be unsold.

Such opportunities and advantages were never before presented for those wishing to continue or to engage in the cultivation of cotton. It has been difficult for years past to find a plantation in the "cane-brake" region for sale at any price, or even to purchase there a large unimproved tract.

These plantations are, in fertility, facilities for transportation, and in all other respects, fully equal, if not superior, to any in the cotton-growing States; and I know that personal investigation will prove to the satisfaction of every one that no portion of the Union is more healthy than the "cane-brake" region of Alabama.

I will also sell privately, for cash or on time, one of the most beautifully-improved private residences in the city of Selma, and several valuable and elegantly-finished large blocks of brick buildings, including the largest and most desirably located store-rooms, offices, banking houses, &c., &c.

Also, several very desirable unimproved large lots, and small tracts of land in and contiguous to Selma.

Also, about 30 head of blooded horses; among which are the celebrated "Brown Dick," several superior brood mares, several young stallions, geldings, colts, and fillies—all of them from the very best racing stock.

Among the negroes are a first-rate trainer, several good race-riders, and many excellent mechanics, cooks, seamstresses, and house servants.

For further particulars address the undersigned, or W. M. Byrd, esq., at Selma; or W. M. Brooks, esq., at Marion, Perry county, Alabama. The overseers now on the plantations will give all desirable information to those who may wish to make a personal investigation of the premises.

Land Warrants.

JOHN CLARK, (late register at Iowa city, Iowa,) agent for the location of military bounty-land warrants in the State of Iowa.—I have opened an office in Washington city, D. C., in connexion with local agents and surveyors at the several land offices in the State of Iowa, by which I am prepared to offer new facilities for the location of land warrants, the only mode by which warrantees and other holders can fully avail themselves of the bounty of the government.

TERMS.

The land will be selected, the location made, and certificate mailed to the address of parties, sending warrants by mail, for the following fees, which must accompany the warrants:

40 acres, fee for selection and location, $4; to which add land office fee, $1—$5.

80 acres, fee for selection and location, $6; to which add land office fee, $2—$8.

120 acres, fee for selection and location, $8; to which add land office fee, $3—$11.

160 acres, fee for selection and location, $10; to which add land office fee, $4—$14.

The above are the lowest prices charged by competent agents at the local office.

I guaranty that all selections will be made judiciously, upon actual inspection, and of as good land as remains vacant in the district at the time.

The selecting agents are the most competent and experienced in the State, and are fully advised of all the local advantages—such as railroads, county seats, timbers, water, and settlements, present and pro spective.

Lands thus selected will be worth, I am confident, from $2 50 to $5 per acre as soon as selected. Warrantees, for whose benefit this agency is designed, and other holders, cannot fail to realize a large advance upon the face of their warrants.

DIRECTIONS.

Warrantees will execute to me a power of attorney to locate endorsed on the warrant. And others will please fill the blank assignments with the full name of the locator.

Address JOHN CLARK, No. 432 Pennsylvania avenue, with J. W. Webb & Co.

Refer to the Iowa delegation in Congress, and the Hon. Charles Mason, Commissioner of Patents.

GENERAL AGENCY AT WASHINGTON.—The subscriber, formerly of Richmond, Virginia, having established an office in this city, on F street, a few doors in front of the Treasury Department, tenders his services to claimants upon the government, especially for revolutionary services, and for land bounties and pensions under the recent acts of Congress.

Having purchased the manuscripts of the late David Dorrington he has, perhaps, the only index which was ever made to the immense mass of revolutionary papers in the first auditor's office in Richmond. He has also a very copious index to the papers in all the other public offices in the Capitol of Virginia. These, and the accumulations from other sources of twenty years' experience, entitle him to hope that if a claim intrusted to him be just, he will be able to show it, even where the claimant himself may be entirely unable to do it.

For claims under the recent act of 3d March, 1855, giving 160 acres of land to all who were in battle or who served fourteen days, his charges will be very moderate.

FELIX RICHARDS.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SPEECH OF HON. JOHN S. PHELPS,

OF MISSOURI;

Delivered in the House of Representatives, February 19, 1856, on the Kansas election.

Mr. HICKMAN, of Pennsylvania, having reported a resolution from the Committee of Elections to empower said committee, in the Kansas contested-election case, to send for persons and papers,

Mr. PHELPS said: I desire to say a few words upon this subject, if the resolution is in order.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is of opinion that the resolution is in order.

Mr. PHELPS. If I understand the resolution offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, [Mr. HICKMAN,] it desires to have the House authorize the Committee of Elections to send for persons and papers for the purpose of investigating the legality of the recent Kansas election. It seems to me the committee are seeking to obtain a power from this House which I think ought not to be exercised upon this occasion. The contestant, Mr. Reeder, who has presented his memorial, claiming a seat upon the floor of this House as the delegate from the Territory of Kansas, alleges in his memorial that he does not claim to be elected by virtue of the laws enacted by the legislature of the Territory he seeks to represent. This position, in disregard of the laws, he deliberately informs us he has assumed. By virtue of the act organizing the Territories of Kansas and Nebraska, the first election of a delegate was to be held under the order which might be issued by the governor, prescribing the time, place, and manner of holding such election. So much of that act has been executed. At the last session of Congress a gentleman appeared here as a delegate from that Territory, and was admitted as such upon this floor, without objection from any quarter. If it be that the Committee of Elections desire to inquire into the legality of the laws enacted by the territorial legislature, I say they are about to do that which was never before done—inquire into the legality of the laws enacted by the territorial legislature of Kansas. By what right, by what authority, can they do it? Those territorial laws were enacted, and they purport to have been enacted, by a legislature duly elected in pursuance of a law of Congress, and the validity of those enactments, made in conformity with such law of Congress, cannot be rightfully contested in this House. They cannot be examined here for the purpose of determining whether they were duly enacted or not. Their validity can only be determined by the courts. The requirements of the act of Congress having been complied with, the validity of those territorial laws cannot be impeached by Congress. Then, why summon witnesses? Why bring men two thousand miles, in the dead of winter, when their testimony can avail nothing?

I am not aware it is alleged by any one that the sitting member [General Whitfield] did not receive a majority of the legal votes cast in the election for delegate. Nor is it alleged that the requirements of the election law were not complied with; nor will any one assert that at that election any qualified voter was prevented from giving his vote at any election precinct in that Territory. There are no allegations—no charges made that, at the election for delegate held in pursuance of the laws duly enacted by the legislature of Kansas, threats were made or force used to prevent any person from voting. There is no allegation that General Whitfield owes his election to illegal votes. The contestant does not—dare not assert it. These witnesses are not required to testify to the manner of holding that election, nor to the qualifications of those persons who voted for General Whitfield. Nor does Governor Reeder claim that at that election he received the highest number of votes; nor does he claim to have been elected in pursuance of the laws of Kansas, nor in pursuance of any law of the United States—in short, he does not claim to have been elected in pursuance of any law whatever. In support of such a claim what need of testimony?

Those gentlemen who take the position that the laws of the Territory of Kansas are invalid assume that the legislature of that Territory was convened by the governor at a place not authorized by the law, and, therefore, that its action in the premises is void. I deny the position taken by those gentlemen, and I refer the House to the Kansas-Nebraska act, which prescribes, in its twenty-second section, that the first legislature shall convene at such time and such place as the governor himself shall order.

The twenty-second section has the following language. After speaking of the election of members of the legislature, it says:

"And the persons thus elected to the legislative assembly shall meet at such place and on such day as the governor shall appoint."

I am aware that there is another section in that organic law which prescribes that the seat of government shall be temporarily at Fort Leavenworth; but that very act provides that the first legislature shall assemble at such place and at such time as the governor may direct. The governor of the Territory (Gov. Reeder, the contestant) required that legislature to assemble at Pawnee. The legislature did assemble on the day named in the governor's proclamation at Pawnee, and organized by the election of its presiding and other officers. When thus legally organized in the customary mode, Governor Reeder recognised the legal existence of that legislature, and sent to it his message, with recommendations for its consideration and action. That message was received, read, and ordered to be printed. So far, no difficulty or disagreement had occurred.

The legislature, being assembled upon a military reserve, at a town laid out upon it in violation of law, and in which Governor Reeder was himself interested as a proprietor, without buildings provided for its sessions, or suitable accommodations for its members, adjourned its sittings to the Shawnee Mission, where proper accommodations for the legislature and its members were furnished. This adjournment was made by virtue of an act of the legislature, passed in due form by a unanimous vote in one house, and but a single dissenting voice in the other branch of the legislature, after it had been vetoed by Governor Reeder. It, therefore, became a law in the manner provided for by the act organizing the Territory of Kansas.

The legislature then assembled at Shawnee Mission, and there passed laws prescribing the qualifications of voters and the qualifications for holding office. It exercised all the power that is recognised to exist in a legislative assembly; and I contend that it rightfully exercised such power. Having adjourned from Pawnee, and having been regularly organized at Shawnee Mission, the legislature there proceeded to pass a law providing for the election of a delegate to the Congress of the United States; and under that law, so enacted, a delegate was elected, was admitted to a seat on this floor, and now claims that he has a right to that seat. Why does Gov. Reeder come here contesting that election? On what ground does he contest the right of the sitting member? He alleges that the laws passed by the legislature are invalid because they were not enacted at the proper place. I have shown the legislature had power to adjourn, in the manner it did, to meet at Shawnee Mission. The Kansas-Nebraska act itself declares that the powers of that legislature shall extend to all rightful subjects of legislation; and there can be no question that the power is inherent in every legislative assembly, unless restricted by the organic law, to adjourn to such time and place as may suit its own convenience. No such restriction can be shown.

What is proposed to be elicited, in the event of the adoption of the resolution? Is it proposed to spin out this election contest until the close of this session by sending for persons and papers? The very act of Congress which provides for contested elections points out the manner in which persons who may contest the right of any member to a seat on this floor shall proceed. It provides that, after giving notice of a seat being contested, notice shall be given of the time and place for taking depositions. And I ask, do you in this case expect to bring here the people of Kansas or of the borders of Missouri for the purpose of deposing before the Committee of Elections? Where is the investigation to end? What is to be the result of it? Can anything result from it? Suppose this House declare the seat of the delegate from Kansas vacant, how can that Territory be represented here in this Congress? Can it be represented in any other way than by an election held pursuant to the laws of the Territory of Kansas? Are you to say, and will this House say, that a person elected by a portion of the people of that Territory, or who claims to be elected by a portion of the people of that Territory, without any law authorizing such an election, and in defiance of law, is entitled to a seat on this floor? Will you say that the laws of that Territory are to be trampled under foot, and that you will disregard them, and accept as a delegate from that Territory a man who avows in his petition that he does not claim any right to a seat on this floor under the acts of a legislature called into existence by our own laws?

I desire now to call the attention of the House to the law regulating and providing for the election of a delegate from the Territory of Kansas. Speaking of the election of a delegate from the Territory of Kansas, the act prescribes that the first election "shall be held at such time and places, and be conducted in such manner, as the governor shall appoint and direct; and at all subsequent elections the time, places, and manner of holding the elections shall be prescribed by law."
