He was acutally unable to buy a bottle of Parmelee's Sarsaparilla at any price at any drug store in America. Now you can buy it for 50 cents at almost any drug store. This shows how much more fortunate people are now than they were in Columbus' time. Parmelee's Sarsaparilla is a blood purifier of great merit, and a tonic of remarkable virtue. For every disease or condition coming from an impure state of the blood it is an absolute remedy. It acts with great effect upon the liver, keeping that most important organ in healthy activity. It braces up the system "all run down" from sluggish circulation or insutive secretions, and is in all respects a most valuable remedy. 50 cents. Sold by dealers.
