LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Latest Styles in Hats.

"What is the latest style in hats?" is a postal inquiry from a lady reader at Knights Landing. The postal was turned over to a reporter, who had a failing for hats and feathers, and in order to be able to answer the question intelligently he attended the matinee at the Clunie Opera House on Saturday last. He took a seat near the main entrance, where he could get a good view of the head-gear of every female that entered. His report embraces sixteen pages of foolscap, and is descriptive of 391 different styles. There were 392 ladies present, but one came bare-headed. No two ladies wore the same kind of a hat. Their tastes, as regarded style of hats, were evidently as different as were the faces and curls that said hats adorned. There was the tall felt hat, the low felt, the large felt, the small felt, the light straw, the dark straw, the broad straw, the high straw, the low-crowned straw, in as many varieties of straw as are obtained in the straw market. Then the velvet cap, the velvet turban, the lace cap, the crocheted bonnet, the Jersey cap, the back cap, the front cap, the tilted cap, the jockey cap, the exquisite cap, and the regular masher. These caps are set in every conceivable style upon the head, and many of them look as though they were set to catch some one. The style of hat, or bonnet, is just whatever you please to wear. The kinds enumerated above include every style that has been in fashion since the days of our grandmothers, and the trimmings in many cases are very similar, but very much louder. The reporter would have taken more notice of headgear had not two ladies entered and taken seats immediately in front of him, and their hats engaged his entire attention. They wore hats of such mammoth size that they shut out his entire view of the stage and audience, and the scribbler became lonesome and left.

A Tourist Arrested.

"Judge," said a tramp, as he stood up in the dock of the Police Court a few days ago, "I don't think you have jurisdiction in my case, and I would like to have a nolle pros. as entered."

"I have no jurisdiction? What do you mean, sir?"

"Well, you see, Judge, I am not a resident here—am only a tourist, as it were—and I think that by a careful reading of the statutes made and provided, you will find that unless a stranger commits a theft, disturbs the peace of the community or commits some overt act, he is free from arrest or imprisonment. This arrest is very embarrassing to me. It interferes with the prosecution of my labors, and may cause me to be unable to make my annual report on time."

"And pray, sir, what is your occupation?"

"Well, sir, I am a tie counter for the Government. I have counted all the ties between here and Council Bluffs, and on most of the branch roads in this State, and would have started out over the California Pacific this morning had I not been ruthlessly snatched from the street by one of your police force and thrust behind the prison bars."

"Well, how do you count the ties when you take an accasional ride on a brake-beam?"

"Judge, my early education was not neglected. I can approximate by the rule of three, and arrive at very correct results. I will admit that appearances are against me—that my life is something like that of a nomad, but I am devoting it to science. I don't like your water in Sacramento, and if you will dismiss this action I will have the number of ties between here and Dixon recorded in my book before night."

The action was dismissed, and the tie counter, a few moments later, was wending his way across the Yolo bridge.

NOT HEARD OF YET.—Joseph Bronner and Louis Brendel, who have been missing since last Sunday morning, when they started out duck-hunting, have not yet been heard from. Two duck boats and a skiff were yesterday reported to have been found at Sutterville, but the one in which the hunters went out was not among them. There were many shooters out on the overflow yesterday, but they did not see nor hear anything of the men or their boat. The latter was a mud-colored duck-boat, about sixteen feet long, with movable outriggers, with places for rowlocks to screw on. There was a tin patch inside and outside of the boat, where a charge of shot had passed through. The oars and paddle were painted green, and the oars had leather bands to keep them from wearing in the rowlocks. John J. Bronner advertises a reward of $50 for information concerning his brother, and the parents of Louis Brendel a reward for the recovery of the body of their lost son.

THE CHINESE AT ROCKLIN.—A gentleman down from Rocklin yesterday says that the Chinese at that place have come to the conclusion that Rocklin is not a healthy place to reside in and have nearly all "skipped out." The Auburn Republican says: "Peanut Charlie, the Chinaman, had a rough experience last Sunday. He had heard that there was a chair down in Rocklin to mend, and, for the sake of making a bit, he recklessly determined to venture within the enemy's lines and solicit the job. He had not been in Rocklin more than two minutes before he thought he was a new cadet at West Point. After his hazing he took the train for Auburn in a very dejected state of mind. His appearance was something worse than the old Chinaman's who prospects around the streets. He says he 'heap sabbees' Rocklin, and will hereafter stick strictly to the peanut business."

CHARLES ROBIN, No. 702 J street, opened another lot of 126 boys' suits, which he offers at fifty cents on the dollar. Also, hats of late Trope stock at reduced prices, and umbrellas at 25 cents. *

BASEBALL.

The Eastern Combination Too Much for the Altas.

Waller Wallace kept faith with the public by bringing up from San Francisco yesterday, in accordance with promise, the strongest baseball nine that has ever played on the coast, headed by the redoubtable Sweeney, whose remarkable ability is conceded by all players throughout the country. His pitching is not only effective, but easy and graceful, and yesterday he shone almost equally well as a batter and baserunner. McDonald supported him excellently behind the bat, and the entire nine did good work whenever they had opportunity, and played the nine innings without an error. There was a very large attendance to witness the game, including citizens of all classes, and many ladies. The game was not as exciting as some that have been played here, but made up for it by the display of skill by the visiting players, and it was conducted throughout without noise, confusion or wrangle. J. T. Stafford acted as umpire very satisfactorily. It had been expected that the Altas would be beaten, but the sharp work of the Eastern players disposed of them for five innings more rapidly than was anticipated. It was not until the third inning that they succeeded in getting a man (Hennessy) on first base. In the sixth inning Barry and Flint tallied, the latter on an earned run. His playing was the most brilliant done on the part of the Altas, including a good catch of a strong hit by Taylor to center field, and a magnificent throw to the home plate, the double play enabling McLaughlin to stop Moore's run in. In the last inning Borchers and Stanton tallied, and the game closed with a score of 11 for the Easterns to 4 for the home club. The result, while of course mainly due to the superiority of the visitors, was attributable in part to the nervousness of the Altas in meeting such opponents. It was an off day for McLaughlin, too, and even Crone, in left field, failed to hold a fly ball, which was something he had not been known to be guilty of for many a game. Barry's pitching was creditable, but he made two bad throws to first. Blakiston held the initial position for the professionals admirably and never failed. One of the prettiest plays of the game was Sweeney's stopping of McLaughlin's hit and sending the ball to Fogarty, at second, who put out Robertson, and then threw to Blakiston, who shut off McLaughlin from first. It is on Mr. Wallace's programme to keep his nine here until Sunday, and to play against the Altas Saturday and Sunday, if the weather permits. On the latter day Morris, the rival of Sweeney as a pitcher, is expected to pitch for the Easterns, and it has been suggested that Sweeney pitch for the Altas, which would make an interesting game. Following is yesterday's score:

At Recreation Park yesterday morning there was quite a large crowd of spectators present to witness the baseball game between a nine from the store of Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson and one from Huntington, Hopkins & Co.'s. It was a very amusing contest of six innings, the first-mentioned nine winning by a score of 17 to 7. There is a talk of a game between the victors and the Ariels.

DELIGHTED WITH CALIFORNIA.

What a Wisconsin Farmer Thinks of a Sacramento Winter.

In conversation with a reporter yesterday, Dr. Latham, Secretary of the Immigration Association of Northern California, said the association is doing more toward finding homes for the immigrant at this time, than at any previous date since its organization. He says he has received during the past few weeks a large number of letters from Scandinavian people, who are now residents of Minnesota. One colony, consisting of one hundred and twenty-five families, are desirous of locating somewhere in middle or northern California. They live in the neighborhood of Minneapolis, have their own schools, churches, newspaper, etc. A few days ago their agent, a very intelligent gentleman, arrived in this city and immediately called upon Dr. Latham. After a short conversation in the office, the doctor took him around the city, and showed him the beautiful grass plats, flower gardens, orange, lemon and persimmon trees, loaded with yellow delicious fruits; tropical plants growing luxuriantly, and the Minnesota farmer was, to use a California expression, paralyzed. He had never seen citrus fruits growing, and Sacramento's wealth of flowers seemed to him to be so much out of season that he could hardly believe his eyes. He said: "Doctor, I have only been in California half a day, but I have seen enough in those few hours to convince me that California is the paradise we long have sought, and you have not dogs enough in the State to drive me out. I have just left a country covered deep with a weary waste of snow, not a sign of vegetation is to be seen, and we are just at the beginning of a weary six-months winter. Here, you, to all appearances, are enjoying the beginning of spring; the herbage will soon be sufficient to feed your stock, while with us, our beasts for many months must be fed from the garnered stores in our barns. Here you say this is a disagreeable day. There, in Wisconsin, this would pass for a May morning. If I could pick up one of your beautiful yards, with its wealth of grasses, flowers, orange trees laden with their golden fruits, and set it down in Minneapolis, and say to the people of that snow-covered city this is an average of the grass plots in Sacramento, do you know what they would say? Well, they would not believe it. They would say: 'You cannot make us believe any such statements. You got that out of a hot-house.' I shall truthfully and faithfully describe all I have seen here, and what I now expect to see elsewhere, in my correspondence to the Scandinavian papers in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. My people are desirous of locating near each other, all in one county, if possible. They would like to secure a large arable tract, and cut it up into small holdings."

Dr. Latham says he has many inquiries from Iowa, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois. A colony in Rockford, Illinois, is ready to come just as soon as they can find a suitable location. Those who have come out as agents state, and from letters received from parties in the East, it is ascertained that this fall and winter has been a good time for the disposition of real estate there, and many have sold their farms with the intention of coming to California in the spring. One gentleman says the people in Dakota never tire of talking about the "glorious climate of California." He added that he thought they were justified in doing so, for two winters ago eighty-two persons were frozen to death in one county in that Territory.

SIGNAL SERVICE DISTRICTS.—A correspondent asks relative to the boundaries of the Signal Service districts on this coast. The inquiry was referred to Sergeant James A. Barwick, and in reply he says: "The northern Pacific district includes all the territory west of the Cascade range of mountains and north of the California State line, extending to and beyond Tatoosh Island, which is situated at the mouth of the straits of Juan de Fuca. The middle Pacific district includes all the territory west of the Sierra Nevada mountains, and from the State line on the north to a line (37° north latitude) on the south, beginning at Monterey Bay and running east to the mountains. The south Pacific district, all that territory south of Monterey Bay to the Mexican line, and west of a line running from the mountains in a southeasterly direction to Yuma, A. T.

Amusements.

CLUNIE OPERA HOUSE.—The Emma Nevada concert last night was a pronounced success. It was made a society event. It introduced to the new theater a company of people very many of whom had not before visited it, and by no personal observation knew what a handsome, comfortable house it is. It was the first test of the fitness of the house for musical entertainments, and the handsome room came out victorious. Madame Nevada-Palmer, after the first number, volunteered, with enthusiasm the verdict that its acoustic properties are admirable—in fact, unsurpassed in the State; and another experienced member of the company pronounced it "a remarkably easy house upon the voice of the singer." The audience was a critical one, and representative of the culture and good taste of this people. It was a dressy audience, and the parquette, dress circle and boxes fairly glowed with the handsome costumery of the ladies. The local management had canvased the entrance hall, draped the boxes with lace curtains and lined the entrance the entire length on either side with semi-tropical plants and shrubs from the Bell Conservatory, and like adornment was noticeable in the proceniun. Extra relays of ushers in conventional "black and white" were in attendance, and cloak and hat rooms were provided. Special ornamental programmes were furnished the ladies, while baser clay was content with less elaborate guides to the entertainment. The instrumental support was a Chickering Grand, presided over excellently by Director Giorza. Emma Nevada received a cordial welcome, that grew very soon into enthusiasm. She sang first an aria from "Linda," and being thrice recalled, yielded, and sang with touching effect "Home, Sweet Home." On her next appearance, she sang with Buti, the baritone, a duo from "Rigoletto," and, after two recalls, it was in part repeated. The third time she sang "Carnival of Venice," and being thrice recalled, accompanied herself with charming ease upon the piano in the old song, "Listen to the Mocking Bird," with some added effects in the way of trills and pianissimo passages that were more than charming. Vergnet, the tenor, after "Il Mio Tesoro," was compelled to acknowledge the warm endorsement of the audience and sang, "Then You'll Remember Me." In fact, every number by every artist was encored, and save in two instances, the numbers were doubled, and thus instead of twelve the concert lengthened to twenty-two numbers. Of Nevada it is to be said that realization did not respond to expectation. Greater musical power was looked for than she possesses. Hers is not a voice of great force or strength, but one splendidly managed, under perfect conirol, of rare sweetness and remarkable sympathetic quality, and of high culture. Her tones are pure and flute-like, and in the softer passages are exquisite. If there was thinness of quality in the upper register, there was, to compensate, that fervor, flexibility and sweetness that marks only the greatly gifted concert singer, and that so admirably befits the dramatic quality that Nevada possesses in a remarkable degree. She has perceptive power, personal magnetism and delicate instincts, all of which are manifest in every musical utterance she makes. She is not such an extraordinary singer as we have been led to expect, but a true artist, gifted with splendid vocal powers, controlled by rare taste and manifest in refined expression that has not a particle of coldness in it, but warmth, feeling and great dramatic power. Nevada's voice is not yet, we think, fully developed; it foretells for her greater achievements; its flexibility promises results that will greatly more add to her fame. Lewita is a pianist of fine attainments, and who by no means is deserving the caustic, not to say coarse criticisms visited upon him by some San Francisco journals. Vernet's voice is a pure tenor, resonant, of staying power, and broadly expressive. The drift into falsetto tones charged against him at San Francisco, was not discernible here. Buti's baritone is of good volume, but not robust, and his style is marred by a superabundance of tremulo effects. Casati is a violinist whose execution is remarkably fine. His style is bold and dashing, yet there is consummate sweetness in the limpid tones he evokes. His execution is firm, his intonation very nearly faultless and his stopping true in all respects. Without question he is a violinist of the higher order. Carano, the flutist of the troupe, did not appear, delays unavoidable, rendering it impossible to adjust the pitch of the piano to his instrument. As a whole, the concert was a thoroughly enjoyable one, the works presented being very nearly equally meritorious, and sufficiently diversified to produce what is essential in the popular concert, variety.

To-night, at the Opera House, "Rip Van Winkle" will be reproduced, with its beautiful scenery and new storm effects.

METROPOLITAN THEATER.—"Neck and Neck" drew a large audience at yesterday's matinee, and a good house at night. Mr. Stetson puts the sensational play upon the stage again this evening, with the execution scene and other startling situations.

SALSBURY'S TROUBADOURS. — Manager Simmons announces the engagement for three performances at the Metropolitan of the favorite Salsbury's Troubadours, who have been playing a very successful engagement at the Bush Street Theater, San Francisco. They will commence next Monday evening, and play the next night and at a matinee on Wednesday. The company includes Nate Salsbury and Miss Nellie McHenry, who are held in kindly remembrance by Sacramento theater-goers, and other artists of merit. The New York Sun says of the play and performance: "'Three of a Kind,' a farcical comedy, was played for the first time in this city at McKee Rankin's Theater last evening. It has all the dash and sparkle that made 'Green Room Fun' and 'The Brook' so enjoyable. The songs are witty and original. Nellie McHenry displays her usual witchery, and Salsbury himself is as quaint as ever. The play details the adventures of three New York clerks and Dolly Dashwood (Miss McHenry) at a country boarding house. One of the clerks falls in love with Dolly, who turns out to be the flame of the employer of the three men. The employer's discovery of what is going on ends in their dismissal. They starve for twelve weeks in a garret, when, through the kindness of an uncle, they go into business for themselves, Dolly marrying the man of her choice, and Jack Potts (Salsbury) the country girl who won his love at the farmhouse." Seats can be secured at Houghton's without extra charge.

CARLETON OPERA COMPANY.—The management of the Clunie Opera House are displaying great enterprise in their selection of attractions. Having presented Emma Nevada to the Sacramento public, they have now arranged for the appearance of the Carleton Opera Company, which will be December 3d and 4th, presenting on the first night "Nanon," and on the second "The Mikado," the latest sensations. They have recently been given by this combination at the Baldwin Theater, San Francisco, and in the most perfect manner, the press speaking in the highest terms not only of the performances but of the superb manner in which the operas were mounted. It is promised that they will be given here in a style equally creditable. The box sheet for the sale of reserved seats is now open at the opera house. Tickets for the dress circle will be $1 50; orchestra chairs, $1.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL.—A festival was held at Armory Hall, last evening, for the benefit of St. Rose Church, which was largely attended. Dancing was the principal feature. Floor director, George E. Hook. Floor Committee—D. J. Long, Ed. Sheehan, Joseph Genchlea, A. Wilson, T. Wiseman, A. W. O'Brien, Joseph Palm.

DONATIONS OF BOOKS REQUESTED.—Colonel Sheehan, of the First Artillery Regiment, has sent the following circular to citizens, accompanied by a postal card: "The officers' Board of the First Artillery Regiment, State militia, desire to establish a small library at the armory for the use of the officers and men. We believe this will result in good, both to those immediately concerned and the public. We therefore would solicit contributions of books from the people of this city. If you will kindly donate to us a few books, or one only, please note the same on the inclosed postal, and they will be called for and thankfully received."

AUCTION SALE OF A SALOON.—Sherburn & Smith will sell to-day at 10:30 A. M. at auction, the well-known saloon on Fourth street, between J and K, formerly kept by Klebitz & Green. An excellent opportunity will thus be afforded any one desirous of purchasing a good business stand. The saloon is complete, and besides the usual fixtures, there is a fire-proof safe, regulator clock, pictures, etc. The entire business will be sold as one lot, if a satisfactory bid is received; if not, the property will be sold in detail. Sale positive and terms cash.

BRIEF NOTES.

Jack Burke, the pugilist, went East by Wednesday evening's train.

The steamer San Joaquin No. 4 cleared for San Francisco yesterday with grain and merchandise.

The Skating Rink theatrical combination passed through from the east side of the Sierra to Stockton yesterday.

The pay car arrived here Wednesday evening, and yesterday paid off the railroad employes, after which it left on a trip to the south.

Many of the freight cars arriving from the hill yesterday morning were covered with snow, and the boys had much fun snowballing.

The November reception of the Bric-a-Brac Club is to be held to-night at the residence of George B. Katzenstein, Twelfth and O streets.

But one arrest was made yesterday—John Brown, by officer Frazee, for an assault with a deadly weapon, on the complaint of Thomas Burns.

Business was generally suspended in this city yesterday, and, the weather being pleasant, everybody passed a pleasant Thanksgiving Day.

Flags were displayed at half-mast on the public buildings, and many others, in the city yesterday, out of respect to the memory of Vice-President Hendricks.

The sluices of H. M. Crawford, at Michigan Bar, were robbed last Tuesday night. Mr. Crawford is a poor miner, with a large family. He thinks it was the work of Chinamen.

The Sacramento river has been rising slowly during the past twenty-four hours, and at 11 o'clock last night was up to 19 feet 8 inches—a rise of 4 inches. It still has a slight upward tendency.

Under the direction of the Street Commissioner a pipe has been passed through the little inside levee between R and S streets, to drain off the water that had accumulated near the Clunie warehouse.

A few days ago the following scores were made at the 200-yard target, over the Twelfth-street range: Ed. Sheehan 40, Hughes 42, Wm. Sheehan 37, Dolan 36. Five hundred yards—Hughes 46, Ed. Sheehan 41.

The Western passenger train, due here at 2:20 P. M., was about three hours behind time in its arrival yesterday, having waited at Lathrop to connect with the Southern Pacific train. Among the passengers brought were Emma Nevada and her company, from Los Angeles.

The prisoners at the county jail had a Thanksgiving tone imparted to their bill of fare yesterday through the liberal contributions of pies and apples from the New York Bakery. DeBernardi & Co. remembered the unfortunate inmates of the city jail, and sent them ducks for their dinner.

A man visited the city recently as agent for certain publications, and engaged a number of lady canvassers, agreeing to pay them $2 40 per day and 20 per cent. commission on their sales, but requiring each canvasser to pay him $2 50 for the prospectus furnished. Some of these lady canvassers, after endeavoring to secure subscriptions to the publications, and failing, called for their pay of $2 40 per day, but were then told that they were not on salary, but must get their pay out of the percentage upon books sold. They felt that they had been imposed upon, and reported the matter to the police, in order that the agent might be restrained from following up that line of business.

At the station-house, three or four days ago, there was a general cleaning up and repairing of desks and other furniture, and it was decided that a coat of varnish would be an improvement. And now the officers are all at outs with the dyspeptic-looking cook of the city prison. He announced, with the gravity of a master of the business, that it was unnecessary to go to any expense to procure the varnish, as material for the manufacture of an excellent article was already at hand—turpentine and molasses. The guileless officer of the night-watch allowed this mixture to be applied to the furniture one evening, expecting it to be dry next morning, and congratulated himself upon the fine appearance the articles presented after the application. Next morning the turpentine part was dry enough, but the molasses asserted itself, and ever since, when an officer seats himself upon a desk, or leans wearily against something else, it requires one or two more to remove him, and sometimes he has to borrow an overcoat to go out and skirmish for a pair of unmentionables. This may, in part, account for the few arrests made recently.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.—Union services were held yesterday in the Sixth-street M. E. Church, when Rev. Mr. Herrick, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, delivered an eloquent and appropriate sermon, which was listened to with marked attention. Services were also held at St. Rose and St. Paul churches. At the latter Rev. Carroll M. Davis delivered an eulogium upon the deceased Vice-President. He said Mr. Hendricks was a devout Christian, and had been a deacon of the Episcopal Church at Indianapolis for upwards of thirty years.

AUCTION SALE.—D. J. Simmons & Co. will sell at auction at 10:30 A. M. to-day, at No. 410 O street, furniture, carpets, etc., all in good condition. Sale positive.

That Double-width Wool Dress Stuff (close to a Ladies' Cloth), advertised a week or so ago, as "thoroughly seasonable, thoroughly stylish and thoroughly desirable in every way," went like a flash. You will remember the price was only 50 cents.

We are to open a second case of the self-same goods this morning!

Last week we had it in seven mixtures. To-day we shall show it in ten. Do you wonder that we caution you to come promptly in order to avoid disappointment?

YES!

We can at last answer that oft-repeated question: "Are you going to keep Toys this year?"
We are.

On account of space we have not been able to keep toys every year. In those years when we did not there was more or less disappointment. People knew about what our prices would be. Naturally they didn't relish the idea of having to buy elsewhere at a large advance. Now that our store is larger we hope to keep Toys every year. Our stock for this season is already here, arranged and ready for inspection as soon as you please. It's wisdom, however, to come early. The selection is better. The crowd less.

Further particulars within a day or so.

Decidedly English.

We have been fancying all along that we had an unusually deserving collection of men's neckwear. What are we to think now that an Eastern importer sends us a large case of the very latest conceits? We can't give particulars at present, because the ties haven't been marked, but a peep into a score or more of boxes shows that it is a collection rich in those English checks we have all read so much about in London and New York papers. Also, some effective things in Persian silks, long ties, etc.

But you can see for yourself, say after 8 or 9 o'clock this morning.

If Santa Claus Grows Practical.

If Santa Claus grows practical this year and brings baby something besides playthings, then what more cute and appropriate than a pretty little bonnet?

And such bonnets as we have here! Could anything be daintier? See how deftly each bow and puff has been made! Study the designs. Study the contrasts of colors. Note the airy grace that as a whole characterizes each one of these creations. Surely, these New York and European people are artists!
