"The Ouija."

THE WONDER OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY.

This most interesting and mysterious Talking Board has awakened great curiosity wherever shown.

It surpasses in its results second sight, mind reading or clairvoyance.

It consists of a small table placed upon a large board containing the alphabet and numerals. By simply resting the fingers of two persons upon the small table it moves, and to all intents and purposes becomes a living, sensible thing, giving intelligent answers to any questions that can be propounded.

Wonderful as this may seem the "OUIJA" was thoroughly tested at the United States Patent Office before the patent was allowed.

For sale by all first-class Toy Dealers and Stationers.

The Cathedral of the A. A. S. R., No. 1007 G street northwest, was thronged with ladies and gentlemen last night on the occasion of the public installation of officers of Harmony Lodge, No. 17, F. A. A. M. The officers installed were L. R. Ginn, W. M.; P. McC. Criswell, S. W.; F. S. Williams, S. W.; O. S. Firmin, treasurer; S. Baxter, M. of C.; L. H. York, chaplain; A. W. Johnson, S. D.; G. S. Plumbers at a Banquet.

The Owen House was the scene last night of a happy gathering of the Master Plumbers' Association, which enjoyed its annual banquet. Previous to the banquet the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, James Ragan; vice-president, E. F. Brook; secretary and treasurer, James Cunningham; sergeant-at-arms, Joseph Quinter.

The following gentlemen were present: James Ragan, John Mitchell, Ed. J. Hannan, R. G. Campbell, D. Hannan, W. W. Dourighty, James Lockhead, R. A. Batchlor, George A. Green, R. McBeee, Joseph Quinter, J. I. Aitison, Albert Ward, James Nolion, John Grayham, F. N. Deverux, Charles Lockhead, James Cunnomber, C. S. Hutchson.

Another Batch of Vagrants.

Following the example set by the officers of the Second Precinct in making a raid on Eimer's place, the officers of the Third Precinct last night raided several saloons where vagrants and disreputable characters are known to congregate. The places raided were McDavitt's, corner of Third and D streets southwest; Merring's, corner of Third and Maryland avenue southwest, and Driscoll's, corner of Third and K streets southwest. Eleven suspicious colored persons were arrested and charged with vagrancy. William Henry Lee, William Thompson, John Hall, Isaac Shenkland, Frank Pinkney and Pinkney Turner were required to give bonds or go to the workhouse by Judge Miller to-day.

She Drank Laudanum.

Molly Brown, a flashily-attired colored woman, wearing a blue silk dress, a fur cloak and a jaunty bonnet, was a conspicuous figure in the Police Court dock to-day. Officer Baily testified that she was an habitual laudanum drinker, and that he frequently found her in a disorderly condition on the streets. Judge Miller ordered her to furnish a bond or go to the farm.

Death of a Nurse.

Mrs. Jennie E. Giles died yesterday at the Nurses' Home, on O street, after an illness of six weeks of typhoid fever, aged 34 years. She was a graduate of the Mary Fletcher Training School for Nurses of Burlington, Vt., and came to Washington in September, 1885. She was a great favorite with both the doctors and patients.

LOCAL TALKS.

What Persons, Prominent and Otherwise, Find to Interest Them.

William M. Handy—There is a lively three-cornered fight in progress in Philadelphia over the Republican nomination for Mayor. The Mayor of that city has probably more power than the chief magistrate of any other city. He, through his subordinates, has control over nearly every department of the city government, and, as Mayor Fitler has shown, he is in a position to do pretty much what he pleases. The men who want the Republican nomination this year are Allen B. Rorke, Edwin S. Stuart and William B. Smith. The leading candidate at present is Stuart. He is the president of the Young Republican Club, and has been indorsed by nearly every club in his party. He is very popular, and as an elector on the Blaine ticket in 1884 polled the largest vote ever received in the State.

Smith, who is the leader after Stuart, was once Mayor. His motto is, "Everything goes," and he is making his fight on that issue. While he was Mayor Philadelphia was anything but slow. Prize-fighting, gambling and illegal liquor selling, although contrary to law, was not punished, and it was a very disgraceful dive that was ever raided by his blue-coats. As a result the "tough" element is practically unanimous in his favor. Rorke is the labor candidate. He has been indorsed by the United Labor League and kindred organizations. Should Stuart receive the nomination it would not surprise me to see the others run as independent candidates, with a Democrat also in the field.

Officer Joe Acton—There are mighty few union depots in the country where you will find fewer loafers hanging about than you will in the Baltimore and Potomac depot here, and I very frequently hear strangers pass remarks about it. There was a time when it was a very hard task to tell who the legitimate travelers were or who were the loafers, but we have them down pretty pat now. These nights they will drop in out of the chilly air for the want of some other place to go, but they are not permitted to stay long. We have all of the old rounders spotted, and they are getting so that they do not venture near the depot. Occasionally a new man will steal a march on us and take a quiet little snooze in a seat, but it does not happen very often.

Enoch Pratt—This inflation of silver is going to ruin the country; we do not know what we are coming to or where we are going to land. Our warehouses are piled up with merchandise, and at the same time the country will be piled up too much with silver. This, however, is not so bad as free coinage would be. Free coinage would ruin the country. Pig iron is much better for the country than too much silver.

Frank Bell—I can't see why men want to loaf around the city at night when they can hie themselves away to the woods and enjoy a 'possum hunt. So far I have caught seventy-three and have had barrels of fun. The 'possum crop this year is better than for several years past.

Charles H. Weatherly—I am anxious to see Washington get up a gentleman's riding tournament. It would take well, and I believe there would be no trouble in carrying it successfully through. I know of a number of gentlemen who favor a tournament.

A Correspondent—I was glad to see in yesterday's CRITIC a special from Philadelphia stating that George Jacobs, a lawyer of Mifflintown, who was a classmate of Senator-elect Irby of South Carolina, denying that Irby was a coward. More than once when Irby and I were youngsters we have fought all over the old red hills of Laurence, and there is not a cowardly bone in his body. The man who doubts John Irby's courage will get badly left. He is a brave man, a gentleman and a Democrat, and in the Senate will do honor to South Carolina and his people.

John D. Gilbert—This is the first time that I have been in Washington since the close of the war; and I am much surprised to find how much the city has improved. I tell you it doesn't look much like it did when I came marching in over the Long Bridge at the end of three years' service in the rebellion. I rode all over the northwestern section this afternoon and I think it is one of the prettiest cities, without exception, that I have ever seen. Where there used to be tumble-down squatters' shanties, vacant lots and almost impassable streets there are now some of the most handsome houses in the Capital City. There was one section in particular where I was offered a tract of land at a nominal figure, and I find that this same parcel of property is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. I have seen thrifty numerical cities grow up in Kansas within the last ten years and have followed the Western boom carefully, but I don't see but that some of the Eastern cities are keeping pace with the West, and Washington can certainly be numbered among them.

Golden Grail Officers.

At a meeting last night of Columbia Commandery, No. 80, Order of the Golden Grail, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Past commander, Benjamin H. Harlan; commander, Calvin G. Townsend; vice commander, A. J. Alden; scribe, W. A. Hartman; master of finance, Albert C. Ridgeway; guardian of the exchequer, George W. Howland; prelate, Charles G. Townsend; master-at-arms, John S. Tomlinson; inside guard, A. B. Bennett; outside guard, Howard G. Douglass; trustees, Captain A. F. Dinsmore, G. P. Hopkins and Mathew Dinsmore.

Fined for Assault.

Edward Roland, a barkeeper at the corner of Second and O streets, appeared on the witness stand in the Police Court to-day and exhibited a gash five inches long on his left cheek. Walter Denham stood in the dock charged with having inflicted it. The two had a quarrel over a colored girl named Hetty Denman, the result of which was that Denham knocked Roland down and besides gashing him in the face, chest and arm threw a lighted lamp at his head and set the house on fire. Judge Miller made the fine $35.

A Vagrant With Money.

Edward Wright, a young colored man, was arrested last night and taken to the Fourth Precinct station, where he was charged with vagrancy. When the station-keeper started to lock him up Wright produced $15 and offered it as collateral, but the station-keeper insisted on having $20. In the meantime a young colored girl went to the station and paid the remainder of the money, whereupon Wright was released.

Arrested on Suspicion.

Eddie Howard, a young colored boy, was arrested in the Sixth Precinct yesterday afternoon by Officer Muloy and locked up. The lad had a valuable blanket in his possession which he claimed had been given him by a stranger. The officer felt satisfied that it had been stolen and therefore took possession of both boy and blanket.

EXPRESSIVENESS OF OLDER ENGLISH.

Dr. Robert Fletcher Reads an Interesting and Instructive Paper.

The regular meeting of the Anthropological Society of Washington was held last evening in the Assembly Hall of the Cosmos Club. A large and interested audience, consisting of ladies and members of the society, was present. The paper of the evening was read by Dr. Robert Fletcher upon "The Vigor and Expressiveness of Older English." The speaker introduced his remarks by stating that the subject belonged to anthropology only in its widest sense. The society, he said, would for one evening at least leave the poor Indian at rest, even if he would not remain so himself.

By older English, the doctor said he did not mean the English of the days of Chaucer, but rather that of the Elizabethan epoch. That period was not only a revival of literature and the arts in England, but also all over Europe and especially in Italy. At the same time the renaissance took place in Italy and the Reformation in Germany.

From the days of Marlowe to those of Shakespeare was the springtime of English literature. Then it was that the drama was characterized by a power and freedom of expression, and there was no censuring press to expunge and cast out too glowing expressions. The speaker referred to Sackville's "Mirror for Magistrates" as containing a powerful description of war and death that is equaled by nothing of the modern writers. Strong imaginations and a great love of personification and metaphor added much to the force of the older dramas. The Dr. Faustus of Christopher Marlowe, said Mr. Fletcher, contains a far sublimer conception of hell than is found in either Dante or Milton.

An epigrammatic terseness, a daring use of metaphor and a disregard for the conventionalities are characteristic of the great works of the older poets. Another source of vigor and expressiveness is found in the frequent use of antithesis and epithets which the old writers employed. Curtness and brevity also lend considerable aid to the force of their works. A certain quaintness of style rather than vigor of expression resulted from alliteration, a figure which was perfectly used by Spenser.

Dr. Fletcher used a number of selections from the old dramatists to illustrate the power of their expressions and concluded with a humorous sketch from Marston upon the subject of the etymology of the word dunce.

The address was received with evident appreciation by the audience, and at its conclusion the topic was generally discussed. Professor Otis T. Mason, in a few remarks, congratulated Dr. Fletcher upon the deep research which he had shown in his paper. Professor Gregory and General Brown also participated in the discussion. During his remarks General Brown spoke of the manner in which the English language had deteriorated, and took the newspapers severely to task for not setting a better and higher standard, since they were now the public instructors.

FREE KINDERGARTENS.

The Commissioners Asked to Further the Project Before Congress.

At the last meeting of the School Board it adopted a set of resolutions favoring the addition of free kindergartens to the present school system, which was transmitted to the Commissioners yesterday with the urgent request that they be sent to Congress at an early day.

In his last report (which accompanied the resolutions) Superintendent Powell says: "I am of the opinion that the establishment of the kindergarten system will reach children who later in life form the truant element that soon degenerates into greater evils. The new idea will enable us to discipline these young people before they become incorrigible and lose their self-control."

Mr. Powell recommends that twenty teachers be added to the present number, as kindergarten instructors, at an expense of $13,700.

This, with $10,000 added to the rent fund and $10,000 added to the manual training fund, would enable the board to establish twenty kindergartens.

Fined for Carrying a Revolver.

John Sayers was one of the colored men arrested by the Fourth Precinct officers last night. He attempted to take a revolver out of his pocket and pass it over to his father. He was detected in the act, and in the Police Court to-day he was charged with both vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons. A fine of $50 was imposed and also sixty days in the workhouse.
