HINTS AND HELPS

COLD MEAT COOKERY.

The English housekeeper of moderate means pays great attention to the re-cooking of cold meat, and it must be confessed that she is more fortunate in her efforts than the average American. The secret of her success lies in never allowing meat that is being cooked a second time to come to boiling heat, and another in the choice of method in regard to it. For instance, cold boiled meat does not hash well, but makes excellent fricassees, or is good served with sauce piquant, or minced, whereas roast meat is best recooked either as hash, or in the case of rare roast beef, grilled with onions like steak. Some plain recipes for cold meat cookery may not come amiss.

ENGLISH HASH is not in the least like that which goes by the same name in America. To prepare it, cut cold roast mutton into moderately thin slices and flour them slightly. Make a rich, thick brown gravy, either of stock, or by browning an onion in butter, adding flour and water, and stirring till it boils; throw in a couple of cloves and a tablespoonful of vinegar; stir till perfectly smooth, then run through a sieve. Let this gravy boil up, and then withdraw it from the fire until it is below boiling point, lay in the slices of meat and let them steam in it for five minutes, add a little ketchup if liked and serve with sippets of toasted bread cut into triangles.

FRICASSEE OF COLD BOILED MEAT.—Make a gravy of flour, butter, and white stock, or milk, add a clove of mace, or a laurel leaf, and a few button mushrooms; let it boil. Have the meat cut up into small square pieces, not over half an inch thick, place them in the sauce after it has left off boiling, and serve with cut lemon round the dish.

COLD ROAST BEEF AND ONIONS.—The beef must be quite rare. Cut it in thick inch slices, pepper and salt them. Slice up a couple of large onions and fry them a rich brown, take them out of the frying pan and make a gravy in it of flour and stock. Lay the slices of beef on the gridiron and heat them thoroughly, slightly browning on either side, place them round a dish with the fried onions in the center, and pour the gravy over the whole.

COLD BOILED MUTTON is best stewed either in caper sauce or in parsley and butter; in either case, make the sauce, cut the meat in medium slices and let it heat up as in hash. In dishing it up, lay the meat slice by slice in a flat dish and pour the sauce over it.

COLD VEAL makes excellent fricassee, mince or curry.

COLD PORK can best be warmed as curry or in croquets.

FOR CURRY OR ANY COLD WHITE MEAT—CHICKEN, PORK OR VEAL.—Cut the meat into thick, small square bits. Fry a sliced onion and a clove of garlic in butter, sprinkling them with curry powder; when of a rich, golden brown make a gravy by the addition of stock, thicken it, pass through a sieve, add the juice of a lemon, a quarter of an apple, a teaspoonful of curry powder. Lay in the meat, and let it heat through; serve with boiled rice. To boil properly, each grain separate, have a deep saucepan full of boiling water, as it boils up throw in the rice and let it boil fast for twenty minutes, or until the water evaporates, move to the side of the fire and let it dry off. Serve either round the curry or in a separate vegetable dish.

MINCED MUTTON OR VEAL.—Have the meat perfectly free from sinew, fat or bone, chopped very fine with a little grated lemon peel. Melt an ounce of butter in a saucepan, add a little flour and milk; stir well and pour on the minced meat. Serve with tippets of toast bread.

POTATO PIE can be made of any cold meat. Cut up the meat and flour it well, chop an onion, put together into a deep pie dish. Cover with stock or water, add any flavoring that is liked. Boil and mash a good quantity of potatoes. Spread them two inches thick over the top of the meat like a crust, brush over with raw egg and bake in a quick oven.

CROQUETS OF COLD BEEF OR MUTTON.—Chop the meat finely, sprinkling it with flour, and at the same time chop an onion and a sprig of parsley. Add the same weight of breadcrumbs. Mold together with a raw egg, and shape into oval cakes, or egg-shaped balls. Melt enough lard in a frying pan to more than cover them, as it boils lay them in turning them till thoroughly brown on all sides.

COLD VEAL makes excellent patties. Have ready some good plain paste, as for pies, mince the veal with a little grated lemon peel, add flour and enough water to moisten it. Line patty pans with the paste, pour on the mince, cover it with more paste, scallop the edges and bake in a quick oven.—Home Journal.

A DEAD MAN'S FINGER.—"I got a twenty dollar fee to-day for a dead man's finger," said a well-known Louisville physician. "An old negro woman who claims to be a great voudoo doctor has been pestering me with a request for such an article, and finally I went to the dissecting room of a medical college and procured it. She gladly paid the money for it too. She makes a very efficacious charm—so she claims—in which the dead finger is the principal ingredient. The charm is said to be a sure mascot for those who want to win on horse races. Put the charm in your pocket and you can't help picking the winner—so the old woman says. She was very anxious, therefore, for me to sell her the finger before the races were over and was greatly gratified when I did so."—Louisville Post.

Why suffer sleepless nights when your baby is not well? You can buy Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup at all drug stores for a quarter of a dollar.

Recently, at the South African diamond fields, a Kaffir was suspected of being in possession of uncut diamonds, and was pursued by the officers of the law. When they came up with him he had just shot one of his oxen. Then they proceeded to search him. They ransacked his scanty clothing, they tried all the usual processes, but never a diamond did they find, and finally they had to retire discomfited. Then the Kaffir proceeded to pick out from the dead ox's carcass all the diamonds with which his gun had been loaded, and which he had fired into the unfortunate beast when he saw the officers approaching.

SOMEWHAT EMBARRASSED.—Jinks was a young man who had been married a year, and he was telling a friend how different he was when single.

"Were you much embarrassed when you 'popped the question?' asked his friend.

"Embarrassed? Well, I should say I was. I owed $1,500 for board and clothes and one thing or other, and didn't have a darned cent to pay it with.—Texas Siftings.

Between disease and the many cheap preparations which are palmed off under the name of blood purifiers, take your chances with disease, until you can procure Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the only reliable blood purifier. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine.

COULD GET HER SOME.—"Sir," said a lady, out at Sunday's baseball game, as she lifted up the skirts of her dress, preparatory to sitting down, "do you chew tobacco?"

"No, madam," he answered politely; "I don't. But I can get you a chew from Daddy Reeves. Fine cut or plug?"

And he smiled as sweetly as an angel, and wondered why she swept away and took a seat where she could not tell a foul ball from one that went to center field.—Peoria Transcript.

Every wife and mother in the country should know the great value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, as a blood purifier. It gives tone, health, and strength, to the vital organs, corrects all irregularities, and expels impurities from the system. Young and old use it. Price $1.

PINING FOR SYMPATHY.—Dying Benedict—I bequeath every dollar to my wife. Have you got that down?

Lawyer—Yes.

Dying Benedict—On condition that she marries within a year.

Lawyer—But why insist on that?

Dying Benedict—Because I want somebody to be sorry that I died.—Harper's Bazar.

HE HAD NO CHANCE.—"I may look pretty rough now, sir," remarked the tramp, "but I've seen the time when I had only to reach out my arm to pick up a handful of diamonds."

"Well, here's a quarter, but you should have looked out sharper."

"I did sir; but the fact is they were watching me too close."—Jewellers' Weekly.

NOT FATTENING.—Mr. A.—After Browning, which of the English poets do you most admire?

Miss R. (of Boston, thoughtfull)—The Lake School and Scott; but for enduring mental food, which gently nourishes, but does not excite, I prefer Crabbe's Tales.

Mr. P. (from Chicago, who has heard the last dozen word)—Gosh! what a diet! no wonder she's thin.

Contrary to Tradition.—'Young man,' he said solemnly, 'do you realize that the truly wise man doesn't think that he knows as much as he really does know?' 'Oh, yes, sir,' was the reply, 'and the man who isn't truly wise thinks he knows it all, and when he jumps in he generally gets there with both feet.'

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of Cutting Teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers; there is on mistake about it. It cures Diarrhœa, regulates the Stomach and Bowels, cures Wind Colic, softens the Gums, reduces Inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" for children teething is pleasant to the taste and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price twenty-five cents per bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind.

To Assist Nature

In restoring diseased or wasted tissue is all that any medicine can do. In pulmonary affections, such as Colds, Bronchitis, and Consumption, the mucous membrane first becomes inflamed, then accumulations form in the air-cells of the lungs, followed by tubercles, and, finally, destruction of the tissue. It is plain, therefore, that, until the hacking cough is relieved, the bronchial tubes can have no opportunity to heal. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral the inflamed membrane, arrests the wasting process, and leaves no injurious results. This is why it is more highly esteemed than any other pulmonary specific.

Soothes and Heals

L. D. Bixby, of Bartonsville, Vt., writes: "Four years ago I took a severe cold, which was followed by a terrible cough. I was very sick, and confined to my bed about four months. My physician finally said I was in consumption, and that he could not help me. One of my neighbors advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and before I had taken half a bottle was able to go out. By the time I had finished the bottle I was well, and have remained so ever since."

Alonzo P. Daggett, of Smyrna Mills, Me., writes: "Six years ago, I was a traveling salesman, and at that time was suffering with Lung Trouble.

For months I was unable to rest nights. I could seldom lie down, had frequent choking spells, and was often compelled to seek the open air for relief. I was induced to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which helped me. Its continued use has entirely cured me, and, I believe, saved my life."
