On The Other Islands

New Tract To Open

The First Trust Company of Hilo will open what is known as the Halai hill land tract in the spring as a new residence section of the second city. Included in the tract is the land running mauka from School street to the second Halai hill, and Halai street will be extended through the Weight property to be first hill. A system of streets will be laid cut through the property.

Believes Navy Aero Station Will Come

Twenty-four naval airplanes, with complete squadron of naval airmen and mechanics to handle the machines, may be located here permanently, according to word brought back by Joe Stickney, naval aviator, who returned today from an eastern seaboard naval training school. Stickney said such was contemplated in the bill which Secreary of the Navy Daniels is advocating for passage.

Hilo Board Of Trade Will Battle With "Flu"

The Hilo board of trade has appointed a committee of 15 to take charge of the work of stamping out influenza on the Big Island. One of the recommandations of the committee is co-operation with the federal authorities in the rigid inspection of passengers traveling between the several islands, particularly at the port of debarkation, with power to quarantine any suspicious cases.

Submarine Chasers Coming To Pearl Harbor

Six submarine chasers of the latest type have been ordered to Pearl Harbor from the coast, according to word received by Rear Admiral R. N. Dyle, commandant at Pearl Harbor. The submarine chasers are 110 feet long each, and will be of the modern kind They are expected here in the early spring.

Architect Dickey Arrives To Handle Big Honolulu Project

C. W. Dickey, the well-known Oakland architect, formerly a Maui resident, arrived in Honolulu last week to take up again with prospective builders the question of beginning work on the Bishop street business center scheme. It is understood that he is particularly interested in the plans of the proposed Castle & Cooke building.

The Bishop Co., Ltd., the First National Bank, and a number of other business houses of Honolulu are planning to build simultaneously on property centering on Bishop and Merchant streets.

Hilo Supervisors Will Not Resign

"We have no intention of resigning our positions as members of the board of supervisors of the county of Hawaii," declared Chairman Samuel Kauhane when asked if there was any truth in the rumors that are going around town to that effect, says the Hilo Post-Herald.

Supervisors A. M. Cabrinha also declared most emphatically that he and his colleagues were not even thinking of taking any such step under fire.

"I feel," said Supervisors Cabrinha, "that we have done nothing wrong and that there is no graft or malfeasance in office on our part. There may be attempts made to impeach all of the supervisors, but we do not know if this will be done. However, we are not going to resign and I would like to know who started such a story. I have heard it several times. It looks like a move made by someone to whom the wish is father to the thought."

W. O. Smith Retires As Secretary Sugar Planters

W. O. Smith, for 23 years secretary and treasurer of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' Association, has resigned, and at a general meeting held this week the resignation was accepted with expressisons of regret, Mr. Smith had wished for some time to retire.

The association wished to retain the services of Mr. Smith as a trustee and, at the same time, promote Assistant Secretary Royal D. Mead to succeed the retiring secretary. In order to do that an amendment to the by-laws was necessary to the end that the secretary of the association need not be, also, director. That amendment was approved, as were also a few other minor amendments to the rules.

To Ask Legislature For Fish Hatchery

The territorial legislature will be requested at its next session to appropriate sufficient money for the establishment and maintenance of a small fish hatchery at Honolulu. Judge W. S. Wise told the Hilo Ad Club at its regular luncheon, says the Hilo Tribune.

It is necessary to maintain a hatchery, Mr. Wise told the diners, or the islands may be faced with a serious fish shortage. Even now, he said, the supply does not nearly meet the demand because the ponds are rapidly being depleted of their fish without any effort being made to restock them.

"For some years past," the speaker said, "I have been interested in obtaining better protection for the islands' supply of fish and game. While visiting the mainland recently I talked to several members of the California fish commission and obtained most interesting information regarding the character of the state's protective legislation."

PEANUT CROP IS SHORT

DALLAS, TEX., Jan. 20—(By Associated Press.)—A shortage of peanuts has resulted from unfavorable weather conditions in Texas last summer, according to big dealers here. B. W. Higginbotham, one of the leading buyers, said the Texas crop this year would be only 25 percent of normal.

The severe drought last summer prevented farmers from rasing more than a small share of their usual crop. The drought was followed by excessive rains that caused damage before the peanuts had reached maturity.

The government estimated showed that 15,000,000 bushels of peanuts were raised in Texas in 1917. One section which in 1917 produced 2,000 carloads, this year produced only 300 carloads.

Conditions in east and south Texas were better than in northwest Texas which heretofore has been the principal district of production.

Blind Soldiers To Have Real Training

How Uncle Sam Is Planning To Make Handicapped Men Independent And Happy — There Are Many Things Blind Men Can Learn

BALTIMORE, January 15—(Associated Press Correspondence) Seventy-one of the 200 men of the American fighting forces who were blinded in the war now are being sheltered, treated or educated in the Red Cross Institute for the Blind at Baltimore. The institution has been designated as a United States general hospital and is called "Evergreen". Colonel James Bordley, director of the institute said that all the Americans blinded in the war would be brought here for a course of training as this was the only training school for the blind maintained by the government. He described the morale of the blinded men as wonderful.

The men are first treated in the hospital, says Colonel Bordley in a statement, after which they are taught to use a typewriter and read and write Braille—raised type for the blind. Then they receive special training to develop the sense of touch.

"After this fundamental hand training, the men are given special education to fit them for the calling in which they are interested and are qualified successfully to follow", says the statement.

"Thus, those with inclination and the inherent ability are trained for such occupations as stenographers, salesmen, correspondents, retail store managers. (In connection with this latter occupation, plans have been already made to open a chain of retail stores, each of which will have a blind soldier as manager.)

"Those with a love of out-of-doors and have a natural aptitude for out-of-door life, will be trained for chicken raising, bee-keeping, truck gardening and such like occupations. Those of such calibre and a mentality that fits them for industrial life are trained, not merely in shop practice, but for some particular job that they can fill and in which they will feel happy.

"Men with a high quality of education and ability that fits them for professional life will be given such special education as will enable them to follow their chosen career—such as law, massage, literature.

"Men who know say that the blind man is handicapped over the sighted, 30 percent. The men are being given 30 percent and more educational training than their sighted fellow workers, thereby minimizing this handicap.

"While a man is being prepared for this future career, the position for which he is being fitted is being secured. In a word, he is helped to help himself—he is encouraged to equip himself to be a good citizen."

The hospital is located upon the large, adjoining estates of Mrs. T. Harrison Garrett and Richard H. Pleasants on the northern outskirts of the city, which were loaned to the government by their owners. The buildings are hidden in the midst of trees and gardens.

Dr. Smith, the dentist, well known in this island, will be at the Fernandez Hotel, Paia, Wednesday, February 5th.

A Self-Acting Jury

A jury recently met to inquire into a case of suicide. After sitting through the evidence the twelve men retired, and, after deliberating, returned with the following verdict:
