SAM'S OYSTER SALOON.—This NEW AND EXTENSIVE SALOON, which is on a scale greatly superior to any other establishment of the kind in the South, is just opened at 101 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Mr. WEIR, better known as "SAM," has been connected with the business in this city for the last nine years, having commenced with Mr. Holbrook, who first established the first Oyster Saloon in the Second Municipality, remained with him till his death, and has continued at the business ever since. With such an experience, and an inflexible determination to serve the public faithfully with the best in his line, "Sam" solicits of his numerous friends a share of their patronage. A large sum has been expended in fitting up the SALOON and providing its BAR with the CHOICEST LIQUORS that can be procured. SERVANTS, well known for their excellent qualities, have been employed, including the very best Cooks. The LARDER will always be supplied with the CHOICEST FISH AND GAME; and the OYSTERS SERVED are obtained exclusively for this establishment; in short, no expense or trouble will be spared to render this Saloon worthy the patronage of this liberal and judicious community. mh16 tf

They also announce that the BAR of this house will open to-day, the 14th inst., at 5 P. M., under the best of management, and furnished with the choicest Wines and Liquors.

ja26 tf LANE & DUNN, Proprietors.

BLADON SPRINGS will be open for the reception of visitors on the first day of June. Extensive improvements have been made during the past Winter, and 400 to 450 persons can be comfortably accommodated. Efficient assistance has been secured, and the proprietors flatter themselves that they are much better prepared to give satisfaction this than any previous season. No exertions upon their part will be spared to render the stay of those who may favor them with their company pleasant and agreeable.

je2 taspl CONNER & HENRY, Proprietors.

MADISONVILLE HOTEL.—The sub- scriber having leased the above Hotel, will open the same on the 25th inst. Having large and airy Rooms, he will be able to accommodate families in a very comfortable manner. As it is his intention to keep his table supplied with every delicacy of the season, he hopes to meet a fair share of patronage. The terms for Board are:

Per Day $1 50
Per Week 7 00

Attached to the Hotel is a BILLIARD ROOM, TEN PIN ALLEYS and BAR ROOM. The Bar will be supplied with the best of Liquors.

my19 2m J. HARGRAVE McKAY.

HOLLYWOOD HOUSE, Eastern Shore of Mobile Bay, FREEMAN & SMITH, Proprietors.—This establishment, so well and favorably known for its beautiful scenery, elevated and airy location, its fine walks, shady groves, splendid shower baths, salt water bathing with its firm sandy bottom, excellent roads running in various directions, with the entire absence of musquitoes, renders this one of the pleasantest places to spend the warm season to be found in the Southern country. The fact of its having been crowded from three to four months every season, from the beginning, is good evidence of its being the right sort of a place.

The past two seasons not one half the applicants from the city of New Orleans alone could be accommodated.

Many alterations and additions have been made during the past winter. The DINING ROOM is much larger, and can now seat two hundred and forty persons. A BILLIARD SALOON will be added to the other amusements. Several more SLEEPING APARTMENTS have been erected.

The proprietors will be untiring in their efforts to please. There is now a daily communication by steam with Mobile, and shortly a new low pressure boat will be on the route, and make several trips a day.

☞ This establishment is now ready for visitors.

WILLARD FREEMAN,
JAMES B. SMITH.

Hollywood, Baldwin county, Ala., May 24, 1852. my27 3maW

MAGNOLIA HOUSE, Biloxi, Miss.— Mrs. C. M. DEVER respectfully informs her old friends and patrons, and the public generally, that this Hotel is now open for the reception of visitors. This house is not inferior in the points of locality and accommodations to any hotel on the sea coast. The BALL ROOM surpasses in dimensions any similar room in Biloxi, and is admirably adapted to BALLS, PARTIES and public gatherings generally, at which occasions it will be let on reasonable terms. In addition to the ball Room, accommodations are prepared for at least fifty persons more than in previous seasons.

Her TABLE, it will be her constant care to provide amply with the best that this and the neighboring markets afford.

Fine and roomy BATH HOUSES are adjacent to the Hotel, for the convenience of Boarders.

The BAR is supplied with choice Liquors.

The ICE-CREAM SALOON also adjoins the Hotel.

A LIVERY STABLE is attached to the Hotel.

PLEASURE BOATS are kept in readiness at all times.

Thankful for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to her, she respectfully requests, what it will be her effort to deserve, a share of public favor.

Visitors will be landed at the Wharf of the Hotel, if they notify the Captain of the steamer of their wishes. Biloxi, May 3, 1852 3m

BILOXI HOUSE, Biloxi, Miss.—The pub- lic are respectfully informed that this establishment will be opened for the reception of visitors, under the management of J. W. NIXON, on the first day of June. Attached to the house will be found a BAR and BILLIARD ROOM, TEN PIN ALLEYS and BATH HOUSES. The TABLE will always be supplied with the delicacies of the Sea Coast and the NewOrleans Market. The house is surrounded by large and magnificent Live Oak, Mulberry, Hickory, Magnolia and Bay Trees, offering to the eye a fine prospect, as well as giving a dense shade even when the sun is most vertical. This Hotel offers stronger inducements to families and children than any other house on the coast, on account of the green lawn in front, the area of which is about two acres.

☞ A liberal deduction will be made to families. my18 3m

GREEN OAKS HOTEL, Biloxi, Miss.— This famed and popular Summer retreat, so generally known throughout the Southern country, under the management of Mrs. ELIZABETH PRADAT and her son, JOHN B. PRADAT, situated about one mile distant from the village of Biloxi, will be opened on the 1st of June for the reception of visitors.

The "GREEN OAKS" is too well known to need an extended notice. For many years the popularity of the establishment has been steadily increasing. The many natural advantages, commanding the finest view presented on the Lake, and unrivaled in its pure salt water as it flows from the Gulf, have not failed to impress favorably the many visitors from NewOrleans, Mobile and the surrounding country.

During the Winter the proprietor have made many improvements and additions. The BAR and BILLIARD ROOMS are thoroughly arranged and fitted up, and SAIL BOATS will be at all times at the service of the visitors, free of charge—also CLARET at Dinner.

CARRIAGES and HORSES may be procured at any moment.

In addition, the celebrated BRASS BAND of NewOrleans is engaged, and a BALL may be expected twice every week.

Visitors wishing to stop at the GREEN OAKS, are requested to notify the Captains of the Steamers, who will land them at the wharf of the Hotel.

☞ The attention of the public is respectfully called to the following testimonials in favor of the celebrated BRIDGEWATER PAINT. It is unnecessary for the Agents to more than add, that after EIGHT MONTHS use in the South, the character of the Paint is firmly established, and it is now offered to the public as the best FIRE AND WEATHER PROTECTOR EVER DISCOVERED.

CERTIFICATE OF JNO. F. MILLER, OF ATTAKAPAS

In July last I was induced to apply the Bridgewater Mineral Paint to my Sugar-house, and, in every respect, it has exceeded my expectations and the representations made by the Agents, Messrs. G. C. BOGERT & CO. I cheerfully add my testimony to the numerous ones embraced in the Agents' circular, and recommend the same to planters and others as the best FIRE AND WEATHER PROTECTOR I have ever known. Where I have applied it, it has been exposed to the sun since last July, and has neither blistered nor cracked, and has formed a solid metallic surface, which has proved entirely impervious.

(Signed) JOHN F. MILLER.

CERTIFICATE OF CAPTAIN ST. CLAIR THOMASSON, OF STEAMER MAGNOLIA.

Having painted the hurricane deck of the passenger steamer MAGNOLIA, under my command, with the BRIDGEWATER PAINT, I cheerfully recommend it for its IMPERVIOUS qualities, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it SUPERIOR, in my judgment, to any mineral paint before the public, and believe it to be a CERTAIN PROTECTION AGAINST THE EFFECTS OF SPARKS AND CINDERS. It has also proved ENTIRELY WATERPROOF on my decks, after three months use. (Signed,) ST. C. THOMASSON.

NewOrleans, December 9, 1851.

CERTIFICATE OF CAPTAIN WILLIAM BROWN, OF TOWBOAT PORPOISE.

I have used the BRIDGEWATER PAINT, for which Messrs. G. C. BOGERT & CO. are Agents, on the hurricane deck of the Towboat PORPOISE. The Paint has been on about three months, and SPARKS and CINDERS CONSTANTLY falling upon it has had NO EFFECT WHATEVER.

In about four weeks it became a PERFECT SLATE, and I am satisfied of its possessing all the qualities necessary to insure it a CERTAIN PROTECTION against the effects of SPARKS and CINDERS. I confidently recommend the BRIDGEWATER PAINT for the purposes set forth in the Agents' Circular.

(Signed) WM. BROWN, Captain of Towboat Porpoise.

CERTIFICATE OF THE MANAGERS AND AGENTS OF LOUISIANA DRY DOCK CO.

Having had the LOUISIANA DRY DOCK painted with the BRIDGEWATER PAINT, and its merits thoroughly tested, we fully concur in opinion with Captain Thomasson of the MAGNOLIA, and Captain Brown of the PORPOISE. We cheerfully recommend said PAINT as a SUPERIOR ARTICLE.

CERTIFICATE OF JOSEPH BENSON, PAINTER.

I have used the BRIDGEWATER PAINT, for the past five months, on brick and plastered buildings, and on tin, shingle and canvas roofs, and in every instance it has given the fullest satisfaction.

From tests and experiments made under my immediate direction, I can testify to its being PROOF AGAINST THE EFFECTS OF SPARKS AND CINDERS, and a protection against leaks. I consider it far superior to any Mineral Paint I have ever seen, and invaluable for all out-door purposes—possessing qualities that particularly recommend it for use in a Southern climate. JOSEPH BENSON, Painter,

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE CONSOLIDATED CITY OF NEW ORLEANS.

NINETTE.

'Tis sunset, come with me, Ninette,
My boat is on the bay;
Come sail an hour on yonder lake,
And list what I shall say.
I will not talk of love, Ninette,
Thy face with frowns to fill;
Hearts never break if they forget,
And those forget who will.

'Tis folly all, the idle prate
Of singleness in love,
A moon-struck poet's whim, Ninette,
A whim, as I can prove.
I loved thee once, and long, and well,
Yet found thee still unkind;
Now thou may'st search all Switzerland,
A freer heart to find.

See yonder, from that cottage shade,
Behind the roses white,
Look forth fair Zurich's fairest maid,
To watch my bark to-night.
And Margaret hath a kindly eye,
A gentle smile, I ween,
That speaks a heart of constancy,
Unselfish and serene.

But thou art very pale, Ninette,
And as the night grows chill,
Thou tremblest—ah! I fear me much
This sail will work thee ill.
Thou weepest—ah, Ninette, forgive!
'Twas but a cruel jest;
'Tis all a falsehood, as I live,
Of Margaret and the rest.

I only wished thy heart to read,
Thou'lt not be angry long;
Thou blushest, then, methinks; indeed,
I scarce have read it wrong.
Thy coldness pained me, yet I deemed
Thou wert no more coquette;
Thou smilest, ah, the day is won—
Thy heart is mine, Ninette.

THE TWELVE BLACK STATUES.

I had been without employment for an unusual period. My patience was exhausted with making useless applications, and I began to despair. One evening, I remained till late at a coffee-house in the Strand, to which I had been accustomed to repair; the rain pouring down in torrents without, kept me a close prisoner. Listlessly I beguiled the weary hours, by counting the different journals and periodicals. Again I put down, and again I resumed the perusal of the newspaper. It was while carelessly surveying the well known supplemental sheet of the Times, that, for the first time, an announcement attracted my notice, that seemed to hold out at least a chance of occupation. I read as follows:

"Wanted.—One hundred Supernumeraries, for the New Grand Historical Legendary and Romantic Spectacle, about to be produced at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane; apply personally, and immediately, to Corporal D. K., at 301 Drury Lane."

As I ruminated over this announcement, it seemed to feed with renewed oil the light of hope that dimly burnt within my breast; and I determined to wait upon the non-commissioned officer, whose initials were so expressive of his superannuation. Next morning saw me hurrying in the direction of Drury Lane, in search of the corporal. I duly found D. K. at the given address. He proved to be a seedy, but soldierly looking man, with a stooping gait, a war medal on his breast, and a face indented with marks of care, and the small pox. He received me favorably.

"I can't tell, at present," he said, "what you'll have to do, unless you're up to the ballet business."

"What's that, may I ask?" was my inexperienced inquiry.

"Dancing. Howsomever, I'll put ye down for a ballet super, and chance it. The pay's sixpence a night better."

I acquainted the considerate corporal that I had danced a quadrille or so.

"Well," he replied. "But p'raps you'll have to do a red-cross knight, and carry a banner. It's the easiest part of it, 'cos no notice is taken of you, only of the banner. The step you'll soon learn at rehearsal."

I expressed my willingness to give every attention to the duties that might devolve on me.

"The 'ghost walks' on Saturday at twelve. I pays my own men, and in course deducts my centums from the salaries."

I gratefully assented to the proposed terms.

"Be at the theatre at ten to-morrow morning."

This injunction was conveyed with a bucolic sigh, and the corporal observed—

"Ah, if you'd only 'listed you'd have made a capital super, and perhaps have got into the utility business at Drury, with a pound a week, at least."

"Listed, sir!"

"Been a soldier. Cavalry men suit best for the stage, 'cos of the broad-sword combats."

The objection raised somewhat dashed my hopes, but the corporal seemed willing to waive it, and I left him with a perfectly good understanding.

I attended at the rehearsal the next morning. The corporal stood at the stage door, ready to marshal his squad of supernumeraries and conduct them to the scene of their duties. We were taken through various dark passages, and arriving on the veritable boards of "Old Drury," found the place equally enveloped in gloom. The stage was peopled with many shadowy forms, that were busily flitting about. As my eyes became accustomed to the pervading gloom I I could gradually distinguish objects better. A portly little man, the manager, stood centrally at the foot of the stage, and was occupied in drilling a concourse of persons of both sexes, differently positioned over the stage. Occasionally he turned, and looking down upon a dark abyss, which was the locality of the orchestra, bawled aloud certain technical injunctions to some lively but discordant instruments in human shape therein assembled. Active and energetic shades, whose shabby exteriors not even the gloom of their Hades could hide, were constantly darting to the side of the manager and immediately vanishing at the wings, after the manner of King Richard's staff, on the conventional Bosworth field of the stage.

While curiously observing the arrangements of the mis en scene, I was aroused to a sense of personal responsibility, by a stentorian voice exclaiming at my ear:

"All the supers in the saloon. Corps de ballet for the scarf figure; Mr. Payne and all the gnomes."

A rush of those who had been standing near me now took place, and the corporal observing my bewilderment, unceremoniously attacked me by the scruff of the neck, and almost dragged me across the stage to a hole in the wall near the prompter's box. Into this hole I was compelled to enter, and followed by the corporal, ascended a dark staircase leading, as I discovered, via the dress circle of the theatre, to the saloon. On arriving at the latter locale, a fantastic scene presented itself. Some dozen or two of young girls in dingy apparel, each waving a bright colored muslin scarf, were arranged vis-a-vis, while down the centre pirouetted and gallopaded a chief danseuse more slovenly, more theatrically, and more dingily attired than the rest. She wore a short nankeen skirt, displaying whity brown integuments, technically termed "fleshings," and looking excessively dusty. The fair dancer's head-dress consisted of a coronal of dirty-white lilies; her arms were bare, and she deftly waved a cerulean colored scarf, twisting it into a variety of mathematical forms. Her face was pale as marble; it looked as if it had been chalked like the soles of her feet.

"Gents to right face!" roared the corporal, who gave directions, and we supers obeyed by performing an evolution resembling the favorite school-boy amusement of "follow my leader." Obeying the general movement, I found myself in a quadrille position, with (not a pretty, but) a putty-faced lady for a partner. Before I could collect myself, I was thrown into a vortex of evolutions, in the course of which every now and then I perceived my fair partner affectionately hanging over me with her scarf arched over my head, and her voice—angrily, I thought—beseeching me to bend down on one knee, in which position I had to cover the depressed end of her scarf with my kisses.

We continued to practice these terpsichorean movements so long a time, that I became heartily tired of my knighthood, and even my gallantry was oozing away; for, assuredly, both were sorely tried, while the caps of my knees were getting excessively tender with so much kneeling. Relief at last arrived, however, in the person of an obese herald from the stage calling out—

"All the ladies and gentlemen of the ballet—on the stage!"

To my great delight, my Amazonian "ladye love" at once abandoned me, and flew with her Diana-like sisterhood, back from whence they came. I was alone for the moment, but thought it expedient to follow in the direction taken by the last two or three lingering knights then departing from the field of chivalry. Once more I reached the Alsatia of the stage, and was immediately drafted, with eleven others, out of a large body of supernumeraries, and introduced by my Nemesis, the corporal, to "the chief of the Gnomes." This demoniac authority was pleased to accept me as a suitable recruit. Twelve sable statues being required to form a human, but mute, columnar tableau in the vestibule of the Gnome-king's palace, we statues were directly brought on to the scene. Twelve black pedestals were ranged in readiness for our occupation. We caryatides had to mount these boxes, and to stand on the tops of them in a statuesque form, supporting with the raised arm over the bent shoulders, a bronze censer, emitting blue flames. With difficulty I ascended the rickety pediment, or rather impediment. An accident, of an undignified nature, then early in my theatrical experience, attended my exertions. In mounting the trunk allotted to myself, a strain upon my inexpressibles took place, and an unfortunate abrasion was the consequence. Glad was I when the rehearsal was over, and I was released from the purgatory I had got myself into.

A subsequent rehearsal introduced me to fresh troubles. I had to lead a forlorn hope of Saracens up a steep and almost perpendicular mountain constructed of strong deal boards, covered with a layer of damp saw-dust. [illegible] the stronghold of the enemy [illegible] at the top of the acclivity, it [illegible] to descend and throw the protection of my shield over Miss Poole, as a princess, under process of disenchantment. It was a situation of some danger, for I had to strike a position over the princess in a melee of Ducrow's [illegible] occurred half way up the [illegible].

The insensate Ducrow, (peace to his manes,) passed me on his careering steed, and [illegible] animal pranced and reared over my devoted head, the expletive loving equestrian pelted me with a full measure of his customary oaths and curses, by way of expressing his ire at my not giving his horse more room for the display of his mettle.

The eventful evening fixed for the first performance of the spectacle at last arrived. The duty that devolved on me was as may have been collected from the foregoing, onerous. It is needless, however, to detail all the circumstances attendant on my situation; suffice it that the house was crowded, and the scenic effects to be produced very important.

All was activity and energy behind the curtain, uproar and confusion before it. The curtain rose, and the uproar subsided, and was hushed. The first scene elicited [illegible] and scene after scene succeeded, with satisfactory results. The scarf-dance, of which I was a figure or cypher, was introduced and successfully—it obtained an encore. In the following act, the "Ebon Vestibule of the Gnome King's Palace," opened to the audience with a tremendous effect. Two motley jesters, of the ancient Saxon wit, "fooled the auditory to the top of their bent," while we, the caryatides, [illegible] discovered standing on our pedestals, [illegible] our censers. Mine was the position [illegible] statue on the prompt side.

I felt my confidence oozing out, not only at my fingers' ends, but also at my toes. A magnificent retinue occupied the stage, passing in procession. Then came the Enchanted Prince (Ducrow) on his flying steed; the rider flourishing a flaming sword, and gesticulating himself. Much valuable time was, I recollect, wasted by the delays incident to a first night. No thought appeared to be taken of us statues: of course, nobody ever dreamed that we had any feelings. For my own part the time completely beat me. The perspiration fairly run down my sable face; an intense irritation visited various parts of my body, flying especially to the calves of my legs. Despite the occasion, despite the dishonor attending failure, I felt it inevitable that I must give practical expression to my misery. And I did! Lowering my dexter hand, I administered a vigorous scratch to that portion of my anatomy so indispensably requiring the application of friction. The action, however sudden, was as suddenly observed. A shout of laughter proceeded from the thronged pit; its effect was, to cause the object of it to lose all presence of mind. I could no longer suppress my agitation—an audible groan escaped me; the laughter became uproarious and furious, depriving me momentarily of reason. May Thespis forgive the unheroic deed!—In a paroxysm of frenzy, I precipitated myself from the pillar, instantly flying the scene of my discomfiture; but alas! in endeavoring to effect a precipitate retreat, I incontinently stumbled against the pedestal of a brother statue, thus throwing this unfortunate caryatide also from his equilibrium, and causing him, as suddenly as myself, to vacate his post in a most undignified manner. The double catastrophe produced an indescribable sensation. Explosions of hisses and laughter greeted us, volley after volley. We were assailed with curses, not loud but deep from the wings of the stage. In the midst of the commotion the scene was closed, and the stage filled with irate officials and curious inquirers. While the confusion was at its height, I prudently escaped. There was brief time to peel off my black skin, and once more attired in my customary apparel, I hurried from the theatre; nor did I return to resume the parts, either as a Drury Lane knight or statue. Life of a Western Editor.—The editor of a paper published at Canton, Ohio, gives the following description of his former partner:

"Mr. Pike and I published a newspaper in 1817 among the Miami Indians, in the State of Indiana. It was a great partnership that. We had two advance-paying subscribers—one who liquidated his subscriptions with beans, the other with saw-logs. Godfrey, the chief, took five papers and could not read a word. Our paper was called the 'Peru Forester,' and being printed in the woods, that title was appropriate. The town of Peru had a number of magnificent names for its streets, such as Pearl, Broadway, etc., which streets exhibited the animated and bustling spectacle of stumps and trees as high as a man's head. The stirring events which transpired in that city imperiously demanded a couple of chroniclers, and Pike and I were at hand to discharge this important function. Pike wrote poetry, and I dipped considerably into State politics, and discussed in a very learned manner every question of interest to the few settlers and Indians. Besides being an editor and printer, he kept the Broadway Hotel, was a postmaster, justice of the peace, land agent, pettifogger, canal contractor, merchant, overseer of the poor, had been a schoolmaster and a day laborer, was twice a widower, was brought up a Quaker, and the last time I saw him he was a preacher, had married a third wife, and was an auctioneer, and what more I know not."

An Easy Natured Farmer—The True Mahomedan Spirit.—The Detroit Advertiser relates the following example of resignation, usual among Americans:

"A certain good natured old Vermont farmer preserved his good nature let what would turn up. One day, while the black tongue prevailed in that State, one of his men came in, bringing the news that one of his red oxen was dead.

"'Is he?' said the old man, 'well, he always was a breechy cuss. Take his hide off, and carry it down to Fletcher's; it will bring the cash.' An hour afterwards, the man came back with the news that 'line back' and his mate were both dead. 'Are they?' said the old man, 'well, I took them of B——, to save a bad debt that I never expected to get. It is lucky that it aint the brindles. Take the hides down to Fletcher's; they will bring the cash.' After the lapse of another hour, the man came back to tell him that the nigh brindle was dead. 'Is he?' said the old man, 'well, he w[illegible] old ox. Take off his hide and tak[illegible] Fletcher's; it's worth cash, and [illegible] than any two of the others.' [illegible] his wife, who was a very pious [illegible] taking upon herself the office of Eliph[illegible] reprimanded her husband very severely, [illegible] him if he was not aware that his lo[illegible] a judgment of Heaven for his wickedne[illegible]. 'Is it?' said the old fellow. 'Well, if [illegible] will take the judgment in cattle, it is [illegible] best way I can pay it!'"
