It is expected that those who enjoy genuine fun will have their fill during this engagement. "Vacation" is said to be one of the liveliest plays now on the boards, with no end of saltatorial, athletic and laughable features, and a company of exceptional strength.

The attraction at Albaugh's next week will be "May Blossom," one of the most marked of Madison Square Theatre successes. It is at present under the sole management of Mr. Daniel Frohman, who for five years managed the Madison Square, and under whose direction the chief triumps of that house were made. The company is the same as last season, all the principals being retained, notably Miss Georgia Cayvan and Benjamin Maginley. Elaborate new scenery from the original models has been prepared, and the play will be given with all the attention to detail which was noticeable on its former production here.

Miss Jennie Calef, supported by a larger and stronger company than ever seen at Herzog's Ninth Street Opera-House, will appear next week. She is known by all theatre-goers as one of the best soubrettes on the stage. The Parker Twin Brothers are the latest acquisition to the company, and their specialties are said to be received with great applause. Miss Calef will appear during the first three matinees and nights as Little Moffett and the remainder of the week as Fanchon.

He said he saw them at 1 o'clock. The other witness saw them at 3:45 a. m. The night inspector also had a witness.

Charges Against Lieutenant Guy.

Mr. Charles S. Hill, who is connected with the New Orleans Exposition, has filed charges with the Commissioners against Lieutenant of Police Guy, Sergeants Haney and Burgess, and Privates Cottell, Hart and all of the Fourth Precinct officers in general. The complaint is based on the failure of the police to prevent certain parties from encroaching on the grounds of Mr. Hill—a strip of land four feet wide adjoining the Milton Flats.

Mr. Hill is circulating a paper for signatures with a view of having Lieutenant Guy removed.

A CRITIC reporter called Major Dye's attention to the matter this morning, and he stated that the matter was purely one for the civil courts and one in which the police had no right to interfere except to preserve the peace. As there was no breach of the public peace there was nothing for the police to do. He also stated that Mr. Harlow came in this morning and stated that he was surprised that Mr. Hill had complained because he had the better of the matter so far. If any one was to complain it was he, because his building had been stopped and he had been put to about $600 expense by the stoppage of work. The matter, the Major said, is in the hands of the civil courts, where a temporary injunction has been granted.

Police Officers Punished.

Major of Police Dye has recommended to the Commissioners that Private J. H. Posey be dismissed from the force, having been found drunk and guilty of conduct unbecoming a gentleman and an officer. He also recommends that Sergeant McHenry be fined $20 for smoking in the station-house when he was on duty. And in the case of Private Van Fleet, the Major forwards the approved report of the trial-board fining him $5 for neglect of duty, and also that he be informed that it is not necessary for his inferior to "blow him out" of his hiding place when they suspicion him not properly patroling his beat. The charges against Private Kenner are recommended to be dismissed.

Posey has been dismissed in accordance with the above recommendation.

The St. Cecilia's Concert.

The concert of the St. Cecilia Quartet at Congregational Church last night was a brilliant success. The church was filled with an appreciative audience and encores were numerous. The singers were in excellent voice and sang with the precision which earned for them their high reputation last winter. In the solo numbers each of the ladies was well received, though Miss Ewan carried off the honors. The Dudley Buck Quartet of Brooklyn made a favorable impression. While none of the voices are phenomenal, they are all of good quality, while their singing was excellent. The whole concert was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

A King's Glass Bedstead.

A beautiful glass bedstead, which was exhibited at the Calcutta exhibition and purchased for the King of Burma, seems to have raised a desire in the mind of another native millionaire in this country to become possessed of a similarly beautiful article. There has been on view the latest specimen of a work of art in the manufacture of glass beds which has been completed in Birmingham. While following to a great extent the pattern of the bed in the exhibition, several improvements have been introduced in the present bed which give it a more effective appearance by the introduction of ruby glass in several places, helping by its contrast to display the beautiful work of the purer crystal. The legs and pillars which carry the canopy, the headrail and footrail are all of solid glass of faultless brilliancy, most richly cut and ingeniously fitted together without the aid of any mental supporters, which insures the brilliancy of the pure crystal being shown to the best advantage. The canopy is surrounded with ruby-colored velvet hangings, ornamented with crosses and bosses in silver glass and surmounted by stars and crescents placed alternately, the four corners being finished off with terminals of ruby and cut glass. Of course no bed is complete without a mattress and pillows, which in this case are made of fine colored silk velvet.

Curious Things We See.

Curious Things We Hear.

This reminds us of a conversation we over heard the other day in our establishment when some ladies remarked that certain stores do not adhere to their special advertisements, but give far inferior—or at times have not got the advertised goods in stock. The BON MARCHE stands before you, proud and honorable, defying any one to say they do not adhere strictly to their advertisements.

Having come to your city to stay and build up a home for the purchasing public and be known in every house as the bazar of honest trading, the BON MARCHE has gained your confidence and intends to maintain it at all hazards. Its close attention to business, one price and the privilege of returning goods if not satisfactory, will undoubtedly be the corner-stone of success. The BON MARCHE, in coming before you with goods at immensely low prices, begs to state that it always has the advertised article to supply the greatest possible rush. At the same time, while having had no occasion as yet to resort to the old-time dodge of advertising articles in limited quantities at or below cost, it certainly claims to buy its goods cheap enough to sell any number with a small profit, and still be lower in price than those who advertise their goods below cost.

Among all materials colored frissoes seem to be favorites for Hat Trimming. By giving us a call you will find this statement to be correct.
