WASHINGTON, MAY 5, 1887.

WEST VIRGINIA'S SENATOR.

Mr. Johnson N. Camden retired yesterday from the protracted contest for re-election to the United States Senate, which continued in both the regular and special sessions of the West Virginia Legislature. As twelve Democrats all along declined to vote for him, his re-election was impossible without Republican assistance which at one time it was thought he would have no difficulty in obtaining. He did secure two or three Republican votes, but the remainder, in obedience to the mandates of a party caucus, adhered to a candidate of their own faith.

Mr. Camden being out of the way, it is sufficient that a Democratic caucus, attended by all the Democratic members, will nominate a candidate who will at once be elected. This would settle the matter were it not for the action of Governor Wilson, who, immediately upon the expiration of the regular session of the Legislature, no Senator having been chosen, appointed Mr. Daniel B. Lucas to the vacancy then existing.

The latter claims to be entitled to a seat in the Senate until the Legislature at its next regular session in January, 1889, shall choose a Senator, holding that, as the State Constitution limits the work of a special session to the objects set forth in the Governor's proclamation calling the Legislature together, and as no mention was made therein of the election of a Senator, none can lawfully be elected. On the other hand, it may be said that the Constitution of the United States and not the Constitution of West Virginia regulates the election of United States Senators, and the former instrument declares expressly that Senators shall be chosen by the Legislature in each State and that temporary appointments by the Governor shall hold good only until the next meeting of the Legislature.

The latest case arose in consequence of the death, a year ago, of Senator John F. Miller of California. Governor Stoneman, the Legislature not being in session, appointed George Hearst, who immediately qualified. Later on, after Congress adjourned, Governor Stoneman called a special session of the Legislature to consider irrigation matters, without mentioning the Senatorial vacancy. The Legislature, the second Tuesday after it convened, elected A. P. Williams Senator, who was sworn in without objection at the beginning of the last session of the Senate as the successor, not of George Hearst, the ad interim appointee of the Governor, but of John F. Miller, the deceased Senator, who had been regularly chosen by the Legislature.

The Kentucky Democrats in convention yesterday assured the President of their unfaltering confidence and support, although an element of disaffection put in an appearance in the person of Congressman Taulbee, who appears not to be altogether satisfied with the pension veto policy of the Administration. The platform, which is said to be the joint composition of Mr. Carlisle and Henry Watterson, commends the President for protecting the Treasury from pillage, denounces the war tariff in set phrase and "views with alarm the growing tendency" to seek the aid and bounty of the General Government, which is a covert attack on the Blair Educational bill. The Civil-Service Reform plank reads as follows:

We favor honest civil-service reform, by which we mean the enforcement of the faithful performance by persons appointed to office of all public duties entrusted to them and to this end, as well as to the maintenance of the spirit of our representative form of government, we demand the strictest measures of personal and party responsibility, and are opposed to the substitution in place of this of life terms, a civil pension list, and all other appendages of a bureaucratic system, foreign to the genius of our institutions and people.

The chief objection to this resolution is its length. It could have been more concisely expressed as follows: "Resolved, That really honest Civil Service Reform means a faithful performance of public duties by competent Democratic officials, as contradistinguished from the Mugwump species of Reform." All in all, however, the work of the convention was cleverly done, and ought to be satisfactory to the President, as a guarantee of Kentucky's good faith.

GENERAL THOMAS L. ROSSER, in his letter denouncing "Little Phil" Sheridan, the Lieutenant-General of the Army of the United States, says: "I have forgiven the brave men of the Union Army whom I met in honorable battle," etc., which is very kind, indeed, on the part of the ex Confederate brigadier. It is only equalled in its spirit of generosity by the violator of law who forgives the court for enforcing the penalty. But setting aside all prejudice in the matter, one way or the other, General Rosser's card is in the worst possible taste and out of keeping with the amenities of the new age. Were the same animus to pervade the late contending sections of the Union generally, the country wouldn't be worth living in.

THE idea is entertained in some quarters that the visit of Sir Edward Thornton to this country possesses important diplomatic significance, and that the reason a person of such high official prominence as Sir Edward was selected to aid in the adjustment of a local debt question was because of the imminent possibility of serious complications resulting therefrom in case of his failure to secure a satisfactory settlement for the English bondholders. The matter is alluded to by the Boston Traveller in a manner to show that in Massachusetts, at least, there must be some sensitiveness and apprehension on this point. It says:

> There are hints that the unpaid Virginia bonds may become a set-off to our complaints concerning the outrages which the Dominion has committed against the New England fishermen. Stranger things have happened than that Great Britain should attempt to hold the United States responsible for Virginia's debt. Should this prove to be a part of the mission of Sir Edward Thornton, we should have a marked illustration of the powerlessness of our Government as contrasted with its responsibility. If one of our States offends against a foreign government, the United States is responsible; but the United States is powerless to compel a State to meet its obligations. She cannot enforce a judgment against a State, and yet may be involved in difficulty with a foreign power in a State's behalf. This is one of the curious anomalies of our Federal nationality. If Virginia persists in her repudiation, and Great Britain should conclude to make her subjects' case her own, we may find ourselves involved in serious difficulty, and New England fishermen may be made to suffer most seriously the consequences of Virginia's dishonesty.

It seems to THE CRITIC that our esteemed Boston contemporary is going a very long way, and very much out of the way in the search for a casus belli. The danger of a conflict between the United States and Great Britain growing out of the Virginia debt question is certainly too remote to keep the average citizen of Massachusetts awake o' nights.

THE counter attraction that can get away with a circus has never been discovered. One would suppose that, with thousands of people drawn to Ivy City by the races, other thousands to the baseball park and large numbers to the Abbott opera, something of a shortage would have been experienced at Ferepaugh's great show. Quite to the contrary. The big tents failed to hold the multitudes that applied for admission last evening, and the same thing is certain to happen again this afternoon and to-night. The circus is a "thing of beauty and a joy forever."

MR. CARLISLE would prove a good Senator, no doubt; but as long as he can make himself more useful to his immediate constituents and the Democratic party at large where he is, what would be the political wisdom of transferring him to the other end of the Capitol? His ambition does not lie in that direction and his services can be made much more effective in the other, especially so long as the fight for revenue reform goes on. Besides, Kentucky is well represented in the Senate already and can do no better than re-elect Mr. Beck.

GENERAL BUCKNER, who was nominated by the Kentucky Democrats yesterday as their candidate for Governor, is a handsome and well-preserved man of 58 and quite as popular in the North as in the South. He was a game fighter for the South as long as the trouble lasted, but when the cruel war was over, accepted the situation like a man and betook himself, with commendable energy, to the reconstruction of his broken fortunes.

JAY GOULD has bought a tract of land near St. Louis, on which he proposes to locate the machine shops of the Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain railroads, and build an industrial town of probably about 4,000 inhabitants. The progress of this enterprise will be watched with a good deal of interest, and it may result in somewhat modifying the general impression that Mr. Gould takes no interest in the welfare of his employes.

EDITOR CRITIC: In your issue of the 4th inst., an article appeared regarding "Bands at the National Drill," which expressed Mr. F. Krause's (leader of the National Rifles' Band) opinion about military bands and which does the Third Artillery Band gross injustice. When Mr. Krause first attempted to organize his band, he received the cordial support of all members of the Artillery Band. When Mr. Krause announced his first concert at Guethler's Park, for the purpose of organizing and equipping his band, fifty per cent. of the members thereof were furnished by the Artillery Band. Again, when the National Rifle Band first paraded and Mr. Krause was informed that some of his members would disappoint him, he applied to the leader of the Artillery Band and six members volunteered to assist him in his difficulty and for this purpose appeared at the armory. No bad feeling exists in the Artillery Band against Mr. Krause. On the contrary, as Mr. Sousa, leader of the Marine Band, very pointedly says: "The shoe fits on the other foot." Mr. Krause threatens to withdraw from the Musical Union and join the National League. He states that a thorough examination is required. Will he, perhaps, be appointed chairman of the Examining Board? If not, will he be able to become a member of the League? Why does Mr. Krause throw slurs at painters and bricklayers, knowing that the best and most reliable men in his band follow trades such as mentioned by him? In conclusion I would state that the Artillery Band never handed in a bid for the National Drill. WM. INSENFELDT,
Bandmaster, U. S. Third Artillery.

Keep to the Right.

EDITOR CRITIC: Please inform me which side a pedestrian should take—the right or left—I'm being run into every day, it matters not which side I take. Say which side is right to take, and I will abide by your decision, and then if any one runs into me he will strike the weight of a barrel of flour—196 pounds. A CITIZEN.
Washington, May 5.

DIFFERENCES.

The king can drink the best of wine,
And has enough when he would dine,
To have it.
And can use order rain or shine,
Not so I.
Then where's the difference—let me see—
Betwixt us both, the king and me?
He truly friends surround his throne
Night and day—
Or make his interest their own!
So, so they.
Mine love are for myself alone—
Does he the.
And that's one difference which I see
Betwixt my love, the king, and me.
He knows no grief, care and fear and wait
To deprive
Or fawn and flatter when they hate,
And would grieve?
Or cruel is sign oppress my state
Not he, he knows?
No, Heaven be thanked! and here you see
More differences 'twixt the king and me.
He has his fools, with jest and quips,
When he'd play.
He has his armies and his ships—
Great are they!
But not a child to kiss his lips—
Well-a-day!
And that's a difference and to see
Betwixt my lord, the king, and me.
I wear a cap and be the crown—
What of that?
I sleep on straw and he on down—
What of that?
And he's the king and I'm the clown—
What of that?
Happy I and wretched he,
Perhaps the king would change with me.
—Charles Mackay.

NOTES AND GOSSIP.

THE Memphis Avalanche's fund for an equestrian statue of General Forrest now amounts to $5,000. It was opened only ten days ago.

RICHARDSON of the Davenport (Iowa) Democrat promises to print before long a five-column interview with Senator Allison on the Presidential outlook.

THEODORE YOUNG of Princeton will observe the total eclipse of the sun in August next at Kiushama, in the Government of Kostroma, Russia. His companions will be the scientific representatives of Russia and England.

MISS ROSE ELIZABETH CLEVELAND will enter upon her new duties as teacher and lecturer early next fall. She is to occupy the chair of American History in the school for girls of her old friend, Mrs. Sylvanus Reed of New York.

EDWIN BOOTH's reappearance as a capitalist is noted by the New York papers, which record a $20,000 loan of the great tragedian to Ephraim Drucker of Grand street and South Fifth avenue. Real estate is given as security.

GENERAL D. H. HILL has consented to deliver his address on "The Confederate Soldier" at Baltimore on the evening of Memorial Day, June 6. General Hill is now president of the Military and Agricultural College, Millersville.

MRS. J. W. MACKAY and Mrs. Mark Hopkins will probably figure most conspicuously among the bidders for the French crown jewels, and it is said that Mr. George Gould is going to get something handsome for his young and beautiful wife.—[New York Graphic.

THE Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which P. M. Arthur of Cleveland is now serving his third elective term as chief, numbers about 22,000 members and has 341 subdivisions in which every State and Territory, Mexico and the British Provinces are represented.

EX-SENATOR ALEXANDER McDONALD of Arkansas is a well preserved man of 60 and a great friend of Blaine's. He is by no means certain, however, that Blaine can be elected over Cleveland. He thinks that the latter will be far more strongly backed by the business interests of the country.

THE police force of New York city according to the latest report, numbers 3,916 men, of whom 2,731 are patrolmen, 168 roundsmen, 78 doormen and the rest superior officers. The Commissioners urge a substantial addition to the force on the ground that during the last six years the population has increased 27 per cent. as against only 14 per cent. increase in the police.

PURSUANT to an act of the Legislature of Kansas, a scientific silk station has been established at Peabody, in that State, for the purpose of demonstrating the feasibility of the silk-culture industry. The Commissioners, one of whom, Mr. J. H. Morse, resides at Peabody, has issued a pamphlet of instructions for the aid of those who may desire to experiment in the raising of cocoons.

GENERAL AND CRITICULAR.

TO SUMMER.

Although we do most cheerfully allow
That hailing's sadly out of season now,
Yet 'tis our duty—all must sure concede it—
To hail a few things now that seem to need it.

To start with: Hall Baseball, thou wondrous game!
No institution vies with thee in fame!
Hail, Pitcher, Catcher, Short-stop and the rest,
Fit to recline your heads on glory's breast.

Ye are the people's pets. Their knees are bent,
You're greater men than e'en the President:
For thousands more pay cash to see you play
Than visit Grover on reception day.

Hail Summer! You're not here yet, but you'll come;
The horse-fly tells us so with drowsy hum.
But till you come, you may quite easy be,
For spring now does your duties faithfully.

Hail Lemonade, and likewise hail Ice Cream.
Hail laughing Phebus, but confound thy beam.
Hail Sprinkling Cart, that cools the dusty air;
Hail to the Chunk of Ice—that isn't there.

But why go on, for summer joys so bright
Flush through the brain in numbers infinite.
And never could these pleasures which we prize
Be covered by a half-stone of this size.

Chief Geronimo, who is now enjoying the hospitalities of the Government at Fort Pickens, is reported as writing to his several wives and the little Geronimos at St. Augustine: "I think of God, the President and you in the same light." The atmosphere of Florida being conducive to that wholesome line of thought the longer he is kept under the guns of the fort, the better for the happy hunting grounds of Arizona. The wily diplomat is evidently feeling for a pardon, but to turn him loose even in a dime museum were hardly safe on so short probation. For whitewash the old sinner as much as you will, the scent of the war paint will hang round him still.

Julius Cæsar revised—"Oh, what a Spring is here, my countrymen."

An Irish servant borrowed a copy of Baron Munchausen from his master's library and upon returning it was asked: "Well, Patrick, did you read it through?"
"I did, sor."
"And what do you think of it?"
"Well, savin' yer honor, I think it's a damned lie, sor."

The ash man is a very lo-dust-rious sort of a citizen.
