LATER FROM EUROPE.

Arrival of the Steamer Ætna.

New York, July 13.

The steamer Ætna, from Liverpool, the 2d inst., arrived at this port this morning.

Her advices are the same as those brought by the Canada.

At Paris it is believed in some quarters that the French loss in the battle of Solferino amounted to from 16,000 to 18,000 men, as follows:

Gen. Neil's corps 6,000 to 7,000; D'Hillier's nearly 5,000; McMahon's 2,500; Canrobert's 1,000, besides casualities in the artillery and special corps.

The Patrie says Napoleon had an epaulette shot away. Gen. Dieu is reported among the dead.

The Austrians had seven or eight Generals and very many of their superior officers wounded.

Some of the French Infantry regiments were nearly cut to pieces.

The Piedmontese suffered so severely as to be incapable of forming in the line of battle.

The Vienna correspondent of the London Times, writing on the 25th, says that some days must elapse before the complete returns of the losses of the Austrians could be received. The same writer says that the Italian regiments in the Austrian army had become very difficult to manage. The men desert by scores and fifties. A whole battalion had raised the cry in favor of Victor Emanuel.

A vessel on the coast, under the American flag, had been detected in the act of receiving deserters on board.

The people of Milan have made threatening manifestations against the Jesuits, whom public rumor accuses of keeping up a correspondence with Austria.

The municipal body of Vienna have offered to maintain peace and order, in case it was necessary to dispatch the garrison to the seat of war.

Enormous masses of French soldiers are marching into Piedmont by way of Nice and Mt. Cenis.

Napoleon was in perfect health, and the sanitary condition of his army was excellent.

It is reported that nearly every officer and man of the artillery attached to the Imperial Guard was put hors de combat!

The Austrian accounts of the battle admit their loss to be 20,000 killed, wounded and missing.

The Austrian official report of the battle says the right wing of the army occupied Pozzalingo, Salferino and Carriana; the left wing marched on the 24th to Garidizzolo and Castle Goffredo, repulsing the advancing enemy on all sides. As the imperial army continued its advance towards Chiese, the enemy, who had also assumed the offensive, with his whole forces, pushed forward such large bodies of troops that there was a general engagement between the two armies at 10 o'clock or thereabouts, on the morning of the 24th.

The right wing, which was formed of the second army, under Count Schlick, maintained the position which it had originally occupied in the first line of battle, until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the first army, left wing, under Count Wimpffren continually gained ground in the direction of the Chiese.

Towards 3 o'clock the enemy made a vehement attack on Salferino, and after several hours' hard fighting obtained possession of the place, which had been heroically defended by the 5th corps d'armee. An attack was then made on Carriana which was courageously defended until evening by the 1st and 7th corps d'armee, but was eventually left in the hands of the enemy.

While the struggle for Salferino and Carriana was going on, the right corps d'arme which was in the outer flank, right wing, advanced and repulsed the Sardinian troops opposed to it, but this advantage did not enable the Imperial army to recover the position that had been lost in the center.

The 3d and 9th corps d'arme which were supported by the 11th corps, were engaged on the left wing, made several most brilliant attacks with unusual heavy losses, and the fact that the left wing of the first army was unable to make progress on the right flank of the enemy who directed his men to force in the center against Verona, led to the retreat of the Imperial army. It began late in the evening during a violent storm.

The correspondent of the London Herald says, so little did the French except a battle that on the previous night, a message from the King asking for support in case he should be attacked, was met with a refusal, on the ground that an attack from the Austrians was not probable.

At daybreak, however, the corps of Marshal D'Hilliers came in sight of Salferino, and was immediately set upon by a large Austrian force which rushed down the hill and fought with the greatest fury.

The marshal resisted the attack to the best of his power and sent off his aid de camp for supports, but it was not before three hours elapsed that the corps of General Neil made its appearance.

The Austrians were slowly driven back and every now and then there was a pause, and the French continued to gain ground; heaps of their own and the enemy's corpses marking the fluctuations of the fight.

The Austrians were thus slowly driven out of Salferino—but all of a sudden, they made a tremendous burst forward, and the French were driven down the hill. Being admirably supported by their artillery, however, they made a move to advance; it was like a storm of bullets and balls, whole files were mowed down by a single discharge. In the meantime the Austrians were getting decidedly the best of it.

The Piedmontese were being slowly driven back.

Gen. Canrobert's corps were also badly punished.

Had there been a skillful General in the Austrian army to collect and concentrate their forces against the weak point of the enemy's line, matters would have had a very different aspect.

The French commander, to whom the credit of the day is entirely due, whether it be Neil, McMahon or the Emperor himself, went forward the Imperial Guard and a strong division of the infantry of the line against the Austrian center, and succeeded for a time in breaking it. Instead of bringing up their forces to repel this formidable attack, the supporters were sent to the right and left wings, which did not need them.

Desperate attempts were made to recapture Solferino, but the French strongly held it, and the bugle began to sound a general retreat.

An attempt was made by the cavalry to pursue them, which led to an encounter between the French Chasseurs and the Austrian hussars, in which the former were rapidly put to the right about.

It is stated that not a single Hungarian regiment was allowed to take part in the battle, and that the Italian troops had all been previously sent to the Tyrol.

Twenty thousand corpses are said to have been buried, and many were yet lying in the ditches and cornfields.

The Berlin and Vienna letters confidently speak of negotiations having been opened by Prussia, England and Russia, for the purpose of establishing if possible a basis for combined mediation.

The military commissioner of the Frankfort Diet is said to have approved the demand to move an army of observation on the Rhine.

The French are making immense naval preparations on the Adriatic. Five ships of the line, 8 frigates, 6 war steamers, 13 floating batteries, 9 gun boats, 9 brigs and 3 mortar vessels were at Antavis.

The Admiral was about to open his sealed orders.

Two of the London papers say that there has been a meeting in Paris of the inferior diplomatic agents of France, and that they have departed to their posts by orders from the Emperor. It is presumed they have orders to aid in getting up an insurrection in Turkey in the interest of Russia.

Garibaldi has received orders to occupy the Upper Valteline, and was expected at Saronne with 3,000 men, where 500 Piedmontese had already arrived.

The Swiss Federal Council has decided in concert with the belligerents that any soldier seeking shelter on Swiss territory shall be sent back to their country, their government engaging not to employ them again in the present war.

The garrison of Laveno and the soldiers of Garibaldi's corps will consequently be sent back.

It is said that the Austrian monarch ordered the fortifying of the Mincio in opposition to the advice of Gen Hess.

The Sardinian account of the battle of Solferino says on the 24th the Emperor ordered the Sardinian army to occupy Pozzalingo and invest Peschiera, while the French occupied Solferino and Cavriona.

Marshal D'Hilliers met with unexpected difficulties and the Piedmontese also encountered great forces of the enemy while D'Hilliers performed prodigies of valor at Solferino.

The masses of the enemy continued to advance at Castiglione. The Emperor perceiving that he was now contending with the entire army of the enemy, deployed the corps of Marshals Neil and McMahon in place, and ordered Canrobert to join with the Imperial Guard.

The King had been requested to direct all possible force against Solferino, and accordingly ordered Generals Fanti and Durando to convey succor to the French. Gen. Fanti had already commenced the movement to be made, when news arrived that the reconnoissance of the 3d and 5th divisions were in danger of being cut off by a superior force. The King recalled Fanti and ordered the brigade of Aosta to return promptly to San Martino and Havier.

Marshal D'Hilliers was at Solferino and marched against Carriana. The King having been informed that notwithstanding the 3d and 5th divisions were engaged it was difficult to carry the heights of San Martino, ordered a general attack of these divisions with the brigade of Aosta, the first division under Gen Della Marinara and the brigade of Piedmont. In spite of the violent tempest, Gen. Della Marin to directed his course by Pozzalingo and descended upon San Martino, but was attacked from the side of Pozzalingo—The 4th regiment, running to the left, repulsed the enemy, causing great loss, and with our artillery, in spite of the delay of Gen. Durand's corps occasioned by the tempest and the ignorance of the guides, the 3d and 5th divisions and brigades dislodged the enemy from his formidable position, and a brilliant victory ended this contest of 15 hours, which was sustained with heroic bravery.

The French account of the battle is thus described in the Monitcur:

At 5 o'clock in the morning the first corps, under Marshal D'Hilliers, began the engagement before Solferino. The heights and village were taken after a sanguinary combat.—During this time the second corps, under McMahon, which was on the right of the first corps in the plain, extended itself to the right to join the column of Marshal Neil, which was marching upon Midale. The Emperor had taken command, of the whole army. His Majesty caused the infantry and artillery of guard to advance and place themselves between the first and second corps, and carry Cassiano.

Then in order to reinforce the right at McMahon's command, which was a little exposed in consequence of the distance which separated them and the troops of Gen. Neil, His Majesty sent all the cavalry of the guard and two divisions of cavalry of the first and third corps up.

Canrobert had been charged to watch the movements of the Austrians expected on the side of Mantua.

During the whole day they fought, advancing slowly, but in good order; the corps joining up towards each other.

The corps, after taking possession of Solferino, seized all the positions, one after another, in Pozzalingo, night alone stopping their career.

The guard seized San Cassiolo and Carriana without losing time; the last village was carried with great spirit under the eye of the Emperor, who directed the fire of the artillery.

There was a time when, to cover their retreat, the Austrians made a desperate effort to place themselves between the 4th and 2d corps. A struggle ensued—the infantry and artillery took part in the conflict, and the cavalry, by several charges, decided the day. This was the last act of the battle. The Austrians began to retreat along the line, which was favored by a desperate storm, which lasted an hour or more.

The Emperor of Austria, who had lodged at Cavrino, quitted the field at 4 o'clock, and retired towards Goito.

Napoleon was seen everywhere directing the battle; every one to mind at the dangers which unceasingly threatened him, he alone seemed ignorant of them.

A liberal discount to dealers, teachers, societies and clergymen.

Each instrument guaranteed to give satisfaction, or purchase money refunded. SECOND-HAND PIANOS AT GREAT BARGAINS constantly in store; prices from $30 to $140.

Testimonials from Professors, and Opinions of the Press.

"The Horace Waters' Pianos are known as among the very best. We are enabled to speak of these instruments with some degree of confidence, from personal knowledge of their excellent tone and durable quality."—New York Evangelist.

"Having inspected a large number of the Horace Waters' pianos, we can speak of their merits, from personal knowledge, as being of the very best quality."—Christian Intelligencer.

"Nothing at the State Fair displayed greater excellence in any department than the Piano-Forte manufactured by Mr. Waters, of this city."—Churchman.

"The finest among the many pianos at the Crystal Palace are those placed there by Horace Waters, whose instruments are always popular."—Christian Inquirer.

"The Horace Waters' Pianos are built of the best and most thoroughly seasoned material. From all we can learn of this establishment—said to be the largest in the United States—we have no doubt that buyers can do as well, perhaps better, at this than at any other house in the Union."—Christian Advocate, Memphis, Tenn.

"Mr. Waters has been long established and is favorably known. We speak from experience when we assure our readers that his prices are below those usually charged for articles in his line."—Jacksonian, New Jersey.

"The treble is clear, pure, powerful, and very melodious, the base is deep, rolling, and sonorous; the middle part is rich, and sympathetic, and possessing the power of singing, i. e. of uniting the sound of each tone, to a degree but rarely achieved."—Henry C. Watson.

"For power of tone, depth of base, and brilliancy of treble, together with accuracy of touch, they are equal to any make I am acquainted with, and I cordially recommend them to those wishing to purchase.—V. C. Taylor.

"Our friends will find at Mr. Waters' store the very best assortment of music and of pianos to be found in the United States, and we urge our southern and western friends to give him a call whenever they go to New York."—Graham's Magazine.

We consider them worthy of special attention, from the resonant and exceedingly musical tone which Mr. Waters has succeeded in attaining."—N. Y. Musical World and Times.

"Waters' pianos and melodeons challenge comparison with the finest made anywhere in the country."—Home Journal.

"The Horace Waters Pianos are pronounced by musical amateurs as a decidedly superior article in all the requisites of this instrument, and it is fast superseding those of other manufacturers."—N. Y. Express.

The New York Evening Post says: "The Horace Waters Pianos are excellent as well as cheap; but he has those of other makers, as well as second-hand ones, capitally adapted to limited means."

The Sunny South, reaches us with the following: "This gentleman is one of the most extensive music dealers in the Union. His pianos and melodeons have obtained great celebrity for their excellent tone and durable quality."

Says the Valley City Advocate: "We have taken a look at a piano which has just arrived from the celebrated establishment of Horace Waters, and must say that for tone and beauty of finish, it surpasses any we ever saw for the price."

Horace Waters' Piano-Fortes are of full, rich, and even tone, and powerful.—N. Y. Musical Review.

Fever and Ague.

from which mankind suffer over a large part of the globe, is the consequence of a diseased action in the system, induced by the poisonous miasm of vegetable decay. This exhalation is evolved by the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the watery vapor from it. While the sun is below the horizon the vapor lingers near the earth's surface, and the virus is taken with it through the lungs into the blood. There it acts as an irritating poison on the internal viscera and exerting organs of the body. The liver becomes torpid and fails to secrete bile only this virus, but also the bile from the blood. Both the virus and the bile accumulate in the circulation, and produce violent constitutional disorder. The spleen, the kidneys, and the stomach sympathize with the liver, and become disordered also. Finally, the infected organism, as if in an attempt to expel the noxious infusion, concentrates the whole blood of the body in its eternal excretories to force them to cast it out. The blood leaves the surface, and rushes to the extremities with convulsive violence. This is the CHILL. But in this effort it fails. Then the Fever follows, in which the blood leaves the central organs and rushes to the surface, as if in another effort to expel the irritating poison through that other great excretory—the skin. In this also it fails, and the system abandons the attempt exhausted, and waits for the recovery of strength to repeat the hopeless effort another day. These are the first paroxysms of Fever and Ague. Such constitutional disorder will of course undermine the health if it is not removed.

We have labored to find, and have found, an antidote, which neutralizes this malarious poison in the blood, and stimulates the liver to expel it from the body. As it should, so it does cure this afflicting disorder with perfect certainty. And it does more, or rather does what is of more service to those subject to this infection. If taken in season it expels it from the system as it is absorbed, and thus keeps those who use it free from its attacks; keeps the system in health although exposed to the disease, consequently it not only cures, but protects from the great variety of affections which are induced by this malignant influence, such as Remittent Fever, Chill Fever, Dumb, or Masked Ague, Periodical Headache, or Bilious Headache, Bilious Fevers, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Blindness, Toothache, Earache, Catarrh, Asthma, Palpitations, Painful Affections of the Spleen, Hysterics, Colic, Paralysis, and Painful Affections of the Stomach and Bowels, all of which, when arising from this cause, will be found to assume more or less the intermittent type. This "AGUE CURE" removes the cause of these derangements, and cures the disease.

This it accomplishes by stimulating the excretories to expel the virus from the system; and those organs by degrees become habited to do this their office of their own accord. Hence arrises what we term acclimation. Time may accomplish the same end, but often life is not long enough, or is sacrificed in the attempt, while this "AGUE CURE" does it at once, and with safety. We have great reason to believe this is a sure as well as a safe remedy for the whole class of diseases which are caused by the miasmatic infection, than any other which has been discovered; and it has still another important advantage to the public, which is, that it is cheap as well as good.

HOWARD ASSOCIATION.

Philadelphia.

A Benevolent Institution, established by special endowment for the relief of the sick and distressed, afflicted with Venereal and Epidemic diseases.

The Howard Association, in view of the awful destruction of human life caused by Sexual Diseases, and the deception practised upon the unfortunate victims of such diseases by Quacks, several years ago directed their Consulting Surgeon, see Charitable Act worthy of their name, to open a Dispensary for the treatment of this class of diseases, to alleviate distress, and to give Medical Advice Gratis, to all who apply by letter, with a description of their complaint, (age, occupation, habits of life, &c.) and in cases of extreme poverty, to Furnish Medicines Free of Charge. It is needless to add that the Medical Staff of the Association commands the highest Medical skill of the age, and will furnish the most approved modern treatment.

The directors of the Association, in their annual Report upon the treatment of Sexual Diseases, express the highest satisfaction with the success which has attended the labors of their Surgeons in the cure of Spermatorrhœa, Seminal Weakness, Gonorrhœa, Gleet, Syphilis, the Vice of Onanism, or Self-Abuse, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, &c., and offer a continuance of the same plan for the ensuing year.

The Directors, on a review of the past, feel assured that their labors in this sphere of benevolent effort have been of great benefit to the afflicted, especially to the young, and they have resolved to devote themselves, with renewed zeal, to this very important but much despised cause.

An admirable Report on Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, the Vice of Onanism, Masturbation, or Self-Abuse and other Diseases of the Sexual organs, by the Consulting Surgeon, will be sent by mail (in sealed letter) FREE OF CHARGE, on receipt of Two Stamps for postage. Other Reports and Tracts on the nature and treatment of Sexual diseases, &c., &c., are constantly being published for gratuitous distribution, and will be sent to the afflicted. Some of the new remedies and methods of treatment discovered during the last Year, are of great value.

Address, for Report of treatment, DR. J. SKILLIN HOUGHTON, Acting Surgeon, Howard Association, No. 2 South Ninth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

By order of the Directors,

EZRA D. HEART, M.D., President.
GEO. FAIRCHILD, Secretary.
