FINANCE AND COMMERCE

The Receipts of Stock at the Wichita Union Stock Yards for the Past 24 Hours were: Cattle, light; Hogs, 519. Shipments: Cattle, 141.

WICHITA MARKETS.

WICHITA, Jan. 29.

The supply of cattle consisted mostly of holdovers from yesterday's market. The fresh receipts were light. Butcher stuff of good quality is strong and canners are quoted steady. Salesmen today quoted the market on stockers barely steady.

The quotations here presented are to give the shipper an idea of the general range of prices. The various classes and grades sell within the limits of these quotations, according to the quality of offerings and the state of the daily markets. These quotations are only changed when there has been a permanent change in the general market. The representative sales should be referred to to get the daily fluctuations.

VISITING CARDS.

A Wife Leaves One Only of Her Husband's Cards This Season.

The latest relict in the etiquette of card leaving, according to the New York Sun, relieves us from the necessity of distributing a shower of pasteboards all along the weary way we traverse in a calling expedition, that is if we would follow English customs. A few years ago it became a fixed rule that a woman calling on a husband and wife without her consort should leave two of his cards and one of her own with the servant at the door. But the great calling world has gradually decided that it is intensely stupid to use up twice as many of a man's cards as of a woman's, when it is plain that a call on the wife is a call on the husband. Consequently, unless you are very punctilious, it is considered quite sufficient to leave one gentleman's card. The lady's card should be left only when the hostess is out, except in the case of a first call, and should not be left at "at homes," teas or receptions if you would be English and up to date.

The fashionable card for a lady is a shade smaller than that of last year. It couldn't be a shade larger without resembling a reception or dinner invitation, so the reduction was a coercive measure. The man's card is smaller and narrower than that of former years, the proper dimensions being one and a half inches in width and a little more than three inches in length.

Two Scared Indians.

Two Indians from the La Pointe reservation arrived in Bayfield a few days ago paralyzed with fear. They told a wonderful story of adventure. They had started on a hunt on Madeline island and intended to visit some friends. They camped on a spot about four miles from the village. At midnight the Indians were aroused by a fearful struggle. Before them were two men and a woman battling, the contestants being covered with blood.

The Indians say the forms disappeared afterward, but the sounds and groans were kept up all night. People in that vicinity claim there has been a terrible murder committed on the island some time in the past, and that the "ghosts" of the parties were seen by the Indians. —Milwaukee Wisconsin.

THE NEWEST FURNITURE.

Natural Finish Much in Vogue—Bedroom Suits Stained a Palm Leaf Green.

There is a tendency to produce bedroom suits, and in fact almost any style of furniture, except drawing room, in natural finish. This is handsome in oak, maple and mahogany, says The Decorator and Furnisher. Walnut is completely gone out of date, except in the cheaper grades. Beech, in natural finish, promises to come into quite extensive use, and in color it resembles natural mahogany. Besides the costly Turkish, Louis Seize, Louis Quinze and First Empire styles of drawing room furniture that are upholstered in brocades, brocatelles and satins, there is another class of work that only comes in the most expensive grades. The chairs and lounges of this class are concave backed, with woodwork handsomely painted in the place of upholstery. The modern bedroom, in addition to a bed, has for furniture a wardrobe, washstand, dressing table, a cabinet table and chair. While all these furnishings are different from each other, the general principle of design should be the same. As a proof that excellence of design can be had without a necessary dependence on cost, the authority already quoted mentions a set of bedroom furniture made in ordinary wood, stained a delicate palm leaf green and finished to a dull surface. The washstand has maize colored tiles with copper fittings. The entire set consists of wardrobe, washstand, dressing table, cabinet table and three chairs. The shape of the various articles could hardly be improved upon. The style of the design inclines to the Arabic.

An Attractive Table Mat.

One of the newest designs for a table mat is shown in the accompanying cut from Good Housekeeping. It is made of white satin drilling, with a cutwork design of wild roses and their leaves. The pattern is worked with Roman floss in colors—pink for the flowers and green for the leaves—the stitches employed being long and short buttonhole stitch, outlining and French knots.

A piece of white fishnet lace, which is firm and durable, is fastened beneath the square of linen, and the stitches are taken through the two materials. When finished the plain linen is cut out, leaving the net for the background. This mat, which is six inches square, is intended to be placed beneath a pretty glass or silver salt cellar, and a pair of them—one for each end of the table—would make a charming gift for the housewife who delights in dainty table linen.

A Cheap and Convenient Disinfectant.

There is such a variety of good disinfectants that the choosing is difficult. It is advisable to avoid such as smell very strongly, especially for traveling, as such things are unpleasant to oneself and to others, and the strong smelling disinfectants are by no means more effective than odorless ones. A cheap portable disinfectant is permanganate of potash; a bottle full of these crystals bought at the stores or any chemist's will last for years. It can be used when wanted by putting a pinch of the potash over night in a jug of water; in the morning it will present a reddish appearance, and can be used for drains, etc. A small quantity of this liquid kept in a basin and renewed daily keeps a room fresh and destroys disease germs. The only drawback is that, if too strong, the liquid will stain linen; at the same time it has the great advantage of being easily carried about, while it can be prepared in the smallest quantity at a moment's notice.

Embroidered Book Covers.

There is quite a rage for richly embroidered book bindings now. Ladies often make them for small wedding gifts. The material used is generally white Ottoman silk or some pale tint, but now and then a showy color ground is selected, such as bright yello Conventional floral designs are the favorites, and mostly we find a little gold twist introduced in the embroideries. Occasionally the ground is spangled. In almost every case the prettiest books are those with conventional designs carried out in brilliant shades. Another uncommon style of ornamentation that amateurs may be glad to hear of is the simulated lace applique. A white Ottoman silk book cover is embroidered at the corners with fine black silk, intricate lace stitches being copied to carry out the idea. While this is not so artistic as many of the floral designs, it has the charm of novelty to recommend.

Love's Wells.

These are dainty little cakes made by stamping out rounds of pound cake about 1½ inches thick, with a 2½ inch circular cutter, and cutting out their interior with another, a size smaller, so that the inside thereof may be neatly emptied to within half an inch of the bottom, leaving small round hollow cases, which should be refilled with whipped cream or covered with a spoonful of apricot jam. So prepared, the cakes should be masked with dull icing, prepared by just melting (not boiling) one-half pound of icing sugar, with rather more than a tablespoonful of rum and a squeeze of lemon juice. When iced, the cakes can be decorated with glace fruits or chopped pistachios as preferred. These are charming little cakes, and as good to eat as they are pretty to look at.

Italian Mode of Cooking Maccaroni.

Boil six ounces of the best maccaroni in three pints of boiling water, with a little pepper and salt. Allow it to simmer gently for fifteen or twenty minutes, then drain it; return the maccaroni to the saucepan with half a pint of good gravy and allow it to simmer until it has absorbed all the liquid. Have ready grated half a pound of cheese; put half of it with the maccaroni until it is nearly melted, and then add the remainder with an ounce of butter. Stir it well, always the one way, until cheese and maccaroni are well mixed. Serve very hot. A little short crust bordering the dish is an addition.
