DESTRUCTION FROM THE CLOUDS.

A TERRIFIC CYCLONE SWEEPS THROUGH THE PARISH.

The storm which swept over a portion of this Parish, on the night of the of the 14th inst, was the most violent and destructive in its character, which, in our recollection, has ever visited this section.

Our reporter who, on last Sunday repaired to the Elmwood Plantation on Bayou Robert, ten miles below Alexandria, to observe and to note the work of the destroying element, surveyed a scene of such utter and complete destruction, that it is impossible to appreciate it, save by actual observation.

The fearful and extraordinary forces which, in a single moment of time, had wrought such ruin and devastation, can only be compared to such destructive agents as nitro-glycerine and giant powder. Not a single object within its track, which was scarcely more than two-hundred and fifty yards in width was left standing. On the plantation alone, twelve buildings, including the sugar house, stables and quarters, were completely demolished and swept away. To say that they were blown down by the force of the wind might convey the idea that they had simply toppled over, and lay as they had fallen—such is not the case, the shivered and splintered remnants of even the heaviest timbers were hurled to immense distances, and huge oaks were twisted off and uprooted, some having fallen in the direction of the wind, and others in a reverse position. Even across the open field the track of the cyclone was as distinctly marked as the bed of a crevasse. The loss to the lessee, Mr. J. F. Davis, is very serious in every respect, four of his best mules were killed outright, besides others crippled; implements, tools, wagons, carts, poultry, his carriage and buggy, in a word, every thing which was on the place, except his household effects, were completely destroyed. It may be regarded as nothing less than a miracle that not a single life was lost, though a number of persons were considerably injured by the falling buildings. Mr. Davis and his engineer, Mr. Murphy, were in the sugar house, with five hands, at the time of the catastrophe, which was about 8 o'clock, p. m., and all escaped with comparatively slight injuries. In each of two buildings which stood near the sugar house, some ten hands had sought shelter, and though to look at the wrecks of the houses, we could not see how one escaped, yet none were much hurt.

INCIDENTS OF THE STORM.

The plantation bell, which weighs 300 pounds, was lifted from the frame, on which it was hung, and carried about one hundred feet; heavy cane plows were carried a distance of at least two hundred and fifty yards and dropped. Wheels and axles of cane wagons were lodged on the top of several large oaks which had fallen, one over the other, full 20 feet above the ground. Turnips were uprooted and were rolled along the ground, like so many marbles. From the wood-pile, at the sugar house, heavy sticks of oak wood were carried a quarter of a mile. One of the singular and remarkable characteristics of this storm fiend was the lurid glare which lit up the heavens, and rendered every thing as plainly visible as in midday. The direction of the storm was from South West to North-East, and it passed across Red River twelve miles below Alexandria at the plantation of Capt. Welch, on which place the same damage was done to buildings as at Elmwood.

The estimated loss to Mr. Davis and to Mrs. Ransdell, the owner of the plantation first named, will not be less than $10,000.

—THE Republican Convention of this Parish convened in the Court-House on Saturday last, had a full set of delegates, and went to work in excellent style. After considerable debate and caucusing, they unanimously endorsed the State ticket, headed by Taylor Beattie, and then very deliberately endorsed the whole Democratic District, Senatorial and Partsh tickets. This was done, after full discussion and due deliberation, and by a decided majority. We are glad that they arrived at so sensible a conclusion, and hooted the idea of endorsing or supporting another jambalaya ticket like the last one forced on them. We accord them due credit for their good sense and sound judgment in the matter, and assure them that our party appreciate the compliment, and together we will elect a most elegant ticket, composed of good and true men.

HAIL TO THE CHIEF!

THE NEXT GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA, LOUIS ALFRED WILTZ.

Before to-morrow's sun will have set, the patriotic people of Rapides will have welcomed to our Parish that gallant and honored son of Louisiana, whose name heads this article. Whatever of honor and distinction may be justly accorded him, as the standard-bearer and as the chosen candidate of a great political organization, representing, as it does, the intelligence, the wealth and the dignity of the commonwealth of Louisiana, for the highest office in their gift, there is still another character in which he comes, that we recognize as not less honorable, and even more worthy of admiration, than the most eminent station or position to which party preferment can elevate.

Through all the vicissitudes of fortune which, in the past ten years, have come to the people of this State, Mr. Wiltz has faithfully, consistently and manfully contended against the mailed horde of tyrants, thieves and villains who, hedged about by bayonets, and sustained by the usurpations of the wanton, reckless and unprincipled occupant of the White House, set at defiance all law and all precedent, and who has left as legacy to our impoverished State a record of crimes inscribed in letters of blood, to which no other country in any age can furnish a parallel.

In the record of services rendered the State, in the darkest hours of oppression, and which is replete with unselfish and patriotic actions, inspired by the purest sentiment, the name of Louis A. Wiltz will stand resplendent in that galaxy composed of Louisiana's noblest and truest sons.

Ask the perecuted citizens of Louisiana, from every quarter, from Natchitoches, from Caddo and from Tensas, many of whom without friends and without money had been dragged from those remote Parishes to New Orleans, falsely charged with various offenses, ask them, who sought them out, who procured counsel, who contributed money without stint, and who stood beside them in the prisoner's dock to cheer them with sympathy and kindly counsel? the answer will be Gov. Wiltz. "By their acts shall we know them."

Fellow citizens of Rapides, irrespective of party, need we say to you, that in such hands your government will be faithfully and impartially administered?

At this peculiar juncture in our affairs, it is singularly fortunate for the people of Louisiana that a man so eminently fitted by special training, as it were, and by a varied experience in legislative and administrative capacities, should be called upon to administer the government and to inaugurate the various reforms contemplated under the proposed Constitution.

On behalf of the Democracy of Rapides we extend to the distinguished chief and his colleagues and associates, our hearty congratulations and best wishes of success, with the assurance that when the roll is called Rapides will respond in unmistakable terms and with a unanimity which contemplates but one result.

THE BARBECUES.

MR. EDITOR—

The campaign opened on the 12th, at Nicholls', with a large and enthusiastic gathering of good, sound and conservative Democrats, men and women. The latter, by the way, as one of the speakers truly said, "were the power in the land." Col. Hathaway led off in the speaking with telling effect, demonstrating the fact that he was not only a man of intelligence, but willingly ready and capable to act well his part as Legislator and friend of the people of all political creeds. Mr. Connella followed Col. H. in true Democratic and Conservative style, showing that his heart and soul were centered in the success of the party. Mr. C. has in all our campaigns given both his services and money to forward the success of the party, and is deserving of more than passing notice. Capt. Lewis Texada was the next speaker, reading a letter from our next Senator, R. L. Luckett, regreting his inability to attend the meeting on account of sickness of a patient. It is useless to speak of the letter, as Dr. Luckett is too well known to need any praise at our hands;—suffice to say, however, that the letter was well appreciated, and was listened to with marked attention. Capt. Texada's remarks were received with the applause and attention they so justly deserved. Mr. Ed. Hunter, our District Attorney, was the next speaker, making one of the best campaign speeches ever listened to. He was easy and graceful in his delivery, receiving rounds of applause. Judge W. F. Blackman was the next called to the stand, and as he was the last to address the audience, it may be well said that his effort was the "dessert" to this political treat. His eloquent address, interspersed with pointed jokes, caused every one to regret the time for him to close. Col. Wise and Dave Paul, and another aspirant for political favors, circulated freely through the crowd—encouraging the weak, registering the needy, smiling with the ladies, SMOKING with the boys, and in fact making themselves generally useful and agreeable. The table was then spread with an abundance of everything "good," and from the manner and rapidity with which shoat, turkey and barbecued beef disappeared, the ladies could have but felt that all appreciated their efforts to make the gathering a political success.

The 13th, at Hatch's Store, was but a repitition of Nicholls'. The attendance was large, and fully impressed with the importance of success, and openly avowed that the Calcasieu box should come in solid December 2d. Three cheers for Calcasieu Ward and its people, whose hearts are filled with hospitality and welcome.

The 14th, at Melder's, was indeed a success, and every one present enjoyed the occasion to the fullest extent; and in fact wherever you may go in the pinewoods, you will find its people honest, intelligent and filled with hospitality. As to the ladies, they are indeed "created of every creature's best."

ASPIRANT.

HE STILL LIVES.

The fertile brain of our beloved Kellogg, now that he can no longer rely with confidence upon the decrees of Returning Boards, has been busy to discover or invent some new machine or device, by which he hopes he may be able to foist his starveling gang once more upon the people of this State. To bring about this much desired end, he proposes to have the Republican managers send to Louisiana in the present canvass, such speakers as Blaine, Garfield, Sherman and others of that stamp. He believes that this plan will succeed in bringing out the elements of every class that can be enlisted or combined in crushing out the people who have driven him and his crew beyond the borders of Louisiana. We would say to the representative men of the North, irrespective of party, that the people of Louisiana will extend the hand of good-fellowship to all such as may come to see us, or to study the relations of parties, or of the races at the South; and while we shall welcome them with all courtesy and civility, and throw open the doors to enable them to see for themselves, we will only ask that they divest themselves of all prejudice and mingle with the people whose welfare, as a unit, they are presumed alone to consider. But if we are to understand thot they are to come as agitators and to foment and rekindle the slumbering passions of race against race, to array under the banners of a new crusade the now harmonious elements in our State we would warn them, consider the awful responsibility and the dire calamities which they invite; we would say to them calmly aud dispassionately, never again shall the fiends of darkness, such as the Kelloggs and Chamberlains and Moses seize by the might of fraud, and administer with the brazen effrontery of the Devil, the offices in any of the Southern States.

There is something supremely ludicrous in the idea that a sneak thief such as Kellogg should still be revolving plans which can never be made effective.

Can it be, dear William, that you are not yet resigned to the fate which awaits you and yours? Do you still cherish, even in your exile, memories of the long ago?—and does there still linger a yearning to drink once again from the fountain whose waters have quenched the fiery thirst and cooled the fevered brow? Shades of Pinchback, Dibble, Campbell, Packard, Badger, Wells and Anderson, brothers all, valiant warriors in the same goodly array, your chief pines to lead you once again, to look into those faces wan and scarred, bearing the impress of sleepless vigils and countless crimes. Even amid the gloomy halls of the stately capitol, surrounded by the trappings and pomp of station, he calls to you—and whether reclining upon the cushioned divan, in the intervals of calm repose which follow the sharp debate, or in the subdued and silent watches of the night, in troubled dreams, aroused by an unseen hand, he summons about him those tried and trusty spirits—aye, he quivers, his breast heaves, he starts, and in tones that cannot be disguised, he cries:—"Durell! Durell! Durell! be quick! be quick! save me or I perish!"

One dollar's worth of "BLACK-DRAUGHT" will save fifty dollars in doctor's bills.

—THE Republican Convention, on Saturday last did it, and the "independent bolting boom" has faded away and that so calmly and peacefully. We do not know what hastened the tender little creature's decease—we only know that the Republican Convention did it, and that it drooped and pined and wasted away, and finally folded its emaciated arms over its vest pattern and gave a stifled moan and a spasmodic gasp and was seen no more of men. Some say it was Daigre, some say it was Barbin, some say it was a case of hope deferred. The Boss who was the sponsor of the deceased in baptism, thinks it was general debility, a wasting away of the vitals and the inwards. The "old one," the bereaved parent of the lamented corpse, says the little creature perished from lack of sustenance; he was with his precious progeny when it collapsed, and he says its final dissolution was like the expiring wail of a steam calliope, or the last faint struggle of a squash bug in a basin of suds. The remains have been pickled and will be exhibited in a metallic casket at the Taylor Beattie pow-wow here on the 25th inst, during which impressive ceremony a distinguished mourner will play an appropriate dirge on a patent orquinette.

NATIONAL SURGICAL INSTITUTE.—The annual visit of an Examining Surgeon from this well known Institute, will be made to New Orleans December 1st, 1879. In its chosen specialties, Club Feet, Spinal and Hip diseases, Paralysis, contraction, and diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, private diseases, Catarrh, Diseases of the Eye, Ear, etc., this Institute is unexcelled. —TAYLOR BEATTIE, the Radical nominee for Governor, backed and supported by the same old Radical pack which brought Louisiana to ruin and bankruptcy, is kept up from dark despair by the hope that the old Whig party will soon arise, fling off its shroud and join him and his pack in their hunt for place and plunder. But Wiltz and his fellow-Democrats on our excellent State ticket, will make the whole pack stagger with one wild, weird, woful shriek, and make them feel as Othello felt when he remarked that his profession had stepped out.
