COINS OF HAWAII SUBJECT OF TALK BY NUMISMATIST

By JOHN P. G. ARNDT
(Numismatist, Delavan, Wis.)

[Paper read at the annual meeting of the Hawaiian Historical Society.]

Prior to the year 1883 there existed in the Hawaiian islands for circulation the coins of the United States, England, Spain, France and Mexico, with the exception of a local paper currency issued at Lahainaluna before the year 1850, and some notes issued by Ladd & Co. of Honolulu in 1858. Besides this paper currency, there were in circulation copper coins, the "hapa haneri" pieces, with bust of King Kamehameha III., issued in 1847, and a tradesman's token issued by John Thomas Waterhouse of Honolulu in 1862, with portrait of King Kamehameha IV., struck in white metal, for the small change in the islands.

But of a regular coinage we cannot speak until after the accession of Kalakaua I. to the throne of Hawaii 1874. In 1881, on a trip around the world in company with William Armstrong, his minister of the interior, and Colonel Judd, his chamberlain, his majesty was approached in Vienna, Austria, by officials representing the French and Belgian mints, who suggested his having a national coinage issued for his island kingdom. By order of the king, patterns for the new coins were struck in nickel, bearing on reverse the crowned figure 5, surrounded by a ribbon with the Hawaiian legend: "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono." But owing to a mistake of the engraver of the coins, the word "Au" was substituted in place of "Ua." The obverse had the portrait of Kalakaua to left with title of King of Sandwich Islands and the year 1881. The king was so pleased with the idea of an independent coinage that he ordered several hundred pieces to be coined for circulation, but owing to the error in the motto, his native subjects did not approve of the new coins. Consequently a good many were either destroyed or distributed among his friends.

His realm therefore was still without an independent coinage, until Claus Spreckels, banker and sugar plantation owner in the islands, approached his majesty in 1883 on the subject of having a silver coinage struck off for the benefit of the Hawaiian nation. Accordingly, application having been made by the Hawaiian government for the coinage at the San Francisco Mint of $1,000,000 in silver, to correspond with the coins of the United States in weight and fineness.

The coinage applied for having been authorized by the secretary of the treasury, the director of the mint, with his approval, fixed the charges for coining the number of pieces specified, which, having been paid, the coinage was commenced on the 17th November, 1883. The dies prepared for the purpose and furnished by the agent of the Hawaiian government were, upon completion of the coinage in June, 1884, forwarded to and remain in the possession of the director of the mint.

The application specified the coinage of a piece of the value of one-eighth of a dollar, but this was subsequently changed to the value of ten cents. The total coinage, in pieces and value, was as follows:

Denomination:	Pieces.	Value.
Dollars	500,000	$ 500,000
Half-dollars	700,000	350,000
Quarter-dollars	500,000	125,000
Dimes	250,000	25,000
Total	1,950,000	$1,000,000

The designs for the new Hawaiian silver coins were prepared by Mr. Barber at the Philadelphia mint, and in beauty and workmanship surpass almost our own coins of the United States. The reverse of the dollar represents the royal coat of arms of Hawaii, with mantle supported, and the star of the Order of Kamehameha suspended around the Hawaiian legend: "Ua mau ke ea o ka aina i ka pono." The figure 1 to left and letter D to right, signifying One Dollar, below "Akahi Dala." The half and quarter-dollar pieces bore the crowned shield, with motto as above and inscription "Hapalua," 1-2 D, for the former, and "hapaha" 1-4 D, for the latter. The design for the one-eighth dollar on reverse is "hapawalu" with Hawaiian crown above surrounded by a wreath with legend as on the dollar, below in the English language, Eighth Dollar. For the dime piece the design is similar to the last; the inscription reads: "One Dime," below "Umi Kencta." The obverses of all the coins bear the bust of Kalakaua I., king of Hawaii, and the year, 1883. They are all milled edge.

The Hawaiian government issued against deposits of this silver coinage treasury notes in denominations of $10, $20, $50, and $100. An act approved July 17th, 1884, by King Kalakaua to regulate the currency reads as follows:

From and after December 1, 1884, the gold coins of the United States of America shall be the standard and legal tender at their nominal value in payment of all debts, public and private, within the kingdom of Hawaii. Further the standard silver coins of the United States of America and the silver coins of Hawaii shall be, from and after December 1, 1884, a legal tender at their nominal value for any amount not exceeding $10 in any one payment. From and after December 1, 1884, gold and silver coins other than the United States and Hawaii shall be received in the treasury at a rate not exceeding their bullion value, for government dues, duties and taxes. Chapter 37 of Session Laws of 1880, being an act to provide for a national coinage, is hereby repealed; and chapter 41 of sessions laws of 1876 being an act to regulate the currency, is hereby repealed, this repeal to take effect December 1, 1884.

With the accession of Liliuokalani as queen in 1891 there were issued unofficially in England by R. Huth, Esq., a pattern silver dollar bearing bust of Liliuokalani I., "Liliuocalania Dei Gratia." On reverse, hemisphere showing Hawaiian islands, "Hawaiarum Regina, 1891, Akahi Dala." Also a twenty-dollar gold piece was coined with same portrait and inscription, reverse of the coin showing two "puloulou" staffs with royal crown above, below "20 Dala," surrounded by a wreath. To my knowledge, there are only four copies of those gold coins in existence, a rarity, as I understand it. After the abrogation of the monarchy, January 17, 1893, there was issued by the same gentleman a pattern silver dollar of the Princess Victoria Kaiulani, former heiress presumptive to the throne of Hawaii, bearing bust of princess to right, surrounded by three dolphins. "Caiulania Liliuocalaniae Reginae Sororis Filia," reverse hemisphere showing Hawaiian islands; "Spes Publica, Oct. XVI., MDCCCXCIII. The dies for the three above-mentioned coins were prepared by J. H. Pinches, Esq., an English engraver of renown. These coins never really circulated, but were held by friends and admirers of ex-Queen Liliuokalani and are to some extent rare and much sought after by numismatists.

Since the annexation of Hawaii in 1898, most of the Hawaiian silver coins were exchanged at par value and entered the melting-pot of Uncle Sam's mint at San Francisco, Cal., so that collectors of coins will some day pay handsome prices for obtaining any of those tokens representing the former coinage of the kingdom of Hawaii.
