Gen. Dix's Patriotic Order—The Flags of the McClellan.

The following correspondence has been furnished for publication:

FORTRESS MONROE, July 19, 1862.

Hon. S P. Chase, Secretary of the Treasury:

MY DEAR SIR: I enclose a copy of a letter from Maj. Gen. Butler. The two flags have been received. It would be very gratifying to my family if I could be permitted to retain them. They are small, and their value consists almost entirely in the associations connected with them.

I am, dear sir, very truly yours.

JOHN A. DIX, Major General.

HEADQUARTERS DEP'T OF THE GULF,
New Orleans, La., June 26, 1862.

MY DEAR GENERAL: When I read your decisive and patriotic order, as Secretary of the Treasury, "to shoot on the spot" whomsoever should attempt to haul down the American flag, my heart bounded with joy. It was the first bold stroke in favor of the Union under the past Administration.

It gives me, therefore, redoubled pleasure to testify my admiration by sending you the identical flag of the revenue cutter McClellan, which was the subject of that order, together with the Confederate flag which was hoisted by traitor hands in its place.

David Ritchie, a young Scotch sailor on board that boat, remaining true to his adopted country, when so many of her sons proved recreant, went on board the McClellan when she was being burned by the Confederates and brought off the flags.

His affidavit, which accompanies this, will give you the details of the facts.

I doubt not the Secretary of the Treasury will permit you to retain the flags, which could not be in better hands.

Believe me, General, most truly yours.

BENJ. F. BUTLER.

To Major General JOHN A. DIX.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, July 20th, 1862.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I am highly gratified by the just appreciation of the fitness of things displayed by General Butler, in sending to you the flags of the McClellan, forever associated with your memorable order. No one has so good a right to them as yourself. My consent to your retaining them is most cordially given.

Yours most truly,
S. P. CHASE, Secretary of the Treasury.

Order by General Sigel.
