BREED THEATER.

Children Who Labor, Feature Picture, Produced in Co-operation With National Child Labor Committee.

The very interesting film story entitled Children Who Labor is the feature picture at the Breed today and appeals strongly to every thinking man, woman and child.

Beginning with a scene of the toiling masses of children on their way to the mills, the story unfolds with a situation which few people realize, men being thrown out of employment and children are hired to work.

A foreigner applies for work but is refused, although his child will be hired. The owner refuses his influence against child labor, even when the possibility of his own little girl's being forced to labor is mentioned.

Later the mill owner's wife and daughter start on a pleasure trip, and the child playfully steps off the train at a station and is unable to board it again, the frantic mother witnessing the affair. The child is found by the family of the foreigner who was refused work at her father's mill. The foreign mother keeps the child until the money is gone and the child is forced to work.

One day while the mill owner was making a trip through his mill with his wife, a fainting child is carried hurriedly past them, and the wife follows out of curiosity and pity. Imagine the surprise and joy when she discovers the child to be her own. The father sees the errors of his way and the little foreign children are released from their bondage of labor.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

The Battle of the Red Men, No. 3 of the 101-Bison Series.

Good judgment was shown when the Auditorium management arranged for the exclusive rights of the 101 Bison films for this city. The first two subjects have already been shown and have been universally approved. These films open a new era in motion pictures, as they are produced on a much larger scale than any other films on the market. Each picture is a living reproduction of life in the far west, as it was, and is based on fact. The third of the series will be shown today and tomorrow and it is entitled The Battle of the Red Men. A peculiar fact about this picture is that it is played entirely by real Indians, not a white man in the company, and it shows a tribal war between the Cheyennes and the Ogallalla Sioux. The bison films are shown every Monday and Tuesday.

The vaudeville bill for the first half of the week is excellence itself, and the three numbers are all headline acts. The big act for today is The Empire State Quartette of four male voices. This act is rapidly forging its way to the front and it is not often that this city has a chance of seeing an act of this calibre at popular prices.

Leora Venette, a mimic, will present her well known imitations of stage favorites, using her own special scenery, and numerous changes of costume. The third number is a screamingly funny farce comedy entitled Going Back to Mother, and it is presented by Gordon and Warren. This act depicts a little domestic incident that contains both comedy and pathos and it is a perfect little gem of a playlet, acted by performers of more than ordinary merit.

Besides the big Bison feature there are other photoplay features as follows: The Yeggsman, a remarkable melodrama by the Reliance Co., featuring Jane Fearnley and Henry Walthall in the leading parts. The renowned Thanhouser Co. offers one of its famous child pictures with the Thanhouser Kid in the leading role, which is claimed to be the best part she ever had.

POLI'S.

The week opens with a special programme of new pictures, songs and music—a genuine all-feature bill with prices remaining the same. A very pretty and effective picture story is entitled Her Boy, a pathetic story of the widow Morton and her two sons, Jim, a boy of seven, and Joe, a little fellow five years old.

"The Lemon" is a comedy that will put to flight every grouch and leave every one happy. It relates how Percy Kelton, a young vaudeville artist and female impersonator, secures a note of introduction from his friend Allison, a theatrical booking agent, to Jackson, a noted manager, who has a new show in preparation. Very amusing complications follow.

The American Biograph subject, The Fatal Chocolate, has all the finish and detail characteristic of this splendid company and has a delightful finish. Another Biograph subject is "Got a Match," in which burglars mix up in an elopement.

The Edison company presents His Daughter, a story with a plot a little stronger than the ordinary modern picture tale revolving about a stage-struck girl and her unworthy father.

COLCHESTER

Burial of Stephen Austin—Brockett's Mill Moves to Winsted—Boys' Club to Feast.

The body of Stephen Austin was brought here from Berlin Saturday for burial in Linwood cemetery. Mr. Austin was a former resident of this place and worked for the old rubber company for a number of years. After the mill shut down he worked at the mason trade until he moved to Berlin. He was a Civil war veteran, a member of Morton A. Taintor post of this place. The members of the post attended the services at the cemetery. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Ernest Brown and Mrs. Frederick Chamberlain of Berlin, and two sons, Henry and Charles of New Britain.

About the Borough.

George B. A. Baker of New Britain was the guest of his parents on Hayward avenue over Sunday.

The last of the teams and men of C. L. Brockett's mill left Friday for Winsted, where Mr. Brockett has a large tract of timber which he will cut off. Mr. Brockett has had his mill in town for a number of years and has been quite a benefit to the town, as he has employed a large number of men and teams.

Miss Mary Wade was a caller in Hartford last week.

Earlier Summer in the South.

Miss Josephine Dawley, Frederick T. Bunce and Joseph Kelley arrived at their homes in town Friday from Green Cove Springs, Fla., where they have been playing at a large hotel during the winter. They report that the weather was getting so hot that the guests were leaving for their homes several weeks earlier than usual. They will remain here for several weeks and expect to go to the Thousand Island house, Canada, for the summer, where they played last season.

Daniel Horton was at his home in Gilead over Sunday.

Nelson Webster has moved his household goods from Asa B. Taylor's house on Norwich avenue to the Hillside farm, Salem, which he has rented.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Rev. R. M. D. Adams of Grace Church Resigns—Rhode Islands Reach Second Place in Candlepin League—Warrens Lead.

Rev. R. M. D. Adams, who has been rector of Grace church for the past four years, has resigned to go to Christ Memorial church in North Brookfield. It was with much regret that his parishioners learned of his resignation, and efforts were made to induce him to stay. After careful consideration the resignation was accepted. Mr. Adams has been an earnest worker in the cause of religion and has done a great deal for Grace church. After coming here he had the church renovated at considerable expense. The Sunday school has been improved and increased largely in numbers. He has organized a vested choir and been largely interested in the Knights of King Arthur. Mr. Adams has many friends outside of his own denomination who regret that he and Mrs. Adams are to leave town. His resignation will take effect May 1st.

RHODE ISLANDS CLIMBING.

Get Up to Second Place in Candlepin League.

The Rhode Islands, by winning three points from the Clerks last week, are now in second place, one point behind the Warrens, who still continue to lead in the Stafford Candlepin league. The Independents were only able to connect for two from the Johnsons and have dropped to third place. With only four more weeks to roll, and two points separating the first three teams, it would be a difficult matter at this time to name the probable winner. No records were touched the past week and Mullins still has a good lead for high individual average.

Mrs. Maria Eaton Burnett.

Mrs. Maria Eaton Burnett, widow of Dr. Burnett, of Webster, died Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence M. Smith, of Williamstown, Mass. She had been ill but two days, death resulting from pneumonia. She was born in Chaplin, Conn., the daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Edwin Eaton, and was 78 years old. Since that time she had spent the winters with her daughters and the summers at her summer home in Duxbury. She went to Williamstown last November and had lived with her daughter, Mrs. Smith, during the winter. She had been affiliated with the Congregational church for many years. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Clara Mills, wife of Justice I. N. Mills of the supreme court of New York, of Westchester, N. Y., Mrs. Clarence M. Smith of Williamstown and Miss Mary E. POETRY.

THE BUSY MOTHER.

From early dawn she works—till late at night;
No rest for aching brow or tired feet;
Her help brings aid in every childish plight—
To every baby-woe a refuge sweet.

At night she sits, a babe upon her arm—
Its tiny head in safety on her breast;
About her knee, secure from any harm,
She hears the lisping prayers of all the rest.

As she, all weariness and cares forgot,
Imprints upon each cheek her good-night kiss,
Not with a queen would she exchange her lot—
No throne could bring such happiness as this.

Dear, loyal mother! we who love her know
That, clothed in mystery deep, her kingdom lies
(Safe and secure where none but she may go)
Within the azure depths of baby's eyes.

Tired mother, falter not—each noble deed,
However small, is watched by One above;
He help will send, each wayward step to lead,
And power to rule each little heart with love.

—Sara Roberts Cretty, in Freeburg Mining Journal.

TODAY.

Wait not tomorrow's sun before you do
Some friendly deed, guised all in tenderness,
Speak but a word, offer a caress
Which, from its grief, a lonely heart may woo
And thrill with sunshine. Is there chance today
To offer succor, speak a passing word,
That shows the depths to which your heart is stirred?
Improve it quickly, lest the circumstance
Leave one more blemish on your struggling soul—
For which, some day, your own grief shall pay toll
In unshared sorrow, scanty sympathy—
A cold world's sneer upon your misery.

—Laurana Sheldon.
