JULY REACHES A LOW POINT

Corn and Oats Were Likewise Affected and Fell Off--Pork Also Lost a Few Cents.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Money on call was nominally 2½@3 per cent, closing offered at 2½ per cent.

Posted rates, $4.87½@4.90½.

Government bonds easier.

Lower cables from London and the failure of a broker in American securities there had a tendency to demoralize the local stock market at the opening this morning. Prices in the first few minutes of business dropped anywhere from ½@1½ per cent.

At this time the grangers developed strength on the favorable reports of the Rock Island and St. Paul roads for May. The St. Paul shows a gain in gross earnings of $288,674 and the Rock Island a gain of $253,000. This started up a lively inquiry for the grangers and imparted a strong tone to the general market, and the general list reacted slightly. In the final dealings the market was firmer, prices showing a net gain for the day of ¼@3 per cent. Sho sales were 97,843 shares.

Chicago Markets.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Wheat opened strong, but on the Schaffner bank troubles and other local financial troubles July was forced down ¼c and then ½c more. September broke ½c. There was a slight rally to 68½c and 72½c. There was no important change before the close. There was a rally in July to 68⅝@68¾c, and September again touched the opening price at 72⅝c. The close was a shade under these figures.

Corn was firm early with wheat, but soon turned weak with that cereal and went off ¾c. There was an improvement before noon of ¼@½c, a shade better than last night for September. The close was ¼@⅜c lower than yesterday, except for September, which was ⅝c better.

Oats weakened soon after the opening and June declined ½c, July dropped ½c, rallied ¼c, touched the low figure (28¼c) again and closed at 28⅝c. September broke ⅜c to 26¼c, closing at the low quotation.

There was very little trade in provisions, but prices eased off on the lower hog market and some talk of an increased movement. September sold as low as $21.90, a break of 10c, and closed at the low figure. September lard also closed at the low figure of the day. Ribs closed at a loss of 5c.

Closing prices:

London Grain.

LONDON, June 3.—The grain markets opened this morning quiet. At Liverpool wheat steady, red winter ½d lower; corn firm but active. California wheat unchanged. Wheat on passage inactive. The French markets were very quiet.

LOCAL MARKETS.

SATURDAY, June 3, 1893.—Wheat has declined one cent since yesterday's quotations, the market now ruling tame and unsteady (at the heretofore unknown price for over half a century) at 64 cents per bushel. The backbone to this important cereal was broken on Thursday last by a reduction from 66 to 65 cents, the former price having ruled firm for upwards of ten days and Saturday it dropped to 64. The tendency of the market is still downward and, as we yesterday predicted, the fall may not cease until the 60 cent notch is reached, and may be lower still. One of the principal causes for this sudden and unlooked for slump is no doubt owing to the failure of banks and the stringency in the money market throughout the country. The outlook is not altogether gloomy. Certain lines of trade, notably grain, will, no doubt, be protected, although to what extent remains to be seen. Corn and oats have also suffered a decline during the past week, and the tendency of prices are downward. Green hides, sugar, hogs and lard will sooner or later be affected and reach a lower figure. The prices, however, so far remain unchanged from last quotations. The meat and fish market continues firm with sufficient supply to meet home demands. Garden sauce is becoming more plentiful and cheaper, with good supply. Old potatoes are scarce and prices remain firm at 90 cents per bushel. New potatoes are not in the market. Hay has fallen in price $1 per ton during the past week. The market has been rather dull and slow for all grades. The wood market is firm, the supply being rather limited, especially for dry hardwood. Building material has undergone no quotable change of late, the supply being equal to the demand. The revised quotations follow:

THE OUTLOOK IN BELGIUM.

Constitutional Provisions Which Are Clumsy and Must Be Changed Soon.

The struggle in Belgium for a popular government is far from being ended. The legislative chambers have only revised as yet one clause in the constitution—that referring to the right of suffrage. How much need there was for an extension of the electoral franchise will appear from the following exhibit of the number of voters in proportion to population in the United States and 10 of the parliamentary states in Europe:

France—One voter in every 5.69 of population.
Greece—One voter in every 6.25 of population.
United States—One voter in about 6.60 of population.
Germany—One voter in every 6.67 of population.
Great Britain—One voter in every 6.10 of population.
Italy—One voter in every 16.67 of population.
Holland—One voter in every 16.67 of population.
Norway—One voter in every 16.67 of population.
Sweden—One voter in every 16.69 of population.
Hungary—One voter in about 20 of population.
Belgium—One voter in every 25.20 of population.

Some of the provisions respecting the extension of the electoral franchise appear very strange to an American. One vote is to be given to every male Belgian citizen who is 25 years old and has resided in a commune for one year. Belgian male citizens who are 35 years old, have a family and pay a property tax of at least $1 are to have two votes. Such of these persons as own land or government stock realizing at least $20 a year are to have three votes. Four votes are given to those who have taken a university degree, but then, by a provision inconsistent with this, no one can cast more than three votes at any one election. It is not very likely that such complex provisions will continue very long. Then, too, by another provision voting is to be compulsory on the part of those to whom the electoral franchise has been given. We doubt whether this provision will last very long, and if it should it will be difficult to enforce it.

Other proposed provisions seem very grotesque. It is proposed that minorities shall be represented, and also that the senate shall be divided into groups, respectively representing various interests, such as industry, science, art, etc.

When these subjects shall have been disposed of, there will be a general election. And it requires no prophet to foretell that then there will begin a fresh agitation for universal suffrage. The masses in Belgium will certainly not be satisfied with such crumbs of concessions and such clumsy, complicated arrangements as the proposed new political constitution will contain.—Catholic Standard.

Hoarding Gold Certificates.

It is singular how the average wayfaring man and woman regards the gold problem. Only a few days ago I met a man who is moderately well to do, and who has come to the conclusion that the country is in a very bad way and that gold will soon be at a very substantial premium. Acting on this idea he has been for some years accumulating and hoarding gold bills. Every time he has received a payment in currency he has sorted it out carefully, preserving all those bills payable in gold and passing away those calling for silver or not specifying any kind of coin. He had quite a large box full of gold bills in his safe, and he told me their aggregate value was about $700, and that he had been collecting them for over eight years.

I tried to show him the loss he sustained in the way of interest and what a serious thing it would be for the country if all business men withdrew money from circulation in that way. He listened courteously, but with an incredulous smile, and it has occurred to me that it is more than possible that many thousands of dollars, if not millions, are being hoarded in this distinctly unsatisfactory and unprofitable manner.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

At the Commencement.

"Mr. Yaleblue, I want to ask you a question," remarked the Wellesley maiden to her partner as they entered the conservatory.

"A thousand if you like," replied the gallant collegian.

"What is a kiss?"

The young man was taken aback, but quickly pulled himself together and firmly said, "This is."

"Sir," replied the indignant seeker after higher culture, "you misunderstand me. The interrogation I put to you was a mathematical problem which I thought might interest a student from Yale college."

"It does, it does," said the junior as he twirled his light mustache, "but if it's a conundrum I give it up."

The maiden's eyes sparkled, and there was music in her voice as she threw out the answer, "Why, it's nothing, divided by two."—Truth.
