Why Some Succeed and Others Fail in Business.

To all young men just about to embark, and to all older ones already under way, in business, of whatever kind, the foregoing question is a very important one, especially when it is borne in mind that most men sooner or later bankrupt and fail in their business undertakings; not merely merchants and tradesmen, but even farmers, and those of all occupations. Why so much miscarriage and wreck, when all seems so easy and promising, usually, in the outset? Is it accident? is it luck? Sometimes, perhaps, but not usually. Cause and effect are probably as nearly allied in business matters as in anything else; and when plans fail and prospects smash, careful enquiry in the right direction will usually explain the why and the wherefore, beyond a doubt.

The first and by far the most common reason of failure among American business men, among all mankind, is the disposition to do too much. We are eternally over-rating our capabilities, and planning more than we can accomplish. The farmer buys too big a farm, the merchant too many goods; the speculator gets too deeply in debt; and all promise themselves more than they can perform. A year, two years, five years, when looking ahead, how remote it appears; but alack, how soon it passes away, especially to him that owes money, or has made promises that it plagues him to perform.

The three hundred and sixty-five days of a year, how quickly they roll around; a day, a week, a month,—the spring, the summer, the autumn passes, each in rapid succession, and soon the year is gone, and the promise that is made upon the future, how hard is it often found in the performance.

Did we judge more wisely, and, after due allowances for mishaps and disappointments, more or less of which will always come, did we calculate more closely, and always within the mark, how different would be the results of all our undertakings, and how much less the agonies and strifes to keep the head above water.

Yes, friend, almost all our pecuniary ills arise from miscalculation of our capacity, or rather over calculation, in our projects and undertakings. Does any one wish a proof of this? If so let him look about him; it will be readily discovered on all hands. Every community abounds in ample numbers who have overdone, or are overdoing—wrecks that have been cast on shore because they spread too much sail; and plenty of others always driving the same way, and for the same cause. Yea, the world is full of pecuniary misery for this simple reason. Now and then some one sails through extravagant projects with flying colors, and their success tempts scores to follow, only to meet destruction.

Will the mass of mankind, and especially the young and rising generation, ever learn prudence from the folly of those who have gone before them, or must they take their entire schooling from experience? that is the all-important question. As the drunkard always finds enough to encouage him to drink, so with those embarking in business; enough parties will always be met with ready to urge them in too deep, either from folly or some selfish design. But those who would be prudent should, when in doubt, always take the safe, side, and be content to do little rather than too much.

Listen not to the tempter in the form of credit, but regard it as a poisonous serpent almost sure to bite you. When any one offers to sell you upon credit, what you do not absolutely need, regard him as a pick-pocket, for so he will usually prove. But, says the reader, would you not tolerate credit in any case? Yes, we would reply; but only in the most urgent cases; if your team is broken up for the want of a horse or an ox, and you have no means with which to purchase, rather than fail in seeding, go in debt. But to go in debt, for a fancy horse or carriage, without known and certain arrangements for the pay, would be an almost unpardonable folly, and bespeak a careless and dangerous business character, and one that would probably lead to trouble, if not bankruptcy, in the end.

Debts when they become chronic and get fairly upon interest, are stubborn things; and instead of being easily handled under all times and circumstances, often handle those that owe them; and, alas, how roughly, too, not unfrequently. No man ever expects to become a bankrupt or a drunkard in the outset, but by degrees the evil accumulates, times turn wrong, and ere the unsuspecting victim knows, he is there. The present times are ample testimony to this fact, as many poor souls can bear witness.

In conclusion, then, let those who would succeed begin carefully, and school down all idle ambition to go fast or to embark in adventures and speculation; take hold only of what you can manage; pay as they go; keep cool; wait patiently; work industriously; be economical, (not mean,) honest, judicious, firm to say no when necessary, (and it is not unfrequent;) counsel with their wives, especially if they are more cautious and prudent (not unfrequently the case) than themselves, teach their children to be industrious, and to earn their dollars before they spend them.

The foregoing rules observed carefully, and we will warrant all such parties safe from sleepless nights, shipwrecks or serious disaster. Who among our young men will practice the recipe? A score of years hence will tell. You can find them without a lantern, and tell them by their surroundings. —Wisconsin Farmer.

Hints to Travelers.

Take one-fourth more money than your actual estimated expenses.

Acquaint yourself with the geography of the route and region of travel.

Have a good supply of change, and have no bill or piece higher than ten dollars, that you may not take counterfeit change.

So arrange it as to have but a single article of luggage to look after.

Dress substantially; better be too hot for two or three hours at noon, than to be too cool for the remainder of the twenty-four.

Arrange, under all circumstances, to be at the place of starting fifteen or twenty minutes before the time, thus allowing for unavoidable or unanticipated detention on the way.

Do not commence a day's travel before breakfast, even if that has to be eaten at daylight. Dinner or supper, or both, can be more healthfully dispensed with than a good, warm breakfast.

Put your purse and watch in your vest pocket, and put all under your pillow, and you will not be likely to leave either.

The most, if not secure fastening of your chamber door is a common bolt on the inside; if there is none, lock the door, turn the key so that it can be drawn partly out, and put the wash-basin under it; thus, any attempt to use a jimmy or put in another key, will push it out, and cause a racket among the crockery, which will be pretty certain to rouse the sleeper and rout the robber.

A sixpenny sandwich eaten leisurely in the cars is better for you than a dollar dinner bolted at a "station."

Take with you a month's supply of patience, and always think thirteen times before you reply once to any supposed rudeness, or insult, or inattention.

Do not suppose yourself specially and designedly neglected, if waiters at hotels do not bring what you call for in double quick time; nothing so distinctly marks the well-bred man as a quiet waiting on such occasions; passion proves the puppy.

Do not allow yourself to converse in a tone loud enough to be heard by a person at two or three seats from you; it is the mark of a boor if in a man, and of want of refinement and lady-like delicacy, if in a woman. A gentleman is not noisy; ladies are serene.

Comply cheerfully and gracefully with the customs of the conveyance in which you travel, and of the place where you stop.

Respect yourself by exhibiting the manners of a gentleman and a lady, if you wish to be treated as such, and then you will receive the respect of others.

Travel is a great leveler; take the position which others assign you from your conduct, rather than from your pretensions.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Book and Job Printing.

Commercial Advertiser OFFICE.

THE COMMERCIAL ADVERTISER ESTABLISHMENT has recently added to its supply of machinery, one of RUGGLES' IMPROVED COMBINATION PRINTING PRESSES, capable of printing one thousand sheets per hour, designed for small jobs of any kind, but more expressly for which can now be executed in a style of unsurpassed elegance and beauty, on the finest of paper, and at lower prices than the same can be procured at San Francisco or anywhere else in this ocean.

The office is also supplied with one of the celebrated capable of printing cards with a beauty bordering on perfection, which excited the unqualified admiration and amazement of both their Imperial Highnesses the Japanese Ambassadors, during their visit here in March last, who condescended to minutely examine its operation, and commanded their artists to take sketches of this and our other presses for the information of the Emperor of Japan.

For Book-work, Pamphlets, Tracts, Newspapers, etc., etc., we are also furnished with one of

on which the world-renowned Harper's Illuminated Pictorial Bible was printed, and which is capable of doing the finest printing known. In this branch of our business we are prepared to execute all work which may be offered, in Hawaiian, English, or any other language, on the lowest terms.

For all other kinds of work, ordinary and extraordinary, from the smallest druggist's labels to the most lengthy state appendices that may be issued from the portfolio of the Foreign Office, we have the fullest and most complete assortment of Printing Materials ever collected in this kingdom, and the best workmen to be found anywhere in the Pacific Ocean.

To be brief, we have recently added, at considerable expense, over fifty varieties of new type to our already extensive collection, and a large assortment of plain and fancy wedding, business, ball and other cards and note papers, with choice cap bill-head, letter and other papers, of all sizes and colors, large and small, and are thus prepared, at the shortest notice and on the lowest terms, to print anything and everything that may be wanted, whether
