Cometh a Blessing Down.

Not to the man of dollars,
Not to the man of deeds,
Not to the man of cunning,
Not to the man of creeds.
Not to the one whose passion
Is for a world's renown,
Not in a form of fashion,
Cometh a blessing down.

Not unto land's expansion,
Not to the miser's chest,
Not to the princely mansion,
Not to the blazoned crest,
Not to the sordid worldling,
Not to the knavish clown,
Not to the haughty tyrant,
Cometh a blessing down.

Not to the folly-blinded,
Not to the steeped in shame,
Not to the carnal-minded
Not to unholy fame;
Not in neglect of duty,
Not in the monarch's crown
Not at the smile of beauty,
Cometh a blessing down.

But to the one whose spirit
Yearns for the great and good;
Unto the one whose storehouse,
Yielded the hungry food;
Unto the one who labors,
Fearless of foe or frown;
Unto the kindly hearted,
Cometh a blessing down. —Selected.

VARIETY.

GEMS FROM OSSIAN.

"Heaven burns with all its stars."

"Tears are wintry streams that waste away my soul."

"She was like a spirit of heaven half-folded in the skirt of a cloud."

"He hummed a surly song, like a blast in a leafless wood."

"They fell like the thistle's head, beneath autumnal winds."

"Thy words are pleasant as the shower which falls in the sunny field."

"The music was like the memory of joys that are past, pleasant and mournful to the soul."

"Give, lovely maid, to me thy tears. I have seen the tombs of all my friends!"

"Happy are they who die in their youth, when their renown is around them."

"Thou art a beam from heaven; that coming on the troubled deep, binds up the tempest's wing."

"My harp hangs on a blasted branch. The sound of its strings is mournful. Does the wind touch thee, O harp, or is it some passing ghost?"

"She came on his troubled soul like a beam to the dark-heaving ocean, when it bursts from a cloud, and brightens the foamy side of a wave."

"Why did I not pass away in secret, like the flower of the rock, that lifts its fair head unseen, and strews its withered leaves on the blast."

"He will within her soul, like a fire in secret heath, which awakes at the voice of the blast, and sends its beams abroad."

"In what hall of the clouds is your rest? Do you touch the shadowy harp, robed with morning mist, where the rustling sun comes forth from his green-headed waves?"

"Pleasant is the joy of grief; it is like the shower of spring when it softens the branch of the oak, and the young leaf rears its green head."

"Autumn is dark on the mountains; grey mists rest on the hills. The whirlwind is heard on the heath. Dark rolls the river through the narrow plain. The leaves whirl round with the wind and strew the grave of the dead."

"Where are our fathers, O warriors? the chiefs of the times of old? They have set like stars that have shone. We only hear the sound of their praise. But they were renowned in their years: the terror of other times. Thus shall we pass away."

"Hast thou left thy blue course in heaven, golden-haired son of the sky! The west has opened its gates; the bed of thy repose is there. The waves come to behold thy beauty. They lift their trembling heads. They see thee lovely in thy sleep; they shrink away with fear. Rest, in thy shadowy cave, O Sun! let thy return be in joy."

GOLD.—A cubic inch of gold is worth one hundred and forty-six dollars; a cubic foot, two hundred and fifty-two thousand, two hundred and eighty-eight dollars; a cubic yard, six millions, eight hundred and seventy-six dollars. The quantity of gold now in existence is estimated to be three thousand millions of dollars, which, welded in one mass, could be contained in a cube of twenty-three feet.

"WIT," said Bishop Horne, "should excite an appetite, not provoke disgust. Wit, without wisdom, is salt without meat; and that is but a comfortless dish to set a hungry man down to. Wit, employed to disguise or prejudice truth, is salt thrown into a man's eyes."

Pat was dry, and got out of the cars for his refreshment; the cars very thoughtlessly went on without him. Pat's ire was up. "Ye spalpeen?" he cried, starting on a run, and shaking his fist as he flew after the train; "Stop, there, ye old stame wagon; ye murtherin' stame injine—ye've got a passenger on board that's left behind?"

An Ohio court has given $5,000 damages to a Mrs. Brush, to be paid by one Peter Lawson, who sold her husband liquor, under the influence of which he chopped off one of his wife's feet. The court ruled that for injuries done by any one while drunk, the rum-seller was liable. This is a righteous judgment. Were the rule made of general application, there would be a trifle of broken glass in many establishments.

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Partington, looking up at the column of the Place Vendome, during her late visit to Paris. "The pillar of Napoleon," was the answer. "Well, I never did," she exclaimed, "and that's his pillow! He was a great man to use that; but it's more like a bolster. And it is iron, I do believe. Ah, Isaac see what it is to be great! How hard his head must have rested on that ironical pillow."

DUTY.—A life of duty is the only cheerful life—for all joy springs from the affections; and it is the great law of nature, that without good deeds all good affection dies, and the heart becomes utterly desolate. The external world, too, then loses all its beauty;—poetry fades away from earth; for what is poetry but the reflection of all pure and sweet, and high and lofty thoughts? But where duty is

"Flowers laugh beneath her in their buds,
And freshness in her feeling treads,
She doth preserve the stars from wrong,
And the eternal heavens thro' her are fresh and strong."

DUTIES.—The smallest, homeliest, humblest actions are ennobled by the sentiment of love and duty. Think of the two archangels—one sent to rule the British realm, the other to sweep the streets of London, and both finding equal dignity and equal pleasure in the faithful doing of their work. Bethink you, too, with what joyous alacrity the cherubim would grind knives along the streets of our town, if set to do it by their Lord and ours; and how well they would grind them too? And not a single seraph, winging by on swift pinions upon some embassy of highest import to the realm ruling angel, would have a thought of scorn for the faithful knife grinder's, or the cheerful street sweeper's place and work.
