Once I was Pure.

Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow,
Filling the sky and the earth below;
Over the house-tops, over the street,
Over the heads of the people you meet;
Dancing,
Flirting,
Skimming along,
Beautiful snow; it can do nothing wrong;
Flying to kiss a fair lady's cheek,
Clinging to lips in a frolicksome freak,
Beautiful snow from heaven above,
Pure as an angel, gentle as love!

Oh! the snow, the beautiful snow,
How the flakes gather and laugh as they go!
Whirling about in its maddening fun,
It plays in its glee with every one,
Chasing,
Laughing,
Hurrying by,
It lights up the face and it sparkles the eye!
And even the dogs with a bark and a bound,
Snap at the crystals that oddly around.
The town is alive, and its heart in a glow,
Giving a welcome to the beautiful snow.

How the wild crowd goes swaying along,
Hailing each other with humor and song!
How the gay sleigh, like meteors, flash by,
Bright for a moment, then lost to the eye;
Ringing,
Swinging,
Dashing they go,
Over the crust of the beautiful snow!
Snow so pure when it falls from the sky,
To be trampled in the mud by the crowd rushing by!
To be trampled and tracked by the thousands of feet,
Till it blends with the filth of the horrible streets.

Once I was pure as the snow—but I fell!
Fell like the snow flake from heaven to hell,
Fell to be trampled as filth of the street;
Fell to be scoffed; to be spit on and beat;
Pleading,
Cursing,
Drinking to die,
Selling my soul to whoever would buy,
Dealing in shame for a morsel of bread,
Hating the living and fearing the dead;
Merciful God! have I fallen so low?
And yet I was once like the beautiful snow.

Once I was fair as the beautiful snow,
With an eye like a crystal, a heart like its glow!
Once I was loved for my innocent grace—
Flattered and sought for the charms of my face;
Father,
Mother,
Sisters, all,
God, and myself, I have lost by my fall;
The veriest wretch that goes shivering by,
Will take a wide sweep, lest I wander too nigh.
For all that is in or above me, I know,
There is nothing that's pure as the beautiful snow!

How strange it should be that this beautiful snow
Should fall on a sinner with nowhere to go!
How strange it should be when the night comes again,
If the snow and the ice strack my desperate brain,
Fainting,
Freezing,
Dying alone,
Too wicked for prayer, too weak for my moan
To be heard in the jubilant town,
Gone mad in the joy of the snow coming down.
To lie and to die in my terrible woe,
With a bed and a shroud in the beautiful snow.

Selected.

VARIETY.

It is said that parsons "help us to die;" but perhaps doctors do quite as much in that line.

Next to twenty-four grains, there is nothing like a mean man's pocket to make a penny wait.

"Only marry me, my dear lady, and you will have seen the end of trouble." "Yes, sir; but which end?"

"I always manage to carry my p'int." "Yes, you generally manage to carry at least three."

The lack of money is a weight upon the bosom, the possession of money a heaviness in the chest.

A couple of fellows carrying on an argument with rapiers seem exceedingly intent upon proving their points.

A city paper says that Capt. Travis will give satisfaction to all who visit his pistol gallery. We don't think many of them will demand it.

The population of England is about 27,690,000, of whom only 38,000 are proprietors of the soil.

Texas derives its name from an Indian word, signifying "beautiful."

Thomas Hood once admonished a gossiping Christian to beware lest her piety should prove, after all, to be nothing better than Mag-piety.

"Method," said Cecil, afterward Lord Burleigh, "is like packing things in a box; a good packer will get in half as much again as a bad one."

"Do you see this stick, sir?" said a very stupid acquaintance to Sidney Smith "This stick has been all round the world, sir." "Indeed!" said the remorseless Sidney, "and yet it is only a stick." The story is venerable, but pertinent.

When Oliver Cromwell once went into a Catholic Church he saw twelve statues of massive silver. What are those? he asked of his attendants. The trembling priest replied: My lord, they are the statues of the Twelve Apostles. Take them down, said Cromwell, and turn them into coins that like their master they may go about doing good.

THE DISTINCTIONS.—The six degrees of crime are thus defined: He who steals a million is only a financier. Who steals half a million is only a defaulter. Who steals a hundred thousand is a rogue. Who steals fifty thousand is a knave. But he who steals a pair of boots or a loaf of bread, is a scoundrel of the deepest dye, and deserves to be lynched.

As men grow rich they grow mean. Why I know men—pious men, who actually perjure themselves about the value of their property, that they may save what is justly due the city for taxes. They are as mean—well, meanness has tunnelled them from end to end, and the biggest one lies through the heart, and the devil daily runs his trains through and through. So says Henry Ward Beecher.

CONTENTMENT.—If you are satisfied with your lot, it is wisdom to rest contented. Many a man has repented in coffee sacks and ashes for giving up a good situation, hoping to find a more lucrative one. The most that we can expect to make in this world is a comfortable support. John Jacob Aster with his untold millions of shining dollars, was always a stickler for economy, and if he had a preference for an employee, it was for him who observed prudence in all things. His wants were circumscribed into a very small compass by the remembrance of his younger days, when he was struggling with the ills of life. Contentment is truly a fortune to him who is the possessor of that rich jewel.

THE VALUE OF A NEWSPAPER.—The New York Century, one of the ablest journals in the country, in an article on the influence of newspapers in the family, says:

"It is possible that we overrate the influence of the newspaper as an educator, but we think not. It is the voice of the living world. It is history, art, philosophy, science, truth, justice, rhetoric, grammar, and everything else—not unmixed with falsehood and nonsense, not more so mixed than the home infant school for girls, from which boys break away before their bones are out of the gristle. Take grammar, natural history, rhetoric and composition. Where are those so well taught as in the carefully edited newspaper? What better lesson in rhetoric than to see some popular writer or famous scholar roasted alive on the hot coals of criticism? Where are better examples of tasteful composition? Where is a better cabinet of natural history? What in all the world escapes the newspaper editor? And if he commits blunders in grammar, or logic, or fact, or philosophy, is he not forthwith served upon a gridiron by another editor? Where, but in the newspaper, will be found a running history of the day? Where else are you told what books you may safely buy, what are not worth putting on your shelves, and what would be hurtful to the minds of your children as henbane to their bodies?"

London Illustrated News!

PERSONS WISHING TO TAKE THIS excellent family newspaper, will find this the best time to commence. The numbers can be supplied from Jan. 1, 1861. The price $14 00 a year, in advance. H. M. WHITNEY.
