PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY HENRY M. WHITNEY. | HONOLULU, HAWAIIAN ISLANDS, JUNE 27, 1861. | SIX DOLLARS PER ANNUM. VOL. V. No. 52. WHOLE No. 266.

Brother Jonathan's Lament for Sister Caroline.

She has gone! She has left us in passion and pride,
Our stormy-browed sister, so long at our side!
She has torn her own star from our firmament's glow,
And turned on her brother the face of a foe!

O Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun!
We can never forget that our hearts have been one;
Our foreheads both sprinkled in Liberty's name,
From the fountain of blood with the blade of flame!

You were always too ready to fire at a touch;
But we said "she is hasty—she does not mean much."
We have scowled, when you uttered some turbulent threat,
But friendship still whispered, "Forgive and forget!"

Has our love all died out? Have its altars grown cold?
Has the curse come at last which the fathers foretold?
Then Nature must touch on the strength of the chain
That her petulant children would sever in vain.

They may fight till the buzzards are gorged with their spoil,
Till the harvest grows black as it rots in the soil,
Till the wolves and the cutthroats leap from their caves,
And the shark tracks the pirate, the lord of the waves.

In vain is the strife! When its fury is past,
Their fortunes must flow in one channel at last,
As the streams that rush from the mountains of snow
Roll mingled in peace through the valleys below.

Our Union is river, lake, ocean, and sky:
Man breaks not the medal, when God cuts the die!
Though darkened with sulphur, though clouds with steam
The blue arch will brighten, the waters will heal!

O Caroline, Caroline, child of the sun!
There are battles with fate that can never be won!
The star-flowering banner must never be furled,
For its blossoms of light are the hope of the world!

Go, then, our rash sister! afar and aloof—
Run wild in the sunshine away from our roof;
But when your heart aches and your feet have grown sore,
Remember the pathway that leads to our door!

—Atlantic Monthly for May.

VARIETY.

"Oh, that my father was seized with a remittent fever!" sighed a young spendthrift at college.

"What have you to remark, madam, about my singing?"—"Nothing, sir; it is not remarkable."

A Punster, passing by the shop of a certain Mr. Taswell, observed that his name would be As-well without the T.

"I think, wife, that you have a great many ways of calling me a fool."—"I think, husband, that you have a great many ways of being one."

"Sir, my party has a quick way of using up rascals."—"No doubt of it, sir. A party that makes such habitual use of rascals must expect to use some of them up; its tools can't last always."

A Charleston paper thinks that an Indian and his squaw paddling down the Mississippi, are interesting specimens of canoe-bial felicity.

In the olden time they had but seven wise men. Now, take men at their own valuation, and you won't find half that number fools.

If we were asked what physician stood at the top of his profession, we should say it was the gentleman who was in the habit of attending "patients on a monument."

"What's jography, Bill?"—"It's a tellin' of forrin' lands that we know nothin' about by 'cute chaps that's never seen 'em." Bill got a government situation.

An editor in the interior of Tennessee thinks that Memphis is disposed to be "outrageously boastful." No doubt she is very advantageously situated for playing the game of "bluff."

At the present day, "I tell you this in confidence," or, "This is entre nous," means simply, don't repeat it to more than a dozen, and you will do me a favor.

As Mrs. Partington, or some other old lady equally renowned for wisdom, has said:—"There aint no more difference in folks than there is in anybody.

"Bridget, where's the gridiron?"—"An' sure, ma'am, I's jist after giving it to me sister's own cousin, Bridget O'Flaherty; the thing's so full of holes, it's no good 't all 't all.

A very absent minded gentleman being upset by a boat into the river, sunk twice before he remembered he could swim.

"Do you keep matches?" asked a wag of a retailer. "Oh yes, all kinds, was the reply. "Well, I'll take a trotting match." The retailer immediately handed him a box of Brandreth's pills.

A chap from the country stopping at one of the hotels in New York, being asked by the waiter whether he would have green or black tea, replied, he didn't care a darn what color it was, so that it had plenty of sweetenin' in it.

In a country town in Massachusetts, many years ago, lived a man known as Uncle Zeke Cushing. He had a neighbor, Tower, he hated most religiously, for the simple reason that Tower had killed his favorite ram. Tower died: but not so Cushing's wrath. At the funeral he looked upon the corpse, and turning away, gritting his teeth, saying, "kill my ram will you?"

The following notice of a marriage is given in an old paper. On the 31 instant, Rev. Mr. Williams, aged 79 years, to Miss Polly Candle, aged 14 years, both of Green river Hollow.

Whatever is odd in Hymen's part,
The wise in rhyme will take it,
Whether in sparkle, game or age,
The married ones have miss'd it.

But when though wedlings make a rout,
And whims severely handle,
Where life's poor lamp is going out,
The wise to get a candle.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY.—A glover's apprentice in Edinburgh, resolved to qualify himself for a higher profession. The relation with whom he lived was very poor, and could not afford a candle, and scarcely a fire at night, and as it was only after shop hours that this young man had leisure, he had no alternative but to go into the streets at night, and plant himself with his book near a shop-window, the lights of which enabled him to read it; and when they were put out, he used to climb a lamp-post, and hold on with the one hand, while he read with the other. That person lived to be one of the greatest oriental scholars in the world, and the first book in Arabic printed in Scotland, was his production.

SUCCESS.—Every man must patiently bide his time. He must wait, not in listless idleness, not in useless pastime, not in querulous dejection, but in constant, steady, and cheerful endeavor, always willing, fulfilling, and accomplishing his task, that when the occasion comes, he may be equal to the occasion. The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, without a thought of fame. If it comes at all, it will come because it is deserved, and not because it is sought after. It is very indiscreet and troublesome ambition which cares so much about fame, about what the world says of us, to be always looking in the face of others for approval, to be always anxious about the effect of what we do or say, to be always shouting to hear the echo of our own voices.

CIVILIZATION.—The Emperor Napoleon, in a speech at Algiers, during his late visit there, gave his ideas of what constitutes civilization. He said: "Providence requires us to extend over this land the benefits of civilization. Now, what is civilization? It is to consider happiness as something, the life of man as much, and his moral perfection as the greatest good. Thus, to elevate the Arabs to the dignity of freemen, to spread among them instruction, at the same time respecting their religion; to ameliorate their condition by raising from the earth all the treasures which Providence has deposited there, and which a bad government would leave sterile; such is our mission, and we shall not fail in it."
