The Carte de Visite.

BY FLORENCE PERCY.

[Few trifling gifts receive such thanks as the graceful poetess Florence Percy won in return for one of those little photographs, which are now so popular—and which a friend had forwarded to her. It represents the original standing by a chair, hat in hand, with a sort of going directly air about it—and the suggestiveness of the position inspired the following little poem:]

Are you going to leave me—or why do you stand
At the foot of the stairs with your hat in your hand;
Ah, the thousand of years that have passed since we met,
Have they brought you new burdens of grief and regret;
I fancy your face has been furrowed by care,
And sorrow has written her autograph there;
I see it—although but a moment you stand
At the foot of the stairs, with your hat in your hand.

And, speaking of stairs—when some evening you go
To a stylish reunion in Rattlepurse Row,
Where are figures as faultless and faces as fair
As the waxy camelias that loop up their hair,
And music and moonlight, and waltzes and wine,
Where rich garments rustle, and rare jewels shine—
How you wish you could flee from it all and could stand
At the foot of the stairs, with your hat in your hand.

But you try to out-smile and out-flatter the rest,
With your heart beating fitfully under your vest—
While you chuckle down the pain with a jest and a song,
And flatter your best in the butterfly throng;
But the small talk all done, and the compliments passed,
You refuse to get out of the parlor at last.
Oh, the feeling of blessed relief when you stand,
At the foot of the stairs, with your hat in your hand.

Let I think, now-a-days, in this hurry and strife,
This aching deception which people call life
A sort of masked ball, where no seeming is true,
And no one turns out as we thought he would do;
Where false glitter tires us and empty hopes cheat,
And we keep all the bitter, and lose all the sweet,
How glad I shall be when 'tis done, and I stand
At the foot of Life's stairs, with my hat in my hand.

VARIETY.

Who is the most liberal man? The grocer; he gives almost everything a weigh.

Who are the best-natured men? Rebel surgeons; they are never out of patients.

Who would make the best soldiers? Dry good men; they have the most drilling.

Who is the laziest man? The furniture dealer; he keeps chairs and lounges about all the time.

What man is generally out of breath? The tailor: he cuts coats and pants most of the time.

Why is Hiram Powers one of the meanest men alive? Because he "chiseled" a Greek Slave out of a piece of marble.

Who are the most dishonest people? Hardware merchants; the sell iron, and steel for a living.

There is no truth in the bold assertion by Vanity Fair, that a deaf man was recently cured by the judicious use of dumb bells.

Lucy Stone says the cradle is a woman's ballot-box. Then we have known some unlawful voting, where two ballots were deposited at a time.

A young man named Neck, has recently been married to Miss Heels. They are now literally tied neck and heels together.

MAIDEN MILITIA.—Three female (secessionist) regiments are being formed in Tennessee. V. F. ventures to suggest they may be known as the Chemisette Cuirassiers, the Crinoline Carbineers and the Calico Cadets. Let them come North if they desire a general engagement. Champions of Union, aim straight at their hearts! It is no use to shoot at their petticoats, for every body knows that a lady is never livelier than when she has a ball in her head.—Vanity Fair.

THE LENGTH OF THE PURSE.—'Really' Sir, said a printer, in conversing with a literary man about errors of the press, "gentlemen should not place such unlimited confidence in the eyesight of our hard-worked and half blinded reader of proofs; for I am ashamed to say that we utterly ruined one poet through a ludicrous misprint." "Indeed! and what was the unhappy line?" "Why, sir, the poet intended to say—

'See the pale martyr in a sheet of fire,'

instead of which we made him say—

'See the pale martyr with his shirt on fire.'"

The critics were down fierce on the poet; but we don't see why. A man 'with his shirt on fire' must be a highly poetical object, as his life would be in imminent danger."

DREAMS.—To dream of a mill stone around your neck is a sign of what you may expect you get an extravagant wife. To dream that you are lame is a token that you will get into a hobble. When a young lady dreams of a coffin, it be tokens that she should instantly discontinue the use of tight stays, and always go warmly and thickly shod in hot weather. To dream of fire is a sign that—if you are wise—you will see that the lights are out in your house before you go to bed. To dream that your nose is red at the top is an intimation that you had better leave off brandy and water. To dream of eggs is a sign that you will discover a mare's nest. If you dream of clothes, it is a warning not to go to law, for, by the rule of contraries, you will be sure of a non-suit. It is very lucky to dream you pay for a thing twice over, since afterwards you will probably take care to have all your little bills paid up and receipted.
