NORWICH TOWN

The past few days have been busy ones for Mrs. S. I. Bonney and her daughter, Miss J. G. Bonney, who opened their home on Huntington lane to receive garments for the suffering people in Armenia in response to a recent appeal for such. In the two west rooms at this house are piles on piles of clothing. In the front hall is an array of cloaks almost as good as new—people would be more than surprised to look them over. In the next room are more piles of clothing, including a large quantity of children's apparel, in still another room a large table is piled nearly to the ceiling with more cloaks. Men's clothes, bed coverings, woolen skirts, fine suits, etc., are assembled to cheer the workers who are getting all these things together to save lives next winter. Rev. Gurdon P. Bailey announced from the pulpit of the First Congregational church Sunday morning that he had had the pleasure of seeing the clothing which was sent to the Bonney home the three days previous and was surprised at the quantity and quality of the useful variety of warm garments. This clothing which people in this vicinity so generously contributed is to be sent Thursday to the basement of the Osgood Memorial parish house, Park church, to be packed Friday. Today (Tuesday), Wednesday and Thursday clothing from the city is also to be sent to the Osgood Memorial. Miss J. G. Bonney is a member of the city committee conducting this worthy work and will be assisting in the nation-wide drive for the relief of the almost naked Armenians.

Under the auspices of Scotland Road Social club an assemblage of sixty or more enjoyed Saturday evening at the hall. Shortly after 8 o'clock a delicious strawberry supper was served by the supper committee, Mrs. Byron Dexter, Mrs. James McCarthy and Mrs. William B. Wilcox, assisted by several others as waitresses. The supper consisted of rolls, sandwiches, cake, coffee, strawberries and cream and ice cream. Following this, there was an informal meeting which opened with two songs by Miss Bernice L. Underwood, accompanied by Miss Susan B. Wilcox at the piano. Much sociability prevailed, as at this time an opportunity was given those present to meet the new county agent of the farm bureau, H. F. Johnson, and his assistant, Miss Gladys Stratton, demonstrator of home economics. When Agent Johnson was presented he gave a brief, interesting talk in connection with his work, what he is expected to do, also what he wants the farmers to do in co-operating with him. He emphatically assured the farmers that if they invested more money in raising a better breed of stock, far better results would be yielded. The meeting closed with two more songs by Miss Underwood, accompanied by Miss Wilcox. Dancing followed. During the evening Lowell J. Wilcox auctioned all food remaining after the supper.

Town Clerk Henry L. Bailey and family of Groton, who motored to Hartford Sunday, were callers on Mr. Bailey's brother and the latter's wife, Rev. and Mrs. Gurdon P. Bailey, at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cirvis and son Leslie and Mr. Cirvis' mother, Mrs. Peter Cirvis of Bristol, formerly of Norwich Town, were guests over Sunday at the home of Mrs. John Cirvis' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Albert T. Miner, of Huntington avenue.

Mrs. Stratton and daughter, Miss Gladys Stratton, formerly of Salem, Mass., recently moved to one of John Mullen's houses on the Norwich Town green.

Following a week's visit with relatives on Town street, Mrs. Josephine E. Marsh and daughter, Mrs. Charles Emerson, returned Monday to their home in New Boston, N. H.

Mrs. Olive W. Ellis, the matron who has resigned from the Sheltering Arms, is expected to leave this (Tuesday) morning to locate in Brockton, Mass., her former home.

Miss Margaret Ewing of New York, formerly of Norwich Town, who for about two weeks visited friends here, left last week.

Miss Katharine A. Kent of upper Washington street left Tuesday to spend the summer on the coast of Maine.

THIN, ANAEMIC CHILDREN

Are Almost Always Undernourished With Attendant Thin, Poor Blood

If a child is properly nourished, it will not be anaemic or frail. When the daily food does not produce strength and good blood, then the child will be pale and ailing. There are many children in this city that have been restored to robustness by that famous cod liver and iron tonic called Vinol. It contains no oil and is not greasy. It certainly and quickly changes a pale, puny child to a healthy, rosy one, as many mothers here will testify.

CATHOLIC FRESH AIR COMMITTEE RECEIVING OFFERS OF HELP

During Monday Mrs. Thomas F. Burns, chairman of the committee for St. Patrick's parish to secure homes for the New York Tribune fresh air children, received the promise of some money from several benevolent people who, not situated to receive the Catholic children into their homes, still are anxious to help in the good cause.

Mrs. Burns and her committee have until Wednesday night to receive applications for the children and are prepared to pay $4 per week board, in cases where householders cannot receive the little folks free. The children range in ages from 7 to 14 and are the surplus of the large number accommodated at the Tribune's regular vacation house, unlucky little bodies who will be cheated out of even two weeks' delight in country freedom and pure air unless warm-hearted people in Norwich and vicinity come to their aid. More than one farmer or farmer's wife who in other seasons has volunteered to entertain one of these children deprived of so much that favored children enjoy as their rights has been surprised at the way the grateful girls and boys have helped about gardens or fields or in the home.

The small summer boarders are so accustomed to plain quarters and plainer fare in the sweltering districts of the crowded city that they are not a bit fussy about the style of the hospitality they receive. Many of them have never seen a flower growing, are scared at a tree, wonder at a cow or a sheep as children born and bred hereabouts do at a camel or a giraffe. To be permitted to walk on grass, or to pick even the commonest wild flower, is to each a wondrous privilege.

Residents of localities up the road, Danielson and vicinity, have been most liberal in entertaining these city small folk and benevolent people of North Stonington have also taken the appealing little mortals into their hearts and homes, never regretting it, but finding joy in the memory of the happiness they have been able to give in such a simple manner.

With all the post-war drives and campaigns, there have been those who feared that the New York children might not find a warm welcome this season; but the members of the Norwich committee know that an appeal for any worthy cause has never been made in vain to local people.

It is the hope of St. Patrick's committee that today (Tuesday) and Wednesday Mrs. Burns will receive an encouraging number of applications for the little Catholic boys and girls, either at her residence, 250 Broad street, or by telephone, 497-3.

STERLING YOUNG WOMAN IS BACK AT HOME NOW

Miss Edith Hawes, 16, is back at the home of her father, William Hawes of Sterling, after having been absent from home since she attended the Moosup high school graduation exercises last Thursday afternoon. She has been at the home of Oliver Creedon in the town of Brooklyn and now Mr. Hawes is threatening to force Deputy Sheriff George R. Bliven of Central Village to retract or prove statements he has made in criticism of the girl's treatment at her own home. Mr. Hawes is reported to have said that unless the deputy sheriff can prove that the girl was mistreated before she left home, the deputy sheriff will be called upon to face a suit for libel.

The girl has been housekeeper for her father and two brothers and has always been treated kindly, her father maintains.

Last Thursday afternoon the girl attended graduation exercises at Moosup High school and did not return home. The next day she failed to return and the father, alarmed, commenced an investigation. He learned from Lean Doyle of Wauregan driver of a jitney bus, that he took the girl home late on Thursday night in his automobile, and left her at her door. This statement alarmed her father, who could not understand where she might have disappeared after her arrival in the automobile.

Nothing was heard Saturday, and that evening a brother, Harold Hawes, notified the Hartford police and asked that a search be instituted. He said she left the high school in Moosup in an automobile with some boys but nothing further had been learned. On Sunday Oliver Creedon of Brooklyn went to the Hawes home and told Mr. Hawes that the girl had been at his home since Thursday and had begged that nothing be told her father.

She said that after graduation, a man named Mansfield, a native of Rhode Island, but a resident of Sterling for several months, talked her into consenting to leave the town with him, go to a city and be married. She was tired of the town, and consented, so the two went in search of an automobile. Before they found one, having arrived on the outskirts of the town in their search, Mansfield lost his nerve and left the girl.

She feared that she was too far away to return home, and when Doyle happened along in his machine, she prevailed upon him to take her to Brooklyn, to the Creedon home then begged him not to inform her father. Doyle, fearing he had been seen with her, told Mr. Hawes that he left her at her home, to shield himself. Nothing then was heard until Sunday when Mr. Creedon arrived and told his story.

In addition to this it is now declared that Doyle told Deputy Sheriff Bliven of the girl's whereabout Friday morning and took him to Creedons. Bliven there it is declared said he did not blame the girl for leaving home, and neglected to inform her father. Mr. Creedon said his conscience bothered him, and when the girl became homesick Sunday and agreed to return home he told Mr. Hawes and arranged a reconciliation.

Mansfield, the father also says, claims the girl, and not he, made the proposal of marriage. He also explains his part, stating that the girl was so much afraid after going with Mansfield that he told the story of leaving her at her door to hide her real whereabouts and then took the sheriff to see her to clear himself and let the sheriff decide whether or not the father should be notified. She would not go home with Doyle when he first advised her to, but changed her mind after two days' absence.

The girl says she does not want to see Mansfield again, and that she is satisfied to stay at home; Doyle, she says, acted like a perfect gentleman and her care at Creedon's was good.

Two young men were riding on the machine and as the motorcycle skidded they were thrown off one on one side of the trolley and one on the other. The trolley struck the machine but no damage was done.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS TO GIVE COSTLY BATON TO MARSHAL FOCH

The Knights of Columbus announced Monday that they would present a baton to Marshal Foch at the time of the unveiling of the Knights of Columbus statue of Lafayette in Metz Aug. 21. The baton was completed in New York Saturday by Tiffany, after eleven months' work. It is twenty and a half inches long and weighs about five pounds.

The baton, according to the announcement, will be the most ornamental and expensive ever presented a marshal of France. The body of the baton, which is six inches in circumferance, is made of costly blue enamel, and inset are thirty-two stars in gold, each bearing the name of a state or territory. Cuba is represented by a silver star set in the top of the wand.

The inscription on the gift is made in three places. At the bottom appear the names of the marshal's principal victories—St. Gond, the second Marne, Metz and Strasbourg. Above this, in gold on red copper enamel, runs the legend, "Terrible in war, gentle in peace." Then beyond the field of blue and stars, appears the inscription "Marechal Ferdinand Foch, 1914-1919," surmounted by the golden arms of France, of the United States, Lorraine's double cross and the chest of the K. of C.

The baton is made of gold from California, sapphires from Montana and ore from Pennsylvania. It is hollow, to contain the illuminated address of presentation. The gift will be made by Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia.
