Antipodes.

BY EDGAR FAWCETT.

POE.

He loved all shadowy spots, all seasons drear;
All ways of darkness lured his ghastly whim;
Strange fellowships he held with goblins grim,
At whose demoniac eyes he felt no fear.
On midnights through dense branches he would peer,
To watch the pale ghoul feed, by tombstones dim:
The appalling forms of phantoms walked with him,
And murder breathed its red guilt in his ear!

By desolate paths of dream, where fancy's owl
Sent long lugubrious hoots through somber air,
Amid thought's gloomiest caves he went to prowl,
And met delirium in her awful lair,
And mingled with coal shapes that writhe or scowl—
Serpents of horror, black bats of despair!

WHITTIER.

Fresh as on breezy seas the ascendant day,
And bright as on thick dews its radiant trace;
Pure as the smile on some babe's dreaming face;
Hopeful as meadows at the breath of May.
One loftiest aim his melodies obey,
Like dawnward larks in roseate deeps of space,
While that large reverent love for all his race
Makes him a man in manhood's lordlier way.

His words, like pearls, are luminous yet strong;
His dulcous thought ennobles while it calms;
We seem to have felt the falling, in his song,
Of benedictions and of sacred balms—
To have seen the aureoled angels group and throng
In heavenly valleylands, by shining palms!

VARIETY.

It makes a man and mars a woman to be talked about.

People who are always wishing for something new should try neuralgia.

A young importer down town remarks that when he sees a sweet creature dressed in the prevailing style of fashion, her appearance invariably reminds him of "a drawback on sugar."

The Chinese never dun a debtor; but don't go to China on that account. If the money isn't paid when due off comes an ear to remind him of the ear-or of his ways.

The "great Indian uprising" in Eastern Nevada has been boiled down to a quarrel between to Indians and two white men about some quartz. This time not quarts of whisky.

The other day an unfortunate man, a plasterer by trade, was found on the top of a ladder sticking to his business. He was moistened with a little beer, and then with difficulty removed to the nearest hospital.

PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHY.—Ah, well Mrs. Jenkins, them as lives longest sees most; but as I often says to my old man, says I, a kind word's an easy obligation, and goes a good deal further than a hobnailed boot or a quart pot, says I.—London Fun.

A Texas Judge is credited with the following neat decision: "The fact is, Jones, the jail is an old rickety affair, as cold as an iron wedge. You applied to this Court for release on bail, giving it as your opinion that you would freeze to death there. The weather has not moderated, and to keep you from freezing I will direct the Sheriff to hang you at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

She testified before the magistrate that "dot pilly gotes shoost vas a—a—vell, I vas vashing py some clodings of a pig tub, und them gotes coom up behind me und—vell, shoge, I don't ken told you how dot vas. I feel me somedings pehind my pack und shump over der tub und shtand on my head up mit dot tub's bottom up, and der clodings sphilt shoost like me, und dem gotes vink at me mit von eyes, und vag his tails of mine face, und valks out py his pehind legs like a man, und I can't sit me down coot any more already."

KIND.—Everybody remembers that charming woman, Mrs. Sairey Gamp, and the charming, comforting ways she had at the bed-side of the dying and the dead. Said Mrs. Harris to me, quoth Sairey, "if ever there was a sober creetur to be got for eighteen pence a day for working people and three and sixpence for gentlefolks (night-watching being a extra charge), you are the mwalluable person." "Mrs. Harris," I says to her, "don't name the charge, for if I could afford to lay all my feller-creeters out for nothink, I would gladly do it, such is the love I bears 'em."

The London Hornet gives the following as "Things a married lady cannot help thinking of:" That she was a pretty girl at 16; that she had or would have had a great many offers; that all her lady friends are five years older than they say they are; that she has a very fine mind; that if her husband had acted on her advice he would be a rich man to-day: that people think too much of the looks of that Miss—, who would not be called handsome if she didn't make herself up; that her mother-in-law is a very trying woman; that her girls are prettier than Mrs. A.'s girls; that she would like to know where her husband spends his evenings when he stays out; that her eldest son takes after him; that he is going to throw himself away on Miss Scraggs; that Miss Scraggs set her cap for him, and did all the courting; that her servant girls are the worst ever known; that she has taste in dress; that she has a good temper; that she pities old maids.

The other day a Detroit father purchased a microscope for his son, a boy of ten, patted the lad on the shoulder and said to him:

"My son, take this microscope and go out and study the beauties of nature."

The boy left all other amusements for that, and he took such great interest and improved so rapidly that at the tea table, to which several visitors sat down with the family, he felt that he must make some remarks. Turning to one of the ladies, he inquired:

"Did you ever look at cheese through a microscope?"

"I don't think I ever did," she pleasantly replied.

"Well, you just ought to see the things crawl—"

"John! John!" exclaimed the father, shaking his head at the boy across the table.

John subsided for a minute or two, and when his mother passed the cheese around, everybody said, "Thank you, no." Pretty soon the young student, desiring to mollify his father, asked:

"Father, did you ever look at a toad through a microscope?"

"I will talk with you after supper," replied the parent, scowling at the boy.

John was rather disappointed at his failure to arouse enthusiasm, and just as the strawberries were being passed around, he remarked:

"Well, you just ought to look at a strawberry once through the microscope! They look just like warts, they do, and you think you see bugs running—"

"Jawn!" said his mother.

"Boy!" warned his father.

"Well, they look worse'n flies's heads!" protested the boy, who imagined that they doubted his veracity for flies.

"Boy—?" said the father, making a motion for John to leave the table.

John left, and as soon as it was convenient for him to do so, the father escorted the lad to the wash room in the basement, bounced him around, and said:

"My son gimme that microscope, and you take the axe and go out and study the beauties of that woodpile!"

If that boy continues to feel the way he does at present, he will become a bank robber instead of a naturalist.
