FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, Nov. 4.—Profit taking by traders who had bought stocks during the recent reactions temporarily halted the upward movement of prices in today's stock market, but there was unusually good buying of the copper shares, which have been lagging behind the rest of the list.

There were no special developments in the copper trade to account for the rise. It is a matter of almost general knowledge, however, that the statistical position of the industry has been steadily improving in that after the war has been largely reduced and there has been a gradual increase in the domestic demand for the product. The price am the metal, due to the flood of imports from Chile and other South American countries, has held around 14 cents a pound.

All the active copper shares made good gains, the leaders being Utah, Inspiration and Federal Mining and Smelting preferred, each up 2 1-2 points. Other strong spots were American Smelting, up 1 3-4; Anaconda, up 1 1-8; Kennecott, up 2, Chino, up 1 1-2 and Chile, up 1 3-8.

Merchandising shares were strong in anticipation of increased sales and expectation of heavy holiday trade. May Department Stores and Associated Dry Goods breaking through to new high records for the year.

Realizing sales were directed principally against the speculative favorites. Studebaker, the principal target, declining 1-8 points, Chandler and Baldwin offered better resistance while Mexican Petroleum which was down 4 points at one time recovered all but 1 5-8. Standard Oil shares improved, California rising 5-8 points and New Jersey 3-4.

Railroad shares, with few exceptions, lost ground. Losses of a point or more were noted in Delaware and Hudson, Chesapeake and Ohio, Missouri Pacific preferred and Southern Pacific. Steel shares also were fractionary, U. S. Steel common and Bethlehem B dropping nearly a point each and Crucible 1 1-2.

Total sales were 415,000 shares.

Foreign exchange rates were irregular, with most changes of a nominal character. Demand sterling sold just under $4.46 and francs checks were quoted at above 6.86 cents.

The clearing house statement showed a decrease of $14,180,000 in loans, discounts and investments, a decrease of $9,423,000 in the reserve of member banks in the federal reserve banw and an increase of $447,000 in the reserve in the bank's own vaults. Net demand deposits decreased $14,662,000. Aggregate reserve totalled $509,975,000, making a deficit in reserve of $4,986,240 as compared with excess reserve of $51,176,020 last week.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY

New York, Nov. 5. (By the A. P.)—Practically all the available indices of business activity point to a continuation during the past week of the tendency toward revival. Car loadings for the week ended Oct. 21 totalled 1,004,000 cars, which means that for all practical purposes the railroads now are equalling the greatest performance in the country's history. This previous performance took place during the fall of 1920, when the high record of 1,019,000 cars was made.

In addition, it is pointed out in financial circles that the latest loading returns show an unprecedented movement of general merchandise. Coal shipments have, it is true, contributed to recent gains, and a production of 10,400,000 tons of bituminous a week is being maintained. Nevertheless, the gain in the movement of other kinds of freight has been even greater and has beaten all records.

Steel production is being well maintained, although the rush to buy which followed the strikes has now disappeared. Coke and pig iron prices are dropping back to a more normal level and consumers of steel are waiting to see where the prices of finished products will come to something like equilibrium. Output probably exceeds 70 per cent. of capacity and consumption, on account of railroad and construction enterprises, and shows no signs of falling off.

Automobile production also remains remarkably good, October's total exceeding September's by approximately 10 per cent. Reports from the textile districts also are favorable, the mills finding that recent advances in prices have not had an adverse effect on demand. Even the mail order houses, which are dependent largely on farm purchasing power, show encouraging gains during October as compared with a year ago, the two chief companies reporting increases of about 15 and 35 per cent. respectively.

That farmers' purchasing power should be measurably increased is indicated by recent gains in the prices of farm products. December wheat rose during the past week to over $1.17 a bushel, which is approximately 20 per cent. above the recent low, and the same delivery of corn nearly mounted to above 68 cents a bushel. The latter price is the best since the great break of 1920, and is well over twice the low price of last year.

Similarly, Dun's index of breadstuffs prices, which stood at a point 20 per cent. above the 1913 average on Sept. 1, had risen to 35 per cent. above on Nov. 1. Largely as a result of increases in farm products, Dun's index of the total value rose 3.8 per cent. during October, this being the largest gain since the decline in prices terminated in 1921. The index now stands 51 per cent. above the pre-war as compared with last year's low of 42 per cent.

In response to more active trade money meanwhile continues firm. The rise from the low levels of the year has been, however, moderate, and the present charge for accommodation is not high. It is clear that any further demands for credit this year will be met readily. The reserve ratio of the federal reserve system, while some 4 per cent. below the high of the year, is still close to the level prevailing during the past spring and summer, and that vast discounting resources remain available is quite clear.

With regard to the recent reaction in security values, the opinion prevails in well informed quarters that an over-extended speculative position lay at the bottom of the matter. It was considered significant that the disturbance coincided with a condition which carried the new 4 1-4 per cent. treasury bonds to a temporary discount of 1 per cent. Financial quarters were unwilling to interpret the latter movement as reflecting anything more than a transitory disturbance.

James Allissio, aged 13, of 40 Pierce Officer Burke upon a complaint made street was arrested Sunday morning by by Charles Goldberg, a local furniture dealer. Goldberg had left his Ford truck at the corner of Pierce and Pearl streets have gone into a house for the purpose in the Italian section and is said to of making a collection. Allessio took the machine and started for a ride and found that he was unable to stop it. In an effort to stop the car he ran into a curbing and the car was badly damaged. He will be arraigned in the Third District court Monday.

John A. Hearn, secretary of the local firemen's union was called into a conference with Orlando R. Smith, president and one of the owners of the Smith Granite company, the largest quarry in Westerly. The offers and demands of the company and the men were gone into and but a slight difference exists. It is said that a settlement is looked for in the near future.

Harry O. Williams of this town has leased the house at No. 3 Granite street belonging to Dr. John J. Chaplin. He and Mrs. Williams will occupy the upper story as their residence.

Joseph and Celine Pechia of Granite street have purchased a 9-acre tract of land on Franklin street from John W. Sweeney.

William Ke Hunter, chief engineer of the town highway department and Mrs. Hunter, are visiting relatives in New York city.

Farquhar Smith, George Leonard and Richard Mitchell, prominent members of the South County Rod and Gun club are on a week's hunting trip at Charleston farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bullum, Jr., have returned from their wedding trip which was spent in Bermuda.

At the Immaculate Conception church on High street Sunday morning one of the local clergy imparted the Papal blessing to the congregation.

A good sized audience listened to a talk Sunday afternoon by Rev. James J. Bartholomew, independent candidate for United States senator from Rhode Island. He is pastor of the Methodist church in Pawtucket.

The speaker was introduced at the Central theatre by Rev. Steeling, pastor of the Grace Methodist church of Westerly, he meeting opened with a prayer by Rev. F. S Salter, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church. Then the speaker was introduced. He said that he disliked to speak on political issues on Sunday, but that he would speak on prohibition for which he stood. He said that the people's cry was that the 18th amendment, the Volstead act, had been put over on the people. I do not see how this is, when for years prohibition has been advocated from pulpits from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Does anyone who has a spoonful of brains believe the act was put over on the people?

He told of the republican and democratic parties being "wet" but said if he was elected he should vote for prohibition and the enforcement of the Volstead act. He said the liquor men are trying to break it, and are asking for light wines and beer, which is only one step toward breaking the 18th amendment.

He paid tribute to Hon. Samuel Davis of Westerly, for helping to put through the law in Rhode Island whereby every policeman could act in making arrests where as before it was done by federal officers only.

Tuesday evening the Westerly Music club will meet at the home of Miss Phebe Perry of Margin street. At this time Miss Caroline Freeman of Gales Ferry will give a reading on Liszt with whom she studied. The piano accompanist will be Henry La Fontaine of Norwich.

The council met Thursday evening as a board of canvassers to correct the list for the election to be held here on Tuesday. Thirty-two names were removed from the lists of two districts for the nonpayment of taxes, sale of real estate and death. Seventy names were added in the two districts.

On the Pequonnock highway, near the mill owned by Max Pollack, Saturday afternoon several persons were hurt when a horse bolted, throwing the driver from the wagon to the ground. The horse afterwards collided with an automobile containing three women. They were badly bruised and cut. The horse was injured and was shot. The horse became frightened by a heavy truck. The passenger automobile was owned by Arthur Brooks of Noank. His wife and daughter were with him. The ladies were taken to the Knight house where they received treatment. The car was badly damaged.

There is a lively interest shown here by both the republican and democratic parties in the election and the politicians on both sides are working hard.

One of Westerly's residents and business men of the town for many years, Col. Eugene Pendleton, gives a brief history to The Bulletin of what was one of Westerly's old landmarks, which has just been torn down, namely the so-called Chapman block, which now makes room for the new modern bank building, which is to be erected at the corner of Broad and Main streets. It has stood for about 80 years and was a wooden structure. It was built in the early forties, on the site of the old Gen. Rhodes store. He was one of the town's old time merchants.

A drug store was remembered at times here, and the last tenant was LaClede Woodmansee. Next to the Washington Trust company George W. Foster conducted a news office, and he later sold out to Arthur Nash.

The second story was used for offices and for many years Edwin and Horace Babcock, proprietors of the mills at Potter Hill, had rooms here. The middle store, No. 2, was known as Babcock & Moss and as the White Rock store. This store supplied the help at both the Main street and White Rock mills. Charles H. Denison was manager, and he was assisted by William P. Coy and William Moss, and later Mr. Denison purchased the business. A drug goods store was kept there at one time and William Sagar was a grocer there. A carpet and wallpaper business was carried on on the second floor by Charles H. Denison. The top floor was occupied by Edward W. Babcock of Avondale, who was known as "Uncle Ned." Charles P. Champion of New York was his clerk. The postoffice was in charge of John Howard Cross as postmaster. Stillman Lewis had a tailoring establishment on the second story in the '50s.

In the south front corner room the Westerly public library had its beginning. It was opened in 1843, with J. Hobart Cross as librarian. There were many tradesmen. In the meat business George E. Broughton was the last one who occupied the store on the Main street side. The roof was raised in 1858 and the third story was added. This was done to accommodate H. W. Campbell for a storeroom for his wood.

WILL MAKE NEW DRIVE AGAINST MOSQUITO PEST

A definite plan of action to meet the acute mosquito situation has been agreed upon by leading governmental and voluntary organizations of the state and it will be presented to the general assembly in January for action. The State Agricultural Experiment Station, the State Park Commission, the Connecticut Public Health Association, the Connecticut Medical Association, the Connecticut Federation of Women's clubs, and the Connecticut Anti Mosquito association have united in outlining the general policy that is to be pursued. They have agreed that Connecticut committed itself several years ago to the plan of removing the mosquito menace by draining the infected areas, of which the state contains many, but that laws to meet the situation and funds to continue the draining which began have not been available.

All these associations have acted since the mosquito outbreak of last summer, the most general in the history of the state, with a request that the legislature increase its biennial appropriations to the State Agricultural Experiment Station to expand its work of mosquito elimination. Only a moderate sum, covering the most malignant and most extensive areas affected, will be requested.

While the revision of existing statutes relating to land draining is being drafted by committees from these representative organizations of the state, it was stated by officers of the Anti-Mosquito association that nothing radical is being attempted, but that slight changes in the present statutes can be made to fill the present situation. Towns generally have failed to take advantage of the laws which were aimed at draining the mosquito lands and state action to some extent is admitted by civic organizations to be necessary, and it is thought that the average Connecticut citizen has been convinced the past summer by painful experience of the necessity for decisive action before another year.

JUNIORS IN STONINGTON ORGANIZE POULTRY CLUB

A meeting of the Stonington Poultry club was held Friday evening, at which plans for re-organization of the poultry club which has been run this past year, was talked over. A list of 12 prospects was made up and the boys are planning to get in as many as possible who will keep records of the cost of producing eggs and the number of eggs laid by the hens. Regular meetings will be held each month at which either specialists from the Connecticut Agricultural College or from the county farm bureau will be present to help them summarize their records and discuss topics of timely interest to them.

Organizing Stonington Adult Poultry Club.

Mrs E. M. Wood, farm bureau director for Stonington, has secured enough signers to make possible a poultry club for adult members. Stonington already has a junior club.

The club of adults will start the first of November in keeping records and the organization meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, Nov. 7. There is still an opportunity for more members to join, in fact it is open to anyone interested in poultry work and who will keep a record on the number of eggs produced and cost of production.

Hurricane's Gal is Film of Fast Action at the Strand.

Patrons of the motion picture theatre whose preference runs to stories of the great outdoors—stories of fast action and a liberal supply of real thrills—are having their appetites satisfied in thorough fashion at the Strand theatre this week, where Allen Holubar's Hurricane's Gal, a First National attraction starring Dorothy Phillips, is being shown.

It would seem as if Mr. Holubar had set out to produce a picture that would prove a whirlwind in the swiftness of its development, its suspense and the interest it maintains, for, by utilizing the sea and the air, he has secured a vehicle that carries furious activity throughout and provides contrast which presents Dorothy Phillips both as a wild, untamed daughter of the sea and as the regenerated being in her proper place in a San Francisco mansion.

The sea scenes bring into play a hydroplane which is shot down from the air, a government torpedo boat destroyer and a large three-masted schooner that is in the smuggling trade. Exquisite boudoir sets that were designed by Mr. Holubar and Miss Phillips are shown in the interior scenes.

Miss Phillips is supported by a cast which includes Robert Ellis, Wallace Beery, the most royally hated villain on the screen; James O. Barrows and Frances Raymond for years on the legitimate stage; Gertrude Astor, a rare type of "society" beauty; William Fong, the Chinese member of the cast, who is a find of Mr. Holubar's, and Jack Donovan.

Other subjects include a comedy and news.

Clever Musical Comedy Coming to Orpheum Theatre, The Mascot, the Season's Big Hit.

The Mascot, which comes to the Orpheum theatre Danielson, Monday night, Nov. 6, with Helena Morrill in the leading role, is one of the season's real hits.

The music by Edmond Audran is far superior to that of the average musical show. The numbers include Gobble-Gobble, Come, My Beauty, Quick, a Little Kiss, Wise Men of Ages, The Ourang-Outang and a dozen others.

The plot differs from the average musical comedy plot inasmuch as it is really something tangible and carries the comedy through a succession of amusing and interesting situations which keep the audience in laughter and wonder as to the outcome, in short it has a real plot.

Helena Morrill is one of America's most popular light opera stars. Her Nadina in The Chocolate Soldier has never been surpassed and her Princess Pat delighted theatregoers for two seasons. As Bettina, the Mascot, she is making her greatest success, and is surrounded by a great cast of singers and comedians, including Edward Orchard, Ann Stewart, Ernest Miller, Robert Sawyer, Shirley Foster, Martin Albright, Nancy Berton and Harry Murray, as well as the daintiest chorus that ever strayed from Broadway.

Not only is The Mascot the season's pronounced success but it is also heralded as the forerunner of a higher class of musical show. A musical show wherein good music with good singers, good comedy with good comedians is as important as elaborate stage settings. Seats now selling. Mail orders received now. Address Orpheum theatre. ANNOUNCEMENTS

Y. M. C. A. Course Opens Wednesday This Week.

The DeLuxe Concert company opens the popular course under the Y. M. C. A. auspices on Wednesday evening of this week in the big new gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. building. The management believes that this company is all that its name implies. The personnel of the company includes Mary Cadman, one of the leading contraltos of the day; Mary Allen, soprano, who has a fine wonderful voice, and Abram Chasins as accompanist and artistic soloist. These artists have filled an unusual number of engagements on the concert platform and have on every occasion been received with great enthusiasm. The hope is that the Norwich public will avail itself of this real opportunity.

Tickets for the fine course of four are priced at $2. Price for this first concert 75 cents. Course tickets can be purchased at the Y. M. C. A. offices or Barrows' shoe store. Single tickets at the door.

Bred Theatre.

Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, written by George Ade, Our Leading Citizen, delighted large audiences at the Bred theatre yesterday. A more wholesome and humorous picture has not been seen at this popular playhouse this season, and that it created a fine impression is conceded.

Mr. Meighan is seen as a small town lawyer whose hobby is fishing—and honesty of purpose. He goes to the war and wins a reputation that, with the aid of the girl of his dreams, sends him to congress. In the development of this idea there are many dramatic and laughable scenes of which the star and his support make the most. Lois Wilson, leading woman, is seen to the finest advantage in a strong role. Theodore Roberts, Charles Ogle, James Neill and Sylvia Ashton render efficient assistance in making the picture the success it deserved and won.

Our Leading Citizen will be shown at the Bred theatre again today and tomorrow as the feature attraction, and other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and an Educational comedy.

Boost Norwich.

The display of Norwich products at the Merchants' and Industrial exposition Dec. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, will appeal to the many out of town visitors that will be drawn to the city at that time.

The management are laying plans for an extensive advertising campaign that will reach all eastern Connecticut as well as Rhode Island. The armory with its ample floor space will allow for an exposition worthy of this progressive community. There are very few buildings in the state that can boast a free and clear space such as we have in the armory.

The booths planned are of colonial architecture and the same style has been used for several of the largest convention exhibits in the east. The time is somewhat short, so active work is started today on what is destined to be the most wonderful exhibit ever held in the state. This may seem somewhat strong but with our live Chamber of Commerce along with the progressive spirit manifest on all sides, the management assures the public that Norwich can feel proud of this exposition.

Four Horsemen a Sensation at the Broadway.

One of the famous Parisian dance halls of pre-war days—and which since has become the target for reformers and crusaders—was reconstructed on the grounds of Metro's West Coast studios in Hollywood, Cal., as a setting for one scene of The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, the colossal Rex Ingram production of the world-famous novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez, now showing at the Broadway theatre.

The scene shows vividly the mad dance craze which struck Paris immediately before the European cataclysm. Every detail was faithfully carried out according to plans of Jacques d'Auray, who handled the French technicalities of the production.

Rudolph Valentino, enacting the leading male role in the picture, is called upon, as the famous tango leader, to execute some of the dances for which he gained an international reputation. Alice Terry as Marguerite, the heroine of the story, received careful instruction from Mr. Valentino in the intricacies of the tango and other Brazilian dances which are seen in this screen adaptation of June Mathis of the famous novel.

A Dramatic Achievement Opens at the Broadway Tuesday.

The Oath, the photoplay which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theatre, is a revelation in the art of the motion picture. In it R. A. Walsh, who produced and directed it for the Mayflower Photoplay corporation for distribution by Associated First National Pictures, Inc., has obtained two intensely dramatic effects which have been marked by critics as being important advances in the art of motion picture direction.

The first is giving the audience a distinct effect of having witnessed a tragedy without ever showing the actual event itself. The second scene which is regarded as notable is the entire absence of confusion in putting over the most dramatic incident ever shown in a motion picture. Rather than attempt to show the effect of the action on the crowd that witnesses it, Mr. Walsh has chosen close views of the emotions of the various characters most vitally affected by the result that the climax of the closing scene in The Oath is as gripping a piece of screen art as has ever been produced.

The Oath is an adaptation of the William J. Locke widely read novel. Miriam Cooper heads the cast which portrays the story under the skillful direction of Mr. Walsh, and in the support are Conway Tearle, Henry Clive and Anna Q. Nilsson.

Other subjects will include a comedy and news in conjunction with this theatre of drama.
