HITS THE NAIL

We are not unmindful of the fact that some benevolent disposed persons disapprove such exclusion and urge that the gates of this nation should be opened freely to the poor and oppressed of all lands. But there is such a thing as carrying the idea of asylum too far says the New York Tribune. The first duty of a government is to its own constituent citizens rather than to aliens or to potential citizens. Sympathy with the afflicted in other lands should not be permitted to go so far as to impose afflictions upon our own land. There would be no gain to humanity in relieving the pauperism of Europe merely to establish pauperism in America. Nor is a person's discontent with the government of his native land or the fact that he has fallen under its disfavor or oppression necessarily a sufficient passport to entry here. Those who leave monarchical countries through love of liberty and republican principles upon which this nation is founded are welcome. But when the disaffected of other lands are minded to continue here their disaffection and to rail and agitate and conspire against republicanism, just as they had done against monarchism, we must regard their coming as an impertinent and offensive intrusion, which is permitted, if at all, not because of any legal or moral right of theirs, but through a carelessness or a self-confidence on our part which may be more complacent than prudent or patriotic.

THE SMALL PARK.

Christian Science Monitor: A very large number of American cities that were once small, but have become large, are regretting that in their early days they did not set aside lands—or more lands—for park purposes. Even if they had not become nearly as large as they are today, they would have in these parks almost priceless possessions. A very large number of American communities that are small and that expect to become larger are planning to profit by the mistakes of their sisters. Even villages in many parts of the country are dedicating land within their limits to public purposes. The whole movement is in the nature of a revival of the village green and common, and it is a movement that should be applauded.

The small park beautifies the community. This is as true of the village as it is of the metropolis. The open square has been one of the charms of New York, as the common has been one of the charms of Boston.

It is when communities are young that they should make provision for small parks, and they are never too young to begin this or any other good work. The one regret with those cities already in possession of small parks is that they possess so few of them; and the best evidence of their value is the fact that the larger cities of the country, although better provided with small parks than they used to be, are moving for the acquirement of more of them.

CORVALLIS TO ENTERTAIN

poetry or historical romance, Director Angell has confined his literary work to athletics, the new book being entitled "Play." It is a discussion of the public playground, and the theory of play and exercise. The main feature of book is the presentation of 150 games, 25 of which are original. The publication is profusely illustrated, and a portion of it will be presented to the public in magazine form. "Play" will be issued about Christmas time, the author receiving royalties on the sale.

It is worth while to note that Mr. Angell, who has contributed several articles to higher class magazines, will present something interesting in the September or October number of the Ladies' Home Journal. The article is already in the Journal's hands and paid for.

Real Mission East.

Director Angell's important mission east this summer was to meet with the National Committee on basketball rules. While at the University of Michigan, Angell represented the middle-west on this committee, and when he came west tendered his resignation. The Association of Colleges appointed him to represent the Northwest instead. The other member of this committee are Dr. Naismith, of the University of Kansas, who originated basketball in 1892; Fisher of Columbia, Morgan of Pennsylvania, Vanderbilt of Princeton, Hyatt of Yale, and entertained at Waldo Hall, but while the beds are there, bedding is not available, and to give them two meals there would entail tremendous trouble and an expense of scarcely less than $200 or $250. No portion of this amount is available, and there is no disposition to solicit funds for this purpose. The homes of Corvallis must be opened, and none can doubt that there will be the customary liberal response on the part of the people approached.

So far as public entertainment is concerned the visitors do not want it. At the Club Monday night the rooms will probably be decorated with flowers, liquid refreshments served, and perchance some music provided, but there will be nothing elaborate, this upon the earnest solicitation of Manager Richardson, of the Portland Club.

PEOPLE WHO HAVE DIED RECENTLY

Something of the Life of Benton County People Who Have Been Called Away.

James B. Price, the Kings Valley man who dropped dead here last week, was one of ten children born to Fauntleroy and Gila Price, back in the eastern states. He was born July 22, 1841, and when ten years of age came west and located near Salt Creek, Polk county. In 1862 he went to Eastern Oregon and engaged in express work and mining which he continued four years. In 1868 he was married to the widow left to mourn his loss. In recent years they had lived in Benton and Polk counties. Two brothers survive James B., these being Preston, of Kings Valley, and Tom, of Gilliam county. A sister, Sophronia, lives in Kings Valley. Two sons are left, Frank L. and Roy L., of Corvallis. James B. Price was not what is called a devout man, but he had a religion and that was "do right." It is said of him that he was ever scrupulously honest and square in his dealings with his fellows.

Rowland

Rosalie Rowland, wife of John Rowland, who died in Portland last Thursday, was born in Corvallis April 25, 1848, this making her 60 years, 3 months and 18 days old. She left a husband, one daughter, six sons, one sister and three brothers. Mrs. Rowland had been a member of the Evangelical church for near 30 years, and one of her great regrets of the last few years was her inability to attend service.

Tortora

Mrs. Gene Tortora, whose death at a Portland sanatorium was announced in Saturday's daily, was formerly Ida May Elliott. She was aged 30 years and 11 months at her death and had been married to Mr. Tortora since Nov. 7, 1904. Besides the husband, three sisters and two brothers are left to mourn her departure.

N. B. Avery came in from his Siletz homestead yesterday and has gone to Portland to make final proof.

Bids Wanted.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received for the erection of the new church building for the First Presbyterian Church of Corvallis, by the Board of Trustees, up to 6 o'clock p. m. Monday, August 23, 1909, according to plans and specifications which can be seen at the office of the architect, E. E. McClaran, Portland, or at the office of Virgil E. Watters in Corvallis. A certified check made payable to First Presbyterian Church of Corvallis, of five (5) per cent of amount must accompany each bid. Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.
