DAILY SENTINEL

National Democratic Platform of 1864.

THE UNION—THE CONSTITUTION—PEACE—PUBLIC LIBERTY—PRIVATE RIGHTS—FREE ELECTIONS—A FREE PRESS—FREE SPEECH—TRIAL BY JURY—THE RIGHT OF ASYLUM—JUSTICE TO OUR SOLDIERS.

Resolved, That in the future, as in the past, we will adhere with unswerving fidelity to the Union under the Constitution as the only solid foundation of our strength, security and happiness as a people, and as a framework of government equally conducive to the welfare and prosperity of all the States, both Northern and Southern.

Resolved, That this Convention does explicitly declare, as the sense of the American people, that after four years of failure to restore the Union by the experiment of war, during which, under the pretense of military necessity or war power higher than the Constitution, the Constitution itself has been disregarded in every part, and public liberty and private right alike trodden down, and the material prosperity of the country essentially impaired, justice, humanity, liberty and the public welfare demand that immediate efforts be made for a cessation of hostilities with a view to an ultimate convention of the States, or other peaceable means, to the end that at the earliest practicable moment peace may be restored on the basis of the Federal Union of the States.

Resolved, That the direct interference of the military authorities of the United States in the recent elections held in Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri and Delaware was a shameful violation of the Constitution, and a repetition of such acts in the approaching election will be held as revolutionary, and resisted with all the means and power under our control.

Resolved, That the aim and object of the Democratic party is to preserve the Federal Union and the rights of the States unimpaired, and they hereby declare that they consider that the administrative usurpation of extraordinary and dangerous powers not granted by the Constitution, the subversion of the civil by military law in States not in insurrection, the arbitrary military arrest, imprisonment, trial and sentence of American citizens in States where civil law exists in full force, the suppression of freedom of speech and of the press, the denial of the right of asylum, the open and avowed disregard of State rights, the employment of unusual test oaths, and the interference with and denial of the right of the people to bear arms in their defense; is calculated to prevent a restoration of the Union and the perpetuation of the Government deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed.

Resolved, That the shameful disregard of the Administration to its duty in respect to our fellow citizens who now are, and long have been, prisoners of war in a suffering condition, deserves the severest reprobation on the score alike of public policy and common humanity.

Resolved, That the sympathy of the Democratic party is hearty and earnestly extended to the soldiery of our army and sailors of our navy who are and have been in the field and on the sea, under the flag of their country, and in the event of its attaining power, they will receive all the care, protection and regard that the brave soldiers and sailors of the republic have so nobly earned

FROM NORTH CAROLINA.

A Terrific Engagement with the Rebel Ram.

Sinking of the Albemarle.

Escape of Lieutenant Cushing.

Extracts from Southern Papers.

&c., &c., &c., &c.

From New York.

NEW YORK, November 3.—The Hampton Roads correspondent of the Herald gives the following account of the destruction of the Albemarle. Along the dock where the Albemarle was tied were large numbers of soldiers to guard against a surprise, and in front of their lines blazed a row of camp fires lighting up the rebel vessel and river.

By the aid of this Lieut. Cushing discovered the pieces of floating timbers which surrounded the ram on the accessible sides, to guard against the approaching of rams or torpedoes.

By aid of the same light he plainly saw the large body of soldiers throng to the wharf, and blazing away at his boat. To quiet these fellows he brought the bow of his boat around a little and discharged a heavy round of canister into them from his 12-pounder howitzer mounted at the bow and sent them flying. Making a complete circle under a scorching musketry fire at less than thirty yards, he came around, bow on, at full steam and struck the floating guard of timber, pressing them in towards the hull of the ram. His boat soon lost headway and came to a stand, still refusing to back off or move ahead.

The moment for decisive action had now arrived. The enemy fired muskets and pistols almost in his face from the ports of the ram and from the hundred small arms on shore. Several of his men were wounded, and Paymaster Swan had fallen severely wounded. The officers and crew of the Albemarle criedout, "Now we've got him. Surrender, or we'll blow you to pieces." The case looked desperate, but Lieut. Cushing was cool and determined, and he fuzed the lanyard to torpedo and the line of the spar, and crowded the spar until he brought the torpedo under the overhang of the Albemarle, he detached it with some effort, then pulled the lanyard of the torpedo and exploded it fairly under the vessel on her port side, just below the port hole of a 200-pounder Brooke rifle which at that moment was discharged at the boat.

An immense volume of water was thrown out by the explosion of the torpedo, almost drawing in the boat, and to add to the peril of the moment, the heavy shell from the enemy's gun had gone crushing through the bottom of the boat, knocking the splinters about in terrible style. She at once began to sink in the most rapid manner, and Lieut. Cushing ordered all hands to save themselves as best they could. He divested himself of coat and shoes, and plunged in the river, followed by those of his men who were able to do so; and all struck for the middle of the river under a hot fire of musketry—the bullets striking all about them, and in two instances it is feared, so badly wounding the swimmers that they sunk before the boats from the shore could reach them.

Lieut. Cushing heard the rebels take to boats and push after the swimmers and demanding their surrender. Two of his seamen were drowned near by him, whether owing to wounds received or exhaustion, he could not state.

Paymaster Swan was wounded, and is a prisoner, but how many others fell into the rebels' hands is not ascertained.

Lieut Cushing swam down the river half a mile, until exhausted, but he reached the shore about daylight, crawled through a swamp until he reached a position within speaking distance of the enemy's line. While lying there two rebel officers walked by, and from their conversation he learned that the ram was destroyed.

After awhile, deeming his position unsafe, he managed to push himself along on his back about sixty yards and got a better position. Before midnight he secured the services of a negro to go back and look after the Albermarle. The negro returned and reported her sunk. Lt. Cushing then struck through the swamp in his stocking feet until he reached a point six miles below the town, when he took a boat, and with a paddle put off for the squadron, twelve miles, reaching it in safety.

The Herald's Washington special says, the sentence of Ferry and Donahue is not yet approved by the President

The Richmond Examiner of the 31st says General Duffie reached Richmond on the 10th and was committed to the Libby Prison.

The Sentinel of the 31st says Lomax has whipped Sheridan's cavalry in two engagements, and captured three pieces of his artillery.
