THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

New Orleans Money Market.

CRESCENT OFFICE, No. 79 Camp street,
Wednesday Evening, Nov. 11, 1857.

The general market to-day, as far as cotton and exchange were concerned, was heavy. Most parties, as well as operators in general, seemed to be waiting for the steamer's news up to the 31st. It was manifest to-day that the recent rapid advance in exchange, as well as the rise of 2½ cents per lb. on cotton, could not be sustained unless supported by strong accounts from the other side. There is nothing from New York of a hopeful character. We have advices of the banks in that city having $16,000,000, or more, in specie, but the public are not advised how much of this is on special deposit, or whether the banks are actually the real owners of more than one-half of the amount. The banks were only discounting the amount of their receipts—that is, their actual income. On the street money was in demand at from 2@3 per cent. per month.

The tone of our money market was of a healthy appearance to what it has been for some weeks—nevertheless, there still remains considerable nervousness, which is operated on more or less by every touch of the telegraph wire. Our banks make a very strong exhibit. Three of them—the Citizens', Canal and Bank of Louisiana—are over one million and six hundred thousand dollars above the requirements of the law. The deposits are daily increasing, but recent events caution managers not to discount or buy exchange on the line of deposits; consequently, the general movements must be confined to actual capital.

There were some sales of paper on the street to-day at the rate of 2½ per cent. per month, and some sales at 2 per cent. discount. Dealers in paper are relaxing daily, and it will not be many days before we shall have much lower rates to quote. There is very little business—in fact, none at all—that will justify paying even these rates.

Coin continues to be received. The steamer Tennessee brings $559,000, consigned to various parties. The large amount of $300,000, consigned to order, comes to be invested in cotton; in fact, nearly the entire sum is for the purchase of the staple for shipment to Mexico.

The movements in exchange to-day indicated great firmness on the part of drawers. There were some round sums of sight on New York sold at an ⅛ discount. There were also sales at ⅛, and sales at ¼ discount. There was very little demand at the banks for checks. They had held and sold at par. There were sales of clear A1 sterling at 100@101. There were also sales at 98@100. Francs in fair request only for some grades—the rates were in favor of buyers at 5.90@5.75. For choice bills on Paris direct there were sales at 5.50. At a late hour drawers who have been idle for days past concluded it was time to go to work, and under some orders for Western accounts there were sales of sight drafts to considerable amounts at par. If this rate should be maintained for any space of time, there would be a revocation of orders for Western account. However, there is no probability that this rate can be sustained, with the heavy amounts of cotton, sugar and molasses expected hourly, daily and weekly in market.

There was nothing done in stocks to-day. A sale of a few shares of Bank of New Orleans at 75 was all that we heard of. The sales of New Orleans Gas Light Company have recently been made in Philadelphia at 110, but none here. The stock is sound, and the usual dividend of 5 per cent. will be declared next month. The stock is held here at $120. Nothing done in bonds to-day.

The weather is remarkably fine for sugar planters, and a good crop is expected. What we call a good crop is 300,000 hhds—that will be the extent. It may be less.

The receipts of produce are increasing at the Gulf City (Mobile.) Under this head, the Register of yesterday, of that city, announces from the interior, by steamer R. B. Taney, 4 boxes of gold ($100,000) to Bank of Mobile, and two boxes ($50,000) to Southern Bank of Alabama. This is the kind of produce which moves things. It is, however, very questionable whether it was raised in the interior of Alabama, though the chief product of the State was instrumental in bringing it there.

It will not be forgotten that the Banks in Boston are like New York under suspension. The following figures show their position at the dates named:

	Loans.	Specie.	Deposits.	Circul'n.
Sept. 1, 1857....	$3,353,000	3,431,800	15,564,700	6,557,400
Sept. 8, 1857....	53,029,900	2,865,400	15,798,600	6,993,000
Oct. 6, 1857....	49,31?,000	2,568,000	12,961,400	6,387,700
Nov. 3, 1857....	50,195,700	3,090,700	14,624,000	5,970,600

The following is an abstract of the situation of the banks in Maine, as they existed on the Saturday preceding the first Monday in October:

Capital stock	$7,702,900 00
Bills in circulation	3,973,364 00
Specie	641,864 50
Deposits	1,890,203 13
Loans	12,189,505 75
Amount due from other banks	965,299 78
Bills issued	10,185,543 00
Unsigned bills on hand	4,023,394 00

[From the London Economist, Oct. 17.]

The condition of the money market on Monday can only be described as one of panic, caused by the sudden rise in the bank rate of discount on the opening of the business of the week of one per cent—for, however well prepared the public were for a further advance, yet the fact of its taking place so suddenly and at so unusual a time appeared to imply an urgency and a degree of apprehension on the part of the directors which subsequent events have scarcely justified. No doubt there were some important circumstances calculated to influence their decision in that direction, and knowing, as the public now do, the importance of maintaining the rate of discount at its full market value, and so preventing an inconvenient abstraction of bullion to foreign countries, the course adopted by the bank, though somewhat abrupt, will not be censured. The demand for advances and discounts throughout Saturday had been very great, prompted, no doubt, by an impression that a further advance would soon take place. The accounts of the bank, made up to the close of the week, as shown by the returns published to-day, exhibited a further decline in the bullion of £563,000, and in the reserve of notes of £681,000, while the private advances had increased in the week by £563,000, showing an amount of private securities of no less than £22,398,000, the largest sum which ever appeared in any bank return before. But in addition to these actual facts, there was the natural apprehension as to the consequences of the news from the United States, and the great probability of considerable if not extensive shipments of gold, which the state of the exchanges seemed to indicate. If these shipments have been smaller than was at one time expected, there can be no doubt that we are in part indebted to the prompt action of the bank for that fact. It must never be lost sight of that it depends entirely upon the terms upon which bills can be converted into gold, or, in other words, discounted, whether or not the precious metals can at any given rate of exchange be exported to a profit. Still it was not the simple fact that the rate of discount was increased to seven per cent. that brought consols down to 86¾. About a year ago the minimum rate of discount was the same, the bullion in the bank was considerably less, as was also the reserve while consols stood at 92. That the depression of Monday was caused mainly by panic is best shown by the rapid recovery of the funds since; the price at which they left off yesterday being 88¾, or fully two per cent. above the lowest price of Monday.

Looking to all the best and acknowledged tests of our monetary condition, there is certainly nothing to justify the alarm which appears to have existed. This, however, is a question altogether apart from a high rate of discount, which experience has abundantly proved is not incompatible with sound and even with profitable business. The bullion still in the bank stands at £10,110,000, while only in April last it was as low as £9,065,000, and the reserve of notes is £4,024,000, while in April it was £3,044,000. That some further reduction will take place is probable, if not certain, both by the payment of the dividends and in consequence of shipments of gold to the United States; but, on the other hand, already considerable arrivals of gold have taken place, and other shipments are known to be nearly due. Indeed, it will be seen upon examination that large arrivals from Australia usually take place during the months of November and December. But our future prospects probably depend much more upon other countries than upon this. If we had the condition of our own trade and finance to look to, the future would be less embarrassed with doubt and difficulty. But so closely united now are the monetary transactions of all the great commercial countries in the world that whatever affects one, less or more affects the whole. Looking only to the trade of this country, the great extent of our exports being at the rate of more than £100,000,000 in the year, together with other facts, lead to a well founded conviction that probably never at any other time was so large a balance due by other countries to this. Considering, therefore, the probable amount of the claims that may be made upon us that fact is most assuring. But it is not enough to prevent a temporary inconvenience. Securities common to this and other markets may find their way here to an inconvenient amount; mercantile credits will be used to their full extent, and foreign bills will be discounted in order to aid houses abroad. All this, however, has a limit, and probably one which is soon reached; for every advance made by this to other countries will only add to the general balance due to us by foreign countries, and will the sooner insure a return of the bullion which may to some extent be shipped to satisfy these demands. The three points which most disturb the calculations of capitalists at this moment are India, the United States, and portions of the Continent, and it may be well to consider in a few words how far the prevailing apprehensions are sustained by facts.

The property consists of over 2200 Acres of Land, inferior to none in Louisiana, heavily timbered, and nearly all susceptible of cultivation, about 700 acres of which are in cultivation; upwards of 80 Slaves, all family negroes; over 50 Mules; a stock of Cattle and Hogs; Circular Saw Mill; Farming Utensils; Mechanics' Tools, (with which the plantation is abundantly supplied;) Corn and Hay, supposed to be sufficient for the next season's consumption.
