The New Orleans Crescent.

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1868.

Gen. Butler's Report—A Card from Thurlow Weed.

Though in a condition of health which furnished good reasons for avoiding fatigue, I was not willing to subject myself to abuse (sure, however, from the Tribune and Herald, whatever I do or omit to do) by asking for delay in obeying Gen. Butler's subpœna. The result, therefore, of my examination (or so much of it as Gen. Butler chose to publish) will be found on the first page of this paper. It was not revised, or seen by myself, after it was given, although in similar cases witnesses are allowed that privilege. Gen. Butler, I am informed, devoted the whole of Sunday (it was taken on Saturday) in preparing it for the House. I have nothing, however, to object to or complain of in this respect. What is given of my testimony, with one or two not important errors, is given accurately. It contains nothing to explain or regret. I have neither done an act nor said a word, in relation to the impeachment and trial of the president, that I would not do and say again.

If the results of my information and observation teach me anything, it is that Senators Grimes, Fessenden, Fowler, Henderson, Trumbull, Ross and Van Winkle, voted upon their convictions of duty.

In explanation of the propositions made to myself, I have just this to say:

Senator Pomeroy either intended to dispose of three votes (including his own), or he was willing that his friends should use his name to make money; or, as some believe, there was a conspiracy between Butler and Pomeroy to implicate the president, thus obtaining new material for impeachment.

My reasons for this belief are, that several months since Mr. Leggett, an intimate friend of Senator Pomeroy, wanted the appointment of postmaster of Leavenworth, Kansas. He was supported by Pomeroy, who wrote a letter, which was shown to the postmaster general, promising his (Pomeroy's) vote for presidential confirmation and his influence against impeachment. The postmaster general was furnished with a copy of Senator Pomeroy's letter (copied from the original in his possession), and Leggett received a postal agency. Some few weeks ago Leggett appears before Colonel Cooper with a letter from Senator Pomeroy, saying that he would carry out in good faith any "arrangements" made with Mr. Gaylord, who is Pomeroy's brother-in-law; whereupon Leggett and Gaylord undertake, for money, to obtain the votes of Senators Pomeroy, Nye and Tipton. I did not believe that Senators Nye and Tipton had authorized this "arrangement," nor did I believe that either of them would vote against the conviction of the president. But I did and do believe that Senator Pomeroy baited the hooks with which his friend Leggett and his brother-in-law Gaylord fished. Whether they caught anything or not, I am unable to say. Nothing, certainly, from me or with my consent.

If it were not necessary that I should avoid both labor and thought, I should reply, fittingly, to an offensive personal reflection of Gen. Butler, and reply also to one or two other assailants. Gen. Butler, aware of the bitterness of feeling entertained by radical leaders and radical presses against me, chose to avail himself of that feeling to stave off action upon the articles of impeachment. If he is satisfied with the result of his coup d'etat, I am content. THURLOW WEED.

ORIENTAL HUMOR—Burlingame's Chinamen.—The New York Herald has the following:

While arranging one of the groups at this place, Teh, who speaks English very well, had a ludicrous fall from a chair. In his descent, his cue, or "pig-tail," of very respectable length, flew upward, and the end of it in some manner got entangled on a nail in the wall. Perceiving the oddity of the situation, he at once curled up his body and, with a laugh, requested he might be presented to the Gothamites in that attitude. When they had tired of their vist to Mr. Gurney's gallery—the young men of the party supplying themselves with photographs of the ladies who appear in the "White Fawn"—they prepared to return to their hotel.

Near the doorway to the street, on their exit, a number of ladies stood to scrutinize them, and while the carriages were being drawn up a temporary halt on the sidewalk was made. A lady standing near the rather handsome form of Tung, forgetting good-breeding in her desire to acquire hirsute knowledge under difficulties, very deliberately took in her ungloved hand his long and elaborately plaited cue, black as coal and almost as coarse as the hair of a "big Ingin," and critically examined it. Tung eyed the "lady" for a moment, a smile illuminating his broad, flat face as he glanced at her own coiffure, and then bowing, said: "All mine! all mine!" The inquisitive feminine retired in disgust, and Mr. Tung, the smile on his dark face deeper and broader than before, entered the carriage with others of his companions and was presently rolled up Broadway.

FACTS!—Messrs. N. Kiefler & Hollander, No. 256 Poydras street, Manufacturers of the Malakoff Bitters:

Gentlemen—I have examined the patent that was granted you by the U. S. Government for manufacturing the Malakoff Bitters, and found in the ingredients employed a compound well calculated to excite and keep in good order the digestive organs. I have prescribed said Bitters several times, and in every instance I had occasion to ascertain their beneficial effect. I remain, gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient servant, A. MERCIER, M. D., 198 Canal street.

I have examined the patent you hold for the manufacture of Malakoff Bitters, and find nothing in the ingredients thereof calculated to act injuriously upon the human system, unless taken in inordinate quantities. Indeed, it is nothing but a cordial aromatic bitter. S. A. SMITH, M. D.

Your Malakoff Bitters, which I have examined, do not contain any ingredients injurious to health, and may be recommended to those who are in want of a good tonic.

Yours, M. SCHUPPERT, M. D.
