VALUABLE LAW BOOK.
Gwynne's New Work on Sheriffs.

LAW OF SHERIFF AND CORONER. Just published, "A practical treatise on the law of Sheriff and Coroner," with forms and references to the statutes of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, by A. E. Gwynne.

This work treats of the appointments and qualifications of Sheriff and Coroner, the appointment of deputies and jailer, and liability for their acts, and, generally, of the duties and liabilities of the sheriff and coroner. Among other subjects discussed, are the service of summons or process not requiring bail; the service of capias ad respondendum and ad satisfaciendum; arrest and privilege and discharge therefrom; bail; exoneration; escapes; service of the writ of replevin; rescue and recaptures; foreign and domestic attachment; proceedings against water craft; the writ of fieri facias and proceedings thereunder, embracing levy, sale of goods or land, lien, title acquired by the contract, &c.; writ of habere facias possessionem; writ of habeas corpus, service of subpœna; execution on decrees; proceedings for a recovery of dowry; arrest, &c., in criminal cases, keeping of jail; inquests of lunacy; forcible detainer; juries; elections, and fees of the sheriff. Under each head will be found the laws of the three States—Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, upon the subject treated of. The work also contains such forms as are usually required by sheriffs in the discharge of their duties.

Of this new and valuable work, Judge Walker speaks in the following terms:

"Gwynne on Sheriffs.

"A practical treatise on the law of Sheriff and Coroner, with forms and references to the statutes of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, by A. E. Gwynne, Attorney at law, Cincinnati. To those who know the author of this book as well as we do, it is superfluous to say that his professional habit is to do thoroughly whatever he undertakes. Though not many years in practice at our bar, Mr. Gwynne has already established for himself a high reputation. The production of this book will serve to heighten it still further. But to the book itself:

"It is divided into three parts. The first treats of matters connected with the appointment of sheriffs and coroners, and their duties. The second exhibits, in detail, their powers and duties. The third treats of their liabilities. In connection with each, the forms to be observed are set forth at length—and the index to the whole is very full and complete. It will thus be seen that the work is adapted to meet the wants, not only of sheriffs and coroners, for whom it may have been primarily designed, but of the bar generally. Such a work has long been felt to be a desideratum. We presume that no sheriff or coroner or practising lawyer, will long be without it—and we take pride especially in recommending it, not only as a good book in itself, but also as being purely a domestic manufacture. We are right glad to know that good law books can be both compiled and published here at home. In this respect we have declined and can maintain our independence."

From Hon. Isaac Blackford, of Indianapolis.

"The work on Sheriffs, written by Mr. Gwynne and recently published by you, is, in my opinion, exceedingly valuable. It is very important to the public, that the law relative to the duties of Sheriffs should be understood and correctly administered. There are a few other good Treatises on the subject, but Mr. Gwynne's will be found much the most useful in the States for which it is intended. I shall immediately prepare to direct the duties of the profession, particularly in the West, will be greatly facilitated by this book, and that it cannot fail to be liberally patronized."

From Hon. James Morrison, of Indianapolis.

"Having with some care examined the "Practical Treatise on the Law of Sheriff and Coroner," by A. E. Gwynne, Attorney at Law, recently published by you, I take pleasure in expressing the opinion that it is a work of merit; and that it will prove eminently and extensively useful, particularly in the States for which it is more especially designed and adapted."

From Hon. Wm. J. Peaslee, of Indianapolis.

"I think your work is written with great ability, accuracy, and learning. I regard the work as eminently useful not only to Sheriffs and Coroners, but to the profession generally."
