THE DUSSELDORF GALLERY.—The collection of PICTURES known under the above name, has been removed to the AMERICAN ART-UNION GALLERY, No. 497 Broadway, where it remains on Exhibition from 10 o'clock A. M. until 10 P. M. Admission 25 cents.

THE DUSSELDORF GALLERY.—In The Courier and Enquirer of Tuesday, and also in other morning and evening papers, a notice appeared, headed "The Closing of the old Dusseldorf Gallery," by which many persons have been led to suppose that the collection of Pictures known under that name were to be sold. This impression, however, is erroneous, as the notice above alluded to, referred only to a collection of Pictures placed for that purpose under my charge, and transferred by me to the rooms lately occupied by the Dusseldorf Gallery, which latter has been removed to the American Art-Union Gallery, No. 497 Broadway.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER: A NOVEL OF NEW-YORK SOCIETY. By Mrs. Anna Cora Mowatt, author of "The Autobiography of an Actress," "Evelyn," &c., &c.
"No American Novel possesses more intricate interest than The Fortune Hunter. It has a most powerful hold upon the feelings from the first page to the last. The cold, calculating fortune hunter's character in every city may in this interesting book find his own true but homely portrait; while the heiress of wealth and beauty may at the same time find in it a lesson of life and usefulness forever."

A BOOK OF PLANS FOR CHURCHES AND PARSONAGES—Comprising 18 designs of Churches and four of Parsonages, by Upjohn, Downing, Renwick, Wheeler, Wells, Austin, Stone, Cleveland, Parkes, and Reve.
The Letter Press contains descriptive remarks on IDEA OF CHURCH BUILDING.
SITE—STYLE—COMPLETENESS.
PERMANENCE—TRUTHFULNESS.
BEAUTY—MISCELLANEOUS SUGGESTIONS.
We copy a few extracts from the many favorable notices received:
From The New-York Tribune, New-York.
"It forms one of the most timely and valuable volumes on the subject of church building that has ever been brought out in this country. We certainly recommend it to all who are interested in the improvement of church architecture."
From The Congregationalist, Boston.
"This work is perfectly indispensable to a society proposing to build a church. The cheapest structure ought not to be commenced without a consultation of it, as the result of which it may cost ($10) would, we doubt not, be found to have been saved ten times over."
From The Boston Traveller, Boston.
"The designs are various, from the most simple building adapted to the infant church in a new settlement to the elegant and expensive as older and richer localities require. It is certainly a beautiful, useful and admirable volume."
From The Watchman and Reflector, Boston.
"Having so many varied models before them, a building committee will be greatly aided in deciding from appearance and from the expense to be incurred just what they want."
From The Congregational Herald, Chicago.
"We urge every church that is about to erect a house of worship or parsonage to purchase it and adopt one of the many neat, chaste and convenient designs it contains."
From The Home Mission Record, New-York.
"Almost any church could find in these designs one that would suit them."
From The New-York Recorder, New-York.
"We part with this superb volume commending it to public libraries and to all persons who have any practical concern in the erection of church edifices."
From The American Baptist Memorial, Philadelphia.
"Nothing was more needed among the churches in this country. Building Committees would find it the wisest economy to purchase this volume."
Price $10. Published by DANIEL BURGESS & Co.,

THE CONFLICT OF AGES!
BY DR. EDWARD BEECHER.
THIS REMARKABLE WORK HAS REACHED ITS FIFTH EDITION IN THE RELIGIOUS WORLD IN ONE MONTH!
A SUCCESS UNPRECEDENTED IN THEOLOGICAL PUBLICATIONS.
An impression has already been produced by this masterly treatise, the most profound, wide-reaching and permanent.
It is perfectly manifest to all competent observers, that we are upon the eve of a Theological discussion, the most comprehensive, radical and portentous the world has ever seen. To this discussion this book leads the way with a momentum irresistible. There is not a question in Theology which is not destined to come up for a new and thorough settlement in the light of this final development.
All those who love Theological doubts and difficulties should examine the solution this work affords.
Those who have no doubts, but who wish to study the history of opinions in the past, and to keep pace with the developments of opinion in the future, will grievously err if they neglect to make themselves familiar with this book. It contains the seeds of the thinking and debating of the next hundred years.
The reputation of this work by the Theological Press of the country has been significant. Equally declining to accept his conclusion, they do it on opposite and contradictory grounds. One-half the Theological Press indorses the major premise of the argument and denies the minor. The other half indorses the minor and denies the major. And as they are probably both right in their positive element and wrong in their negative, the work has received a virtual indorsement of the most powerful kind.
As regards the ability of the work and its claims on the attention of all, the following extracts may suffice:
From The Princeton Repository—(Old School Orthodox.)
"It is characterized by great ability, by an earnest spirit, by frankness, candor and courtesy." "It has a special interest for us. We HAIL IT AS AN ALLY. The author shuts the readers up to the choice between Orthodoxy and the doctrine of Development."
From The Universalist Quarterly and General Review, Jan., 1854.
"We have the most spectacle of a man clinging with a mastery grasp to all the fundamentals of Orthodoxy, yet dealing it a blow beneath which it reels."
"It would be difficult to find within the limits of a hundred pages any treatise or essay that can compare in importance with this analysis (B. iv.) of orthodox doctrines. Dr. Beecher has struck upon the right principle in his theory of typical interpretation, in the fifth of Romans."
From The Methodist Quarterly Review.
"The profoundest questions of theology are taking hold of the American mind. The 'Conflict of Ages' is an earnest exposition of the great problem of theology by an earnest man who feels and thinks strongly. The book is very able in many respects."
From The Bibliotheca Sacra, Andover, (Orthodox) New School.
"This volume is the fruit of original investigation. Every page of it bears the impress of a mind that thinks for itself. The book is all be read in future times, and as it contains much which a lover of truth will commend as well as much which he will condemn, it is safe for scholarship to the great labor which has already been expended upon it."
The same periodical advises the preparation of an index.
From The Baptist Christian Review, Hartford.
"The problem proposed for discussion is the most difficult and momentous that can engage the human mind." " " He considers in detail all the moral and theological solutions that have been attempted in all ages by the ancients and by the moderns, " " and rejects the whole without hesitation or cavil."
Christian Examiner, (Unitarian.)
"We should trespass on the patience of our readers if we pursued further to give our views upon the startling, yes, the APALLING EXHIBITION which Dr. B. has made of the ORTHODOX SYSTEM."
Boston Congregationalist.
"If Universalists and Unitarians will read the work candidly, it must have a powerful tendency to draw them off the slippery ROCK on which they stand."
Christian Examiner.
"How much anxiety which the book will cause to the Orthodox may be allowed to transpire publicly we cannot say, for policy may dictate reserve; but in private there must be a frequent repetition of the question, 'Men and brethren, what shall we do?'"
From The Boston Congregationalist.
"Push!" Henlen, the sky is falling!" "Who told you, Chicklick?" "I went down into the garden, and a currant fell on my head."
From The Christian Examiner.
"The word 'Push' is easily spoken. We consider the book as manifestly destined to reopen, in the most effective way, one whole controversy, and in the long result, to win such a triumph for our general views of the doctrines of the Bible, that we would give our vote to a proposition that opened for the whole sum of fifty thousand dollars which the Unitarians are about to raise for the circulation of their books, should be spent in the dissemination of this volume."
From The Unitarian Monthly Religious Magazine—edited by the Rev. Mr. Huntington.
"Dr. Beecher's theory acts with more logical force against Orthodoxy, with most spiritual force against Unitarianism. Those apostles of his nations respecting man's sinfulness and need of regeneration, who have hastened to greet this volume as an ally to their cause, will be subject to a disappointment." " " Whoever undertakes to answer the general argument, except perhaps from the ground of extreme Pelagianism, will find room for the exercise of his best ingenuities."
"The fate of this book will be singular. Sold, read, admired, discussed, abused, plundered, treated, laughed at, to as full a measure as the most ambitious wishes could desire."
National Era.
"This work has caused a great commotion among the D. D.'s in our land. It merits their attention."
N. Y. Tribune.
"The most significant work on theology which has appeared of late."
"In many respects this volume is one of the most curious, as well as one of the most suggestive productions of modern American theology."
Philadelphia Presbyterian Quarterly—New School.
"Able it unquestionably is."
Westminster Review, England.
"The Conflict of Ages is in effect a protest against Calvanism by one of the leading Calvinistic divines of New-England.
Boston Congregationalist.
"A very unsafe book for heresiarchs to put into the hands of either Universalist or Unitarian of real and manly mind, accustomed to deep and serious thought." "Whatever else he may be or may not be, he will never be either an ancient Socinian or a modern Universalist."
The New-Englander.
"The book itself is its compressed thought, its vigorous diction, and admirable arrangement of topics is a valuable illustration of the advantages which are gained by patient labor. We have never yet seen this sketch surpassed (Book IV. Historical Outline,) for its breadth and accuracy by any history of doctrine; and we think that few pages have been penned in any department of literature by American authors, which deserve to be read more attentively, or which display such extensive and thorough learning, or such clear, candid and accurate statements in the briefest compass. The careful perusal of this Fourth book would convey more profitable information in the shortest possible time than is acquired by many students in their entire theological course."
Similar testimonials could be multiplied indefinitely. Indeed, the amount of matter already printed in the form of reviews, criticisms, replies, &c., would form several volumes of the size of the book itself. Its publication marks an era in the world's thought. We hope it does not wish to be behind the age must read the "Conflict of Ages." PHILLIPS, SAMPSON & Co., Publishers.

TEMPEST AND SUNSHINE; Or, LIFE IN KENTUCKY. By Mrs. MARY J. HOLMES. 1 vol. 12mo. Paper, 75 cents; cloth, $1.
"A cheerful, well written book, portraying western life to the letter. The book abounds in an easy humor, with touching sentiment of tenderness and pathos scattered through it, and from first to last keeps up a humane interest that very many authors strive in vain to achieve. 'Tempest' and 'Sunshine,' two sisters, are an exemplification of the creed that to some comes by nature, and to others is found only through trials, temptations and tribulation. Mr. Middleton, the father of 'Tempest' and 'Sunshine' is the very soul and spirit of 'Old Kentuck,' abridged into one man. The book is
