To Enterprising Printers.—The undersigned as assignee of the patent issued last January to JOHN DONLEVY for his extension of the Typographic Art termed CHROMO-GLYPHOTYPE—that is, printing (in several colors, if required) so as to produce the effect of Engraving—respectfully solicits the attention of the foremost Printers throughout the country to the utility of this invention, the beauty of its results, and the chances for liberal profits which it proffers to those who take hold of it. I will sell at moderate rates (considering the heavy outlay incurred in bringing this Art to perfection) exclusive rights for cities or States; and, as the patent is recently issued, it must afford unusual opportunities for building up a profitable business, and realizing a handsome fortune in any city where Fancy Printing (which has quadrupled within the last five years) is required. Printers are earnestly requested to call at the office, No. 29 Beekman-st., and see what work we are now doing by this Art, though it is as yet developed in but two or three applications out of the scores of which it is susceptible. It should be understood that no medicines are administered for Lung diseases, only by inhalation, and that the method of inhaling the vapors used at the New-York Lung Institute differs widely from that of others. Physicians are invited to witness the plan of treatment and success. Owing to the increasing popularity and success of Dr. SANBORN'S treatment of Lung and Throat diseases, and to the many applications for treatment at the Lung Institute, persons are informed that those who do not desire to place themselves under treatment, can obtain Dr. SANBORN'S MEDICATED LUNG VAPOR with full directions for use. THE GREATEST of AMERICAN BOOKS!
EXTRAORDINARY SUCCESS
Of the Splendid Romance of American Life,
FASHION AND FAMINE.
By Mrs. Ann S. Stephens.

This remarkable volume is fast attaining a popularity quite as extended as any other American book. Critics everywhere are unanimous in bestowing upon it the heartiest praise, and the publishers are continually receiving private testimonials which express the greatest admiration for it. As a book of power, of strong, substantial and varied interest; as a thoroughly real picture of modern life and society, in all its phases, grades and contrasts; as a story of the heart and all its capacities for sorrow and suffering and all its powers for right and wrong; as a book of the world, where human nature is delineated in its vices and its virtues, its follies and its wisdom—this volume has no equal. The richness and finish of the style, and the pleasing faithfulness of many of our local scenes, added to the strong individuality which presents each character, gives to the book a peculiar charm.

We subjoin a few of the many encomiums bestowed upon it by the press.

"As a work of art, irrespective of its pure morality, its high-toned sentiment, and deep and true womanly feeling, it is among the very best fictions we have read for years. The characters are contrasted with true artistic talent, their peculiarities are admirably presented and never overdrawn. The plot is eminently original, and yet probable." [N. Y. Express.

"Mrs. Stephens has performed her task with great decorum, and with a very considerable degree of power. She has produced a natural and touching story, without the aid of exaggerated coloring, or morbidly intense sentiment. Her characters are drawn from the extremes of society, and though sometimes placed in improbable situations, are obviously portraitures and not inventions. Their language is such as we hear in every-day life—the incidents in their history are generally in accordance with their personal traits—and the most astounding scrapes they fall into are not without their parallels in actual experience. One of the best personages in the story is a rude, rough-cast, nasal, and eccentric downeaster named Jacob Strong, who, in the capacity of an old family servant, follows the erring heroine of the plot, like a sort of human-angelic champion and counselor, through a perplexed tissue of misfortune and crime, and shows a wily strategy beneath an exterior of decided Now-England verdancy, in defending his protege from all sorts of machinations and outrages. Mrs. Gray, the good hearted, plethoric market-woman, Julia Warren, the mysterious strawberry girl, and poor Florence Craft, are effectively delineated,—perhaps even too greatly diverting the attention from the principal characters of the tragic drama. In point of style, the narrative can certainly claim the merit of terseness and vigor. The forte of the author is description rather than dialogue, but she knows how to make her works 'tell' in each of these branches of composition, and rarely fails to be energetic and impressive." [N. Y. Tribune.

"Altogether the most powerful novel of American society which has yet been written. The story is intensely interesting. The characters walk fairly out from the canvas. One cannot lay down the book, after having taken it up, until the conclusion has been reached." [Philadelphia Ledger.

"The book is full of incident, and the plot artistically wrought out. The style shows the luxuriant imagination of the author, and her felicitous command of language. Rich coloring is shed on the most common-place scenes and events. It is not often we see genious of so high an order, such power of conception, combined with such artistic skill in grouping and disposition, and accuracy of detail in description; but this has always been a peculiarity in Mrs. Stephens." [U. S. Journal.

"She writes with feeling and spirit, and her pictures of New-England Life are full of the life and spirit that evidence a thorough acquaintance and love of it." [New-Bedford Mercury.

"The work is one of contrasts. The reader is continually bidden to 'look on this picture, then on that.' The seductions and fascinations of the goddess, and the terrors and sufferings which follow the coming of the specter are sketched in vivid and blinding colors." [Buffalo Express.

"A work of great creative power and deep truth to nature." [New-York Sun.

"The spirit of the book is admirable. The plot is well managed and not unnatural, and the range of characters varied and judiciously conducted. The book exhibits a dramatic skill and power that is really rare, and we place it among the best written of American domestic novels." [Utica Herald.

"The story is based on facts and incidents in real life, and the progress of the plot is worked out with the most thrilling dramatic effect. We predict a sensation in the reading world." [N. Y. Mirror.

"It will take immediate stand among the most extremely popular domestic fictions of the day." [Golden Rule.

"As a writer of great vigor, grasp of imagination and thrilling power Mrs. Stephens is preeminent among American novelists. She always interests intensely, and in her present volume chains the attention of the reader from beginning to end." [Home Gazette.

"The hero of the tale is an aged father, a meek and humble Christian, who never murmers though misfortune has overtaken him in consequence of the sins of others. He is what Mrs. Browning calls 'God satisfied and earth undone,' and childlike faith is the brighter when fate lowers most darkly around him. The genuine simplicity which pervades this character, and the delicate touches by which it is portrayed, add to the effect. The work will leave a deep impression on the reader's mind, for the moral is a pure and healthy one." [N. Y. Evangelist.

HISTORY OF CUBA; ITS PAST AND PRESENT. Giving a Political, Historical and Statistical Account of the Island from its first discovery to the present day. By Matmin M. Ballou. To be comprised in one volume duodecimo, finely illustrated with Engravings from Original Drawings taken on the Island. In depicting the manners, customs, peculiarities, products and local characteristics of the Island of Cuba, the author has been guided by personal observations, aided by copious notes taken on the spot and among the people he describes. The work is fresh in its character, and brings the history of the Island up to the present hour, showing in a clear, impartial light its great wealth and political importance, the extraordinary oppression and taxation under which it has suffered, the beauty and fertility of its soil, and the glory of its fruits and flowers, with a statistical record of its staple productions, and a history of its slave trade and slave population.

"Mr. Ballou was for some time a resident of Cuba, and has been a careful student in the history of the Island." [Saturday Evening Gazette.

"We know of no one more capable of furnishing a useful and readable volume of the kind than Mr. Ballou." [Boston Post.

"Mr. Ballou spent several months upon the Island, and with his habits of study and reflection, must have obtained copious materials, which he is well qualified to convert into an interesting and valuable work." [Boston Journal.

IN PRESS.—LIVES OF THE CHIEF JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES. 2 vols. 8vo.
This work, prepared from authentic sources, and containing considerable matter hitherto unpublished, embraces the most interesting period in American History. The men whose lives it will contain were conspicuously connected with the Revolutionary contest, with the formation of the Constitution, with the organization of the Government, with our early negotiations with foreign powers, and, in fact, with the general political movements of their eventful times. Nor were they less honorably connected with our jurisprudence. During their official terms were adjudicated those great questions of public and constitutional law which gave so much distinction to the tribunal over which they presided, and have since served as landmarks to guide our legislation and diplomacy.
The first volume, containing the lives of John Jay, John Rutledge and William Cushing, will be published at the earliest moment, by LIPPINCOTT, GRAMBO & Co., Philadelphia.

OPINIONS OF THE LEADING JOURNALS.
From The Eclectic Review.

"One of the clearest and most elegant narratives of modern times. Since the publication of Mr. Macaulay's History, no work has appeared in Europe at once so able and so valuable. Mr. Weiss, the accomplished French Professor, needs no commendation from us. He is highly ranked among the illustrious historians of France, as profound and elegant as Voltaire, without the contamination of his infidelity."

From The Edinburgh Review.

"We hail the appearance of Mr. Weiss's book with pleasure. It has merits which give it a real value. His work is simply written, clearly divided, and conceived and executed in a laudable spirit of impartiality."

From Blackwood's Magazine.

"It is a valuable addition to the political and religious history of an important period, and as such it will be prized by future historians. It will become a favorite companion to D'Aubigne's History of the Reformation."

From The New-York Quarterly Review.

"A production of equal interest and value to the student of history and to the general reader. It fills an important place in the colonial history of this country."

From Putnam's Magazine.

"One of the most acceptable additions made to our current literature. The History has already become famous in Europe."

From Harper's Magazine.

"One of the most valuable historical monographs which we have received from Continental literature. It is written in a style at once forcible, elegant and picturesque."

From The National Magazine.

THE NEW-YORK TRIBUNE—WEEKLY ENLARGED.—On the 11th of April, 1853, THE DAILY TRIBUNE, having completed its twelfth year, was enlarged more than one-fourth, or to the size of The London Times, making it considerably larger than any other cheap Daily published in this country, or in the world. No change in price was made in consequence of this Enlargement—the paper being still afforded to Mail Subscribers at at $5 per annum; delivered by carriers at $6 per annum in the city and the adjacent cities at 12½ cents per week, and sold to those Carriers and to Agents ordering it by Express or Mail, for distant sale, at $4 50 for one hundred copies, or $45 per thousand copies, payable in advance. At these prices, our aggregate receipts for our entire Daily edition, do not exceed the sums we pay for paper and ink—having all other expenses to be defrayed from our receipts for Advertising. In other words, we return to each purchaser of our paper from us, his money's worth in the naked sheet we send him, looking for the reward of our own labor and the heavy expenses of Telegraphing, Correspondence, Reporting, Composition, Printing, Mailing, Book-keeping, Rent, &c., to our Advertisers alone. We do not think it now possible to cheapen newspapers beyond this point; if it ever shall be hereafter, we intend to be even with the foremost in demonstrating the fact.

Our SEMI-WEEKLY, EUROPEAN and CALIFORNIA editions were enlarged simultaneously and equally with the Daily, and also without any increase of price. We respectfully solicit a comparison of our Semi-Weekly at $3 per annum, (two copies sent a full year for $5, and five copies for $11 25,) with any $4 or $5 Semi-Weekly, and will cheerfully send copies for this purpose upon direct or postpaid application.

THE NEW-YORK WEEKLY TRIBUNE entered on its thirteenth year on the 3d of September, when it was in like manner enlarged to the size of the Semi-Weekly and Daily, adding more than one-fourth to its capacity—also without increase of price. This enlargement adds at least $20,000 per annum to our expenses, in addition to the previous cost of our Daily enlargement already effected.

THE TRIBUNE has not now its character to make or to proclaim. It has long been established and never can be a mere party organ. It has supported the Whig party because the distinctive principles of that party appeared to favor the great ends which it has labored to subserve; it never advocated a measure because it was proposed or sustained by the Whig party. It holds itself at all times free to condemn unsound principles, unwise measures or corrupt acts, should the two former be promoted or the latter perpetrated by Whigs as promptly as they are emanated from the hostile camp. In so far as Peace, Liberty, Education, Temperance, Internal Improvement, and Industrial Development may be subserved by acting with the Whig party, it must continue to be, as it has been, Whig.

Though never acting with any Abolition or other one-idea party THE TRIBUNE is and must be the relentless foe of Human Slavery, as of whatever else tends to degrade Labor and obstruct the intellectual and social development of any portion of mankind. Were it able to perceive that a vote in New-York could abolish Slavery in Carolina, it might attach itself to some one of the expressly Anti-Slavery parties; lacking that light, it declines to abandon the substance for the shadow of political good. But, while it does not see its way clear to any effective Political action against Slavery in the States which now cherish it, it regards the defeat of whatever effort to extend the giant wrong under the Flag of our Union, or to obstruct by its power the progress of Abolition in other lands as among the most urgent and sacred of public duties, not to be subordinated to any party consideration whatever. And, while it does not propose to make Anti-Slavery the basis of Political action, other than defensive, it will neglect no opportunity, remit no effort, so to diffuse Light and Truth as to render the continuance of Slavery impossible in a land irradiated by the sun of Christianity and boasting itself the great exemplar of Political Justice and law guarded Freedom.

For Temperance in all things, but especially the disease of Intoxicating Beverages and the legal suppression of the Liquor Traffic, we shall struggle, as we have struggled, unthinkingly and unfaltering. We regard the Maine law as one of the most beneficent statute of our day, and confidently hope to see it soon prevail universally.

The Congressional Reports and Washington Correspondence will, as heretofore, be both reliable and satisfactory.

The Markets for Grain, Cattle, Cotton and other products of the country, will receive proper attention and be reliably reported in THE TRIBUNE.

Our Foreign Correspondence with the most important points throughout the world we need not here dilate. Briefly—we shall spare no expense to keep our readers well advised on every subject of interest, and doubt not that the same generous measure of patronage hitherto accorded to us will continue to repay all our exertions.

We rarely employ Traveling Agents, as so many impostors are habitually prowling in the assumed dignity of solicitors for journals. We prefer that our subscribers shall pay their money to persons they know and of whose integrity they are assured. Any friend who believes he will do good by increasing the circulation of the THE TRIBUNE is authorized to solicit and receive subscriptions, and, on due proof that money has been mailed and post paid to our address, we take the responsibility of itself to transmit. Specimen Copies will promptly be sent without charge to those requiring them, and we trust many friends will be moved to ask their neighbors and acquaintances to join in making up a Club to commence with the new year.

A limited amount of space in THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE will be appropriated to Advertising.

TERMS OF THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

Single copy, one year	$2 00
Three copies, one year	5 00
Five copies, one year	8 00
Ten copies, one year	12 00

The extremely low price at which THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE is now furnished to Clubs subscribers, absolutely precludes our allowing any commissions either in money or by an extra paper.

Subscriptions may commence at any time. Payment in advance is required in all cases, and the paper is invariably discontinued at the expiration of the advance payment.

THE WEEKLY TRIBUNE is furnished to clergymen at $1 per annum. Money may be remitted for subscriptions in letters at our risk; but the Postmaster at the place where the letter is mailed should be made acquainted with its contents and keep a description of the bills.

Bills of any specie-paying bank in the United States or Canadas received at par for subscriptions.

We have no Traveling Agents. Any one wishing to receive THE TRIBUNE need not wait to be called on for his subscription. All that is necessary for him to do is to write a letter in as few words as possible, inclose the money and write the name of the subscriber, with the Post-Office, County and State, and direct the letter to GREELEY & McELRATH, Tribune Office, New-York.
