Wednesday, Nov. 9, 1881.

THE MOBILITY OF CHILDHOOD prompted a Mobile boy to put a fire cracker in his father's hat, and now the old man is bald. What is the matter with the boy is not stated.

CONNECTICUT FOLKS have been long credited with knowing the time of day, and now they prove it by showing that the grand clock at Yale has a daily error of thirty-six one-hundreths of one second.

WILLIAM PENN, with a last name of Smith, has attempted highway robbery near Philadelphia. He was not the figure for the part, and feels convinced of it now as he lies in the hospital too much hurt to go to jail.

WHEN HE WANTED to enjoy himself and have some real fun, the late Baron Haymerle always amused himself by putting a German poem into Arabic. Strange to say, he left his family in decidedly moderate circumstances.

AS WHERE there is much smoke there is generally some fire, it should be noticed that the Canadian journals reek with frequent allusions to that future day on which the Dominion will be separated from the mother country.

A LITTLE VARIETY is always pleasant. It is presented in the case of Mr. Fince, a "society man" of Chicago, who has sued Miss Frengel, of Indianapolis, for breach of promise, claiming $10,000 damages. The other way was getting slightly monotonous.

THE Atlanta Constitution felt called upon conscientiously to oppose the proposed "Georgia Colonel's Day" at the exposition, for the sole reason that the arrangements were not adequate to the entertainment of the entire male population of that sovereign State simultaneously.

"FINGERS were made before forks," will be the next illuminated motto to adorn the dining-halls of the æsthetics. The lettering must be "Olde Englishe," the banquet is to be Gothic, and the guests will eat out of wooden bowls, without spoons, unless horn ones can be provided.

IN PRIMITIVE TIMES rewards offered for wolf skins served to clear a country of those obnoxious varmints, but in the progressive stage of society now existing the thing won't work. The French government has withdrawn the rewards in the belief that the animals are bred for sale, and Wisconsin is thinking about following the example.

THE Bulletin du Canal Interoceanic of Paris, understood as expressing the opinions of M. de Lesseps, asserts that the interests of the United States have been amply provided for in the concession made by Colombia to the Panama Canal Company. It adds in most polite terms that it is entirely unnecessary for us to bother ourselves any more about the matter.

ERASIBLE DIARIES are no longer considered the thing by the ladies of Montreal. Two lovers of that city, upon fixing the day for their marriage, entered the date in her diary so that they should not forget it. As less his ardor grew, the lover contrived to get possession of the diary and put the date a month ahead. It is stated that he did this clever trick twice, and that upon the second occasion his lady-love caught him at it, and has applied to the courts to give him a short day.

THE Pioneer Press of St. Paul prints a communication from La Crosse as follows: The train arriving at La Crosse from Chicago brought in twenty sacks of Minnesota mail undistributed, most of which was sent back toward Chicago to be worked on the next train bound west, there not being men enough on the river train. It is time that arrangements were made so that Minnesota could receive her mail without a delay of ten or twelve hours.

This is another sample of reduction and reform. Before the great Thomas L. James has closed his contract to purify mails and things, we expect the entire business of the Department will be done by a few old women and boys.

OUT IN CALIFORNIA they have rather a dangerous winter job on hand. According to the Post of San Francisco, "the State is now threatened with a return wave of small-pox contagion from the East. It will be recollected that our local board of health, more than once, released immigrants from quarantine who were going East, keeping the crews of the vessels by which they arrived and the Chinese passengers in close quarantine. The Post protested against this at the time. Now, according to the State board of health, this epidemic is being introduced by immigrants from Chicago, and the disease has spread through several of the valley counties, and is also in San Francisco. The prospect for the winter is not, therefore, a pleasant one, unless Chinese immigration stops. The ill-fed Chinese immigrant, who lands in a low physical condition, is a source of contagion in street cars and on public thoroughfares, which can only be got rid of by forbidding him to come here at all. Disease imported from Eastern cities can be more easily handled. A thorough inspection of immigrant trains should be instituted. By this means the introduction of fresh cases may be prevented."

The Old Man Blesses You.

Boston Courier.

It was at a theatre not far from Boston that the following incident, which does not speak well for the intelligence of an average audience, occurred: A modern comedy had well-nigh reached its conclusion when the demon of mischief seized hold of an actor not included in the cast. On the impulse of the moment he took from his wardrobe a palmer's dress which he had worn the night before in "Romeo and Juliet," and drawing the hood well over his face walked upon the stage where a group of characters in modern costume were drawn up in line speaking the "tag." Without ceremony he stood in their midst, and just as the curtain was descending spread out his hands and said: "The old man blesses you." The spectators did not notice any incongruity, and evidently went home with the idea that the "old man" was an important part of the play.

Why He Pays the Bills.

Clara Belle in Cincinnati Enquirer.

There is no use in letting your love blind you to the undeniable fact that every girl of cultured tastes wishes to gratify them; so, if you take one of these delicate, refined, sensible creatures for a wife, you must couch her on brocade or your marriage bed will not be downy with her happiness. Not only are these exquisite birds desirous of fine plumage, but some of them are hindered from flying away by nothing else. I know a worshipful husband whose beautiful young wife wouldn't roost in his cage a year if he didn't provide her with just the kind of feathers her high-held head demanded. He knows it, too, and scratches gravel right lively to satisfy her dress exactions. He is miserable now, but thinks he would be more so if she should flit. He reminds me of the man who, having inadvertently sat down on the only outlet of a hornet's nest, resolutely staid there for hours, preferring to endure the sting in a circumscribed area rather than be stung all over.

The Mortal Coil.

An Italian professor has just issued a volume on suicides, from which it appears that Calabria stands lowest in the scale of those who are weary of breath. Norway stands third, and Ireland fourth. England and America are very high, and the recklessness and misery which make life insupportable reach the maximum in the centre of Europe, from Geneva to Paris, and through Saxony, Baden, Prussia and the Austro-Hungarian provinces. The small German states are the very highest. Suicide has increased everywhere for the last forty years, even in Ireland, where the figure is so low; from ten in the million to eighteen in the million of population, while England and America have mounted from 62 to 68, Prussia from 74 to 142, France from 54 to 150, and Saxony rushes on with an average of 264. Childless widowers are by far the largest number on the sorrowful list.

Gladstone in Debate.

When Gladstone rises to speak he clasps his hands behind his back. This attitude prevails, however, only during the opening sentences. Once warmed up, his gestures are rapid—almost furious. When addressing the House of Commons, he will take the brass-bound box on the table as representative of "the right honorable gentleman," or "the noble lord" opposite, and beat it violently with his right hand. Or, standing with his heels closely pressed together, and feet spread fan-wise, so that he may turn as on a pivot to watch the effect of his speech, he will assume that the palm of his left hand is his adversary of the moment, and straightway he beats upon it with his right hand with the utmost ferocity.

Inconvenient Affections.

Texas Siftings.

"I hear, Sam, you are gwine ter lead ter de altar one of Austin's fairest daughters. Am dat de fac?" "Uncle Mose, hit am de fac dat I have been paying my distresses ter de lubly and accomplished Miss Matildy Flapjack, but de tender relation what has desisted between us ahl severed forebber, sah." "Did she kick yer, Sammy, or did she only set the dog on yer?" "No, sah; she lubs me yit, and she wanted me ter call on her twice a day, sah, but she libs next door to de cullud lady who hat a wash bill agin me, so I jess made up my mind to transfer my defections to some udder lady what am like Waco, sah, more favorably located."

The Yankee Invasion.

Vicksburg Herald.

It has come to pass in this good year of our Lord that the Yankees are again invading the South. About twenty years ago they came with fire and sword, but now they come to invest their money in factories, railroads, plantations, patent medicines, faro banks and other banks. Your real live Yank is ready to put money in anything, or work at anything that will yield money. He has a lasting longing for the root of all evil that urges him forward forever. Just as soon as he gets one railroad he wants another; and when he gets two he wants a system of roads that will tap vast sections of country. If he can't do all this alone, he will "go in" with others and form a syndicate.

Rough on Steve.

Terre Haute Express.

A very laughable occurrence was witnessed at the Union depot last night. When the train from the South stopped a lady alighted, and seeing a gentleman standing by whom she supposed to be her husband she ran toward him and throwing her arms about his neck showered kisses upon him. The gentleman made no objection, but when she ceased her osculations a gentleman standing near by remarked: "Well, Laura, haven't you made a mistake?" Laura turned to him in astonishment, and flying into his arms buried her blushing face on his shoulder, saying, "Lord bless me, Steve, I thought it was you! Why did you not speak?"

Why Southern Cotton Factories Prosper.

Rochester Morning Herald.

It is stated that the cost of placing a year's cotton crop in the New England market is $108,000,000, of which over $50,000,000 is paid for freight and insurance. Is it any wonder that Southern cotton factories are prosperous, when by working up the product of their fields at even less cost than it can be done in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and selling their cloth at their doors, they can save more than one-half of the total expense mentioned above or say, $50,000?

A Liberal Old Lady.

Boston Courier.

A mild-looking little old lady, with a certain faint suburban air about her, entered one of the offices at the City Hall last week, and with great deliberation proceeded to count out a pile of bills upon the ledge of the cashier's window. "For the preservation fund," she pronounced, succinctly, in answer to his look of inquiry. "Preservation fund?" he echoed; "preservation of what?" "Oh I don't much mind," she returned, placidly, "there's always something being preserved in Boston, and I want to be able to read the papers without feeling as if I hadn't done my part."

Senatorial Humor.

Atlanta Constitution.

"Edmunds is old," says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, "but he likes his joke." And is this really the new Republican name for a slug of Robinson County sandwiched between two schooners of beer? If it is, we must reluctantly admit that there is considerable humor in a joke.
