Says The N. Y. Independent: "This work comprises the fullest and most complete account yet published of the life of this extraordinary man, and, by its plain and irrefragable facts, forestalls and silences the whole immense brood of malignant slanders with which the Pro-Slavery party are endeavoring to fill the public mind." Says The National Era (Washington, D. C.): "We refer to Mr. Bigelow's work, not to disparage the labors of others on the same subject, but because it is prepared with excellent judgment by an intimate friend of Fremont, and is the only biography which contains an adequate account, not only of the public services, but of the private life and character of our candidate. It is, therefore, a volume which no Republican should fail to possess. It will not only prove an efficient weapon in the present campaign, but a spirited narrative, worthy of permanent preservation as one of the brilliant chapters in our country's history. FRIENDS, THEREFORE, ARM YOURSELVES WITH BIGELOW'S LIFE OF FREMONT." DERBY & JACKSON, Publishers, New-York. THE LIFE OF MARY JEMISON, THE WHITE INDIAN WOMAN OF THE GENESEE. By James E. Seaver, esq. 312 pages, illustrated. Price $1. The subject of this remarkable narrative was taken captive by a band of Shawnees at the age of 15 years. She subsequently became the wife of an Indian chief, and the mother of a large family of Indian children. She lost her civilized habits, and resided with her adopted nation for seventy-eight years, always, however, retaining and manifesting a constant friendship for the whites. She was granted a reservation of 19,000 acres of the richest lands in the world, lying in the western part of the State of New-York. Yet she did not tempt her to abandon her adopted race or habits, to which she pertinaciously adhered. The narrative was taken by the author from her own lips, and is at once authentic, interesting and instructive.
