Communication.—The undersigned has advised, from time to time, the readers of this and other journals, that malignant and formidable cases of Catarrh were curable by means of local applications of proper remedies. The assertion has been made by the writer that this disease has been singularly overlooked and misconceived by medical men past and present. To this fact, and the entire failure of the profession in mitigating or removing the difficulty, may be attributed the universal opinion which prevails of its incurability. The undersigned has advanced and maintained a theory of Catarrh entirely new to the faculty, and differing from any former writer. Upon it he has based a treatment and the exhibition of remedial agents, which fully verifies the correctness of his position, and warrants him in saying unequivocally that this disease, in its aggravated as well as milder types, is within the reach of remedial aid and curable. Catarrh has its origin in the "pituitary" gland, and not in the nasal cavities or membranes, nor "posterior nares," nor yet in the throat passages. The nasal passages, membranes and throat, are implicated, and more or less seriously affected in all cases of Catarrh, but the producing cause of all these difficulties is not with these organs, but has its seat elsewhere, in the gland above spoken of, which, taxing on morbid or diseased action, pours out a highly acrimonious and vitiated secretion. It collects in the frontal sinuses, posterior nares, upon the membranes of the throat and nostrils, often becomes thick and inspissated and difficult to dislodge. Its presence in the cavities of the frontal bone creates a dull, oppressive feeling in the head, and a pressure upon the eye-balls, obstructing the nasal passages, and producing in the throat, by a gradual and almost imperceptible discharge into it, soreness, irritation, elongated palate, bronchitis, and a troublesome cough, which not unfrequently ends in consumption. In time, mental enervation results, and physical as well as mental languor oppresses the subject; unusual noises are heard in the ears; the senses of smell, sight, taste and hearing become impaired, and sometimes totally destroyed.

For all these difficulties physicians have prescribed in vain and have been completely baffled in removing the disease. Until it can be shown that the end in medical science has been reached, that no further application of remedial aid to the removal of disease can be successfully made, or that the human organism in this particular difficulty is such that proper remedies cannot reach it, the writer will unhesitatingly claim that Catarrh can be cured.

An experience of several years in the investigation and treatment of this specialty has led him to the exhibition of remedies locally, which warrants him in saying, in unqualified terms, that it is within the reach of aid.

This article is not addressed to those who swear by traditional or written practice, nor to those who believe in titillating snuffs, but to that wise class who, availing themselves of whatever is proved useful, do not hesitate to make a practical application of their wisdom. R. GOODALE, M. D.,
No. 3 Bond-st., New-York.

Cured of Consumption
When pronounced incurable.
Mrs. Palmer, Meserole and Sheets, Green Point; Mrs. Smith, No. 637 6th-av.; Samuel Bruen, No. 311 Delancey, and Mrs. Hunt,
CURED OF RAISING BLOOD.
Mr. Thomas had spells of which he raised a Pint of Blood in ten minutes, residence No. 1 Horatio-st.
ULCERATED THROAT.

Office, No. 264 Grand, near Eldridge-st.

A Dinner for the Poor.—THE HOUSE OF INDUSTRY, established by L. M. Pease in 1851, at the Five Points in this city, of which he is now the General Agent, has been for seven years past feeding and clothing the poor children of that locality, and at the present time is giving between 4,000 and 5,000 meals per week to the special objects of its care. Any day in the week may be seen nearly three hundred at the dinner table of the House. It is now proposed, according to the custom of the institution, to give an extra feast on Thanksgiving Day to the children of the family and schools connected with the establishment. The benevolent and all interested in the mission work in this locality are invited to participate in the exercises of the occasion. Addresses by the Rev. T. L. Cuyler, Judge Hoxie, L. M. Pease and others, together with music by the children, will make it a happy day at the House. Friends of the institution who have provisions, clothing or any other article which they are disposed to give in aid of this object, are requested to send them addressed either to B. R. Barlow or L. M. Pease, House of Industry, Nos. 155, 157 and 159 Worth street, as there are two Mission Houses at the Five Points. Or, if our friends will send their names to us we will send an agent for their donations. B. R. BARLOW.

A Reporter desires a situation, as VERBATIM or ABSTRACT. Address T. J. MACREY, No. 528 Greenwich-st., New-York.

THE MORMON BIBLE.
1 vol., 12mo., 400 pages. Cloth. Price $1 25.
From The New-York Sun.
"The Mormon Bible itself, separate from the peculiar interest which attaches to it on account of the important part which it has performed, and is now performing, in the history of the present century, will be found interesting to most readers for its terse language, original ideas, and the many moral lessons inculcated by its pages. It is the duty, as it should be the pleasure, of every intelligent American citizen to be thoroughly acquainted with all the incidents of his time, and none can fairly claim to be so on the Mormon question, without a careful perusal of the so-called Bible, and its auxiliary circumstances."
Copies sent by mail post-paid, on receipt of the price.
Book Agents in the country will find this one of the most saleable books ever issued.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS.
NEW PUBLICATIONS
READY THIS WEEK,
D. APPLETON & Co., Nos. 346 and 348 BROADWAY.
ON MONDAY:
THE BOY'S BOOK OF INDUSTRIAL INFORMATION. By Elisha Noyes. Illustrated with 300 Engravings, drawn from the objects. 1 vol. 16mo. $1 50.
"In putting this work before the public the author has endeavored to supply a clear and brief description of the material processes, and apparatus made use of in the various examples of industry and skill constantly before our eyes, so that the reader may acquire a knowledge of such things, and an interest in those, who, by their hard labor and patient ingenuity, supply them; for every article and process can be made to have a value and an interest, in proportion to the amount of knowledge we possess respecting them." [Extract from Preface.
ON TUESDAY:
BERTRAND NOEL; A STORY FOR YOUTH. By E. J. May, Author of "Louie's School Days," "Sunshine of Greystone," 1 vol. 12mo. With illustrations. Price 75 cents.
The story of Bertrand Noel is one of those which the parent can with safety place in the hands of a boy or girl, from eight to twelve years of age. The same lessons of right and truth are inculcated which have rendered the author's previous productions sought for.
ON WEDNESDAY:
FAVORITE POEMS OF THE TWO LAST CENTURIES. ILLUSTRATED WITH UPWARDS OF 200 ENGRAVINGS ON WOOD, FROM DRAWINGS BY DIRECT, FOSTER, CRESWICK, and other Eminent Artists. 1 vol. 8vo. Printed on tinted paper. Cloth antique, $6. Morocco antique, $9.
The poems which are included in this volume, have all of them long since received the stamp of public approbation. Enriched with drawings by the first artists of the day, they are now offered together, a treasury of poetic wealth.

MISS BREMER'S LAST WORK.
Will be Published Next Wednesday:
THE FOUR SISTERS.
A TALE OF SOCIAL AND DOMESTIC LIFE IN SWEDEN.
By FREDRIKA BREMER,
Author of "The Neighbors," "Nina," "The H——
Family," &c.
Translated by MARY HOWITT.
Complete in one large volume, neatly bound in cloth, for $1 25, or two volumes, paper cover, for $1.
Miss Bremer possesses, beyond any other living writer of her class, the power of realizing to the imagination every individual she introduces. The moral beauty and womanly purity which steadily illuminate her narrative must receive implicit admiration from all persons. We would advise all to buy and read this book.
Copies of either edition of the above work will be sent to any person in any part of the United States, free of postage, on their remitting the price of the edition they may wish to the publishers in a letter. Address all orders to
