Five Points House of Industry.
A CARD.
We are frequently called to account in the following manner: Some one calls at the Institution and says, "We sent you, Sir, a donation of provisions (or money) on such a day, but you did not acknowledge it."
Our explanation in most cases is this: There are two Mission Houses at the Five Points; our building is called House of Industry (Mr. PEASE's), the other building is called Five Points Mission (Methodist). If our friends about to send us a contribution should direct it to "Five Points Mission, N. Y.," it would not reach Mr. PEASE's institution, but would go to the Methodist institution, and of course we could not acknowledge the receipt of it, as the two houses have no connection. Donations intended for us should be directed, "L. M. PEASE, or B. R. BARLOW, House of Industry, N. Y." Grateful for the liberality of our friends, we feel bound in justice to them and to ourselves to make this statement.
B. R. BARLOW, Superintendent.
L. M. PEASE, General Agent.

Illustrated. Price 50 cents.
"Hardly a dozen such books as this appear in as many years. It is not a work to be described, commended, or criticised other than by a couple of words of advice—read it. It is a book you should judge for yourself. Read only a dozen pages and you are sure eagerly to go on—for you find yourself among real people, getting interested about them, affected by what affects them, and as curious to know what will come of it all as if it were an affair of your own."—Athenæum.

FIFTH THOUSAND NOW READY.
D. APPLETON & Co., Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway, have Now Ready
THE FIFTH THOUSAND
OF
THE BANKS OF NEW-YORK;
THEIR DEALERS; THE CLEARING-HOUSE; AND THE PANIC OF 1857
WITH A FINANCIAL CHART.
BY J. S. GIBBONS.
With 30 Illustrations, by Herrick. 1 vol., 12mo. 460 pages. Cloth. $1 50.
A book for every man of business; for the bank officer and clerk; for the bank stockholder and depositor; and especially for the merchant and his cash manager: also for the lawyer, who will here find the exact responsibilities that exist between the different officers of banks and the clerks, and between them and the dealers. All who have dealings with banks will save many times the price of this volume, by the practical instruction which it gives relative to the details of the business. They will learn how to transact their banking affairs most advantageously, and be enlightened as to the various reasons why their bills receivable are rejected by the Discount Board. Every man will see here set forth his own experience in the various conditions of the money market, and learn precisely now to act in order to maintain a good credit with his bank.
The operations of the Clearing-House are described in detail, and illustrated by a Financial Chart, which exhibits in an interesting manner the fluctuations of the bank loans.
The immediate and exact cause of the panic of 1857 is clearly demonstrated by the records of the Clearing-House, and a scale is presented by which the deviation of the volume of bank loans from an average standard of safety can be ascertained at a single glance.
Letter from Gen. D. Lyman, Manager of the Clearing-House.
NEW-YORK, Nov. 29, 1858.
Messrs. D. APPLETON & Co.
Gentlemen: I beg leave to acknowledge the receipt of the sheets of a work about to be published by your house, entitled "The Banks of New-York; Their Dealers; The Clearing-House; and The Panic of 1857," by J. S. Gibbons. I have read them with much interest, and take pleasure in saying that Mr. Gibbons has succeeded admirably in giving a faithful and very interesting description of the internal division of labor and of the methods of transacting business, both inside and outside of the counters of the banks of this city.
His description of the New-York Clearing-House, its daily routine of business, its books and forms, is accurate and full, and conveys a better idea of the institution than any description that has yet been published.
Respectfully yours, GEORGE D. LYMAN.
From the Cashier of the Bank of Albany, established in 1792.
I have to thank you for a copy of a book entitled The Banks of New-York and the Panic of 1857.
I have read the book with a like pleasure and profit, and in the hands of Bankers it will be appreciated for its real practical value. It is a fund of invaluable information which is in my mind, imparted in the most pleasing manner. When I took up the book I did not drop it until I reached the last page. I find it has produced the same effect on others of my profession. It should have a wider circulation, and I shall endeavor to aid in effecting that end. Your ob't serv't, E. E. KENDRICK.

"I am very far from disliking philosophical speculation, or daring flights of fancy, on this high subject. On the contrary, it appears to me strange that any one firmly holding the belief of a life to come, should not have both the intellectual faculty and the imagination excited to the utmost in the trial, however unavailing, to give some outlines of definite form to the unseen reality."—[From Essays of John Foster.]

A BOOK of STARTLING THOUGH PLEASING INTEREST.
FUTURE LIFE;
Or,
SCENES IN ANOTHER WORLD.
By GEORGE WOOD, author of "Peter Shenstill in America;" Modern Pilgrims, &c.
One neat 12 mo., price $1 25.
Commendations from influential papers:
"We have not, for many a day, read a volume so beautiful in imagery, so pure, and so encouraging aspirations, so high and hopeful as the one bearing the above title. The style of the volume is very strange; and the manner in which the writer treats the future state of man, and the scenes in another world, although I may not confirm with the views of many persons still it is beautiful, showing, in this presentation of the writer's imagination, the activity of the heavenly existence, the attainment of one degree to another of heavenly knowledge, and a continual development of heavenly intellect, and a growing comprehension of the ever revealing Beauty and Art, and unalloyed happiness of that beautiful region we all love to contemplate and indulge hopes for an everlasting habitation."—[Buffalo Christian Advocate.

"Under a pleasing and attractive form the author has grouped together for popular perusal, a great mass of information, which he accompanies with much sensible and just remark. The moral tone of the work is unexceptionable, and the author does not belie the orthodox profession of his preface."—[New-York Evangelist.

"The boldness and beauty of the conception on which this book is constructed, command the reader's admiration, and the splendor of the diction, the elevation of the sentiment, and the purity of the style are worthy of a master of rhetoric, as well as Christian scholar.

"At first blush the pious mind is startled by the attempt to bring the earthly and heavenly into such associations, as are here presented; but the general view of the author is in harmony with the scriptural teachings and is supported by the opinions of many great and good men. His aim is to awaken in his readers new aspirations of hope and a joyous looking for the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ."—[N. Y. Observer.

"There is something so deep in his religious thinking, so vigorous in his analysis of false doctrine, so striking in his presentation of reflective truths and ideas that are born in the depths of his own soul, that the person who takes up one of his works, prepared to read into and understand the author, is certain to leave it with delight and satisfaction. This is one of the very few books of this age of trash that will live, and exert an influence; and its effect upon the intelligence of its readers will be one of good, forever."—[Troy Daily Times.

"Strange and daring as it may seem, it is none other than a novel founded on heaven—an attempt to portray the life beyond the grave in the customary show of this earth. The work has a strange fascination about it that will enlist many more readers than those who approve either its plot or portrayal. Indeed, we all have our notions of the hereafter drawn from the sensuous experiences of this world. This we believe is true from Bunyan, who described "the shining city" to Jeremy Taylor's poor widow, who thought that heaven "was a place of rest, where she should sit in a clean white apron and sing psalms." Shall we then condemn unheard this new and weird author, who would write forth in symbols of our daily life his imagings of the Upper World? Or shall we rather say with Pollok:

"The song
Of heaven is ever new; for daily, thus,
And nightly new discoveries are made
Of God's unbounded wisdom, power and love,
Which give the understanding larger room,
And swell the hymn with ever-growing praise."
[St. Louis Daily Democrat.

"The whole tone and atmosphere of the book are buoyant and joyous. Every page evinces not only an eye and ear for beauty, but a large hearted sympathy with life in all its developments. A liberal spirit pervades the work, yet it is not erratic. The writer, seizing the prominent points of the early and the later Christian ages, accepts the good and rejects the evil in both, with a discrimination as rare as it is judicious. Striking out boldly, attempting 'things unattempted yet in prose,' he does not hesitate to fortify himself with names so great that the world will hardly dare gainsay."—[National Era (D. C.).

WHILE IT WAS MORNING.
By VIRGINIA F. TOWNSEND,
Editor of "Arthur's Home Magazine."
One neat 12mo. Price $1.
SOME OF THE GOOD THINGS SAID OF IT.
"Replete with Interest, Morality and Beauty."
[Buffalo Christian Advocate.

"This is an exceedingly interesting and well-written story of common American life; the scene is laid in New-England and New-York, the names have a familiar sound, the incidents are natural and the characters such as we meet in our daily walks. We have rarely met a more thoroughly domestic story; it is very much in the style of Miss Austin's novels, pure and sweet in its morals, and kindly and gentle in its lessons."
[N. Y. Daily Times.

"That righteousness should be the object, truth the guide, and eternity the motive force of life, is the grand moral of this instructive portraiture of character. The pen which can produce a story like this, cannot fail to minister pleasure and profit to the public."—[N. Y. Christian Intelligencer.

"This is a rare and beautiful story—a story of trial and endurance, and final triumph. The pathos and beauty of its incidents cannot fail to charm the reader, while it has pure and blessed teachings for all lives."—[Godey's Lady's Book.

"The authoress is capable of moving the heart-strings by rare touches of nature, which indicate the possession of more than ordinary talent. We can safely recommend a book which breathes throughout so healthy a tone, and exhibits so many beauties of one kind and description."—[Boston Post.

MATHEW CARABY.
A NARRATIVE OF HIS ADVENTURES AMONG FRIENDS AND STRANGERS IN COUNTRY AND IN TOWN.
BY BERANLY.
From a multitude of favorable notices, by the Press, of this entertaining volume, we select the following:
"A capital story. Old stagers as we are in novel-reading, we confess we did not see through the plot till the author chose to unravel it. The characters are natural and well sustained, and there is a vein of quiet humor running through the book which is very refreshing."—[N. Y. Ladies' Visitor.
"Graphically told and deeply interesting; the more so, as there is no unduly exaggeration of sentiment and language."—[N. Y. Express.
"The characters are well drawn, the touches of nature pointed and salient, and the story exceedingly cleverly told. The interest, like a mission of the law, seizes you by the collar at the outset in such an unmistakable manner that you are satisfied the better way is to go quietly along."—[N. Y. Enquirer.
"There are powerful and truthful passages, and the the colloquial parts are easy and natural—no small praise."—[N. Y. Chronicle.
"The story is well-conceived and told with skill, making withal a very pleasant book.....There is vigor in the work."—[Boston Recorder.
"Whoever commences Caraby, will be likely to complete it, and may learn lessons of profit."—[Congregationalist.
"A readable book, superior to most American novels in interest and character."—[Boston Post.
"The tone of this book is thoroughly healthful, and its moral, which is not thrust forward too prominently, is therefore good."—[Boston Journal.
"Replete with incident, some of it of quite a dramatic character. The author's style is worthy of praise, and the tone of his story is pure."—[Sat. Ev. Gazette.
"It is a sad picture, and will perhaps deepen the reader's sympathy with the poor and oppressed, while it will teach him how selfish and cruel human nature may become when unchecked by the power of its vine grace."—[Cincinnati Herald.
"If less exciting than many works of fiction, its impressions will, on that account, be the more lasting."—[Church Gazette.
"One becomes too much interested in the first chapter to lay it aside till it is finished. May Matthew Caraby find many readers."—[Worcester Palladium.
