Many New Homes are Built in St. Helens

RESIDENCE OF CHARLES PHILLIPS

The attractive residence of Charles Phillips is located on "Nob Hill." Mr. Phillips is assistant auditor of the St. Helens Lumber Company and a firm believer in the good future of St. Helens.

RESIDENCE OF H. A. CHILDS

Probably no one is in better position to judge of real estate values and general business conditions than is a bank cashier. Mr. Childs, the cashier of the First National Bank, soon after coming to St. Helens, bought the attractive bungalow shown in the above picture.

RESIDENCE OF JOE HAND

Mr. Hand is another one of the newcomers to St. Helens who believes in the future of the city. He backed up his judgment by purchasing the modern dwelling shown above.

Building Permits for 1918 Total Almost $100,000

There are few people in St. Helens who realize the great progress of the "Home Building Idea" in this city.

It has been aptly and truthfully said that the "home building" in any town is evidence of what the town really amounts to and the faith of the property owner in the town. This being true, it seems certain that St. Helens amounts to something, and in the near future will grow and amount to more.

Before buying St. Helens property and building homes, the careful buyer has investigated the many advantages which the city has. The big lumber mills and shipyards which furnish employment to hundreds of men; the canning factory which takes the produce of the farmer; the fine farming section adjoining St. Helens and which is being rapidly developed, all tend toward making St. Helens a big city. The churches, schools, public libraries and other advantages, make of St. Helens a most desirable residential section.

Some of the residences which have been built recently, are shown on this page of the Mist. It will be noted that they are all substantially built and are of modern construction. All of these cottages were built by either the St. Helens Lumber Company or the St. Helens Shipbuilding Company and sold to the man who wished to be his landlord, at a price much lower than ordinarily such a residence would cost.

There are hundreds of well situated lots in St. Helens which may be obtained at most reasonable prices and it is hoped that the "Own Your Own Home" idea will be taken seriously by the many who live in St. Helens and dish out their dollars for a monthly rental, so that they may conclude to build a home and become independent of the landlord.

The future of St. Helens is assured. An investment now, will, in the course of a few years, show big results, and then, those who build houses for themselves have the satisfaction of building and arranging their own home just as they want it, and in addition to this satisfied feeling, know that they have become identified with the growth and prosperity of St. Helens.

This is the second of a series of three articles showing the recent growth of St. Helens.

RESIDENCE OF MARTIN FLEURY

Mr. Fleury has been coming to St. Helens for a number of years and knows the advantage of being located in this thriving little city. Mr. Fleury is purser on the Steamer America.

RESIDENCE OF DALE PERRY

Dale Perry is a Columbia county boy and has lived near St. Helens all of his life. He thinks St. Helens has a bright future and was not afraid to invest in the attractive bungalow in "Bungalow Park."

RESIDENCE OF W. I. PALMER

Mr. Palmer and family came to St. Helens from the "Windy City" of Illinois, Chicago. He is employed at the St. Helens Shipbuilding Company yards. His cottage is located in "Bungalow Park."
