THE CLARION.

Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World says: There have been two or three very sad cases here of the sudden prostration of young and seemingly healthy persons by the awful and mysterious disease known as the cerebro-spinal meningitis. One was the case of a son of ex-Secretary Blaine, who was attacked while in apparently perfect health, and another in the case of a young lady belonging to a well-known New York family, who was suddenly prostrated while on a visit to Arlington last week, and who still lies in a most critical condition. This young lady, not yet 20 years of age and a remarkably attractive girl, full of spirits and vivacity, drove out to Arlington with a party of friends. On the way the rest of the party several times complained of the heat of the day. "How can you talk about the heat," said this lady; "I am almost frozen, and my teeth are chattering with the cold." As the thermometer stood at a high figure, this observation astonished her friends, and when the party reached Arlington, it was seen that the young lady was really shivering with cold. Two or three of her friends threw their wraps over her and one of the party went in search of a flask of brandy. Before he could return a spasm of pain came on, in which the unfortunate young lady would have fallen to the earth had she not have been supported by the strong arms of a gentleman accidentally present, and this spasm was followed by an agony in which the whole frame was contorted as if under the influence of strychnine, and in which though happily, as appeared, quite unconscious, she uttered the most heart-rending shrieks. With great difficulty she was conveyed home in the carriage of friends who chanced to be visiting Washington and who asked no questions. From that to the present hour the sufferings of the patient have been keen, terrible and really incessant, her cries sometimes awakening the dwellers for many rods around.

The Future Mrs. David Davis.

[Bloomington Bulletin.]

The marriage of Judge David Davis and Miss Burr will soon be celebrated, and the Judge will retire from the Senate to this city, and enjoy the pleasure of private life with his estimable bride. We are informed that the parents of Miss Burr formerly lived in Massachusetts. Her father's name was James and her mother's Caroline. Mr. Burr was a small farmer, and moved with his estimable wife, in the best society. His brother, Col. Burr, was a social and genial man, and had hosts of friends. Mr. Burr's sister married a Capt. Ellery, who was rich and old. She had one daughter. After Mr. Ellery's death she married Gen. Green, of North Carolina, of Fair Prison and Lone Star Texas fame. The General, by a former wife, had one son, Wharton Green, now member-elect to Congress from North Carolina. This Wharton Green married the Ellery daughter, who inherits all the Ellery wealth, which is held in trust for her and her heirs. Miss Addie, soon to be Mrs. Davis, has spent the last 20 years of her life with the Greens coming yearly north to our watering places and to visit friends. She winters often at Washington City. She knows all about society at such places, has not been "spoilt," and is a very agreeable, kind and excellent lady.

She Sailed Into the Arms of Her Lover.

An interesting chapter in an humble romance in real life was completed when the steamship British Crown reached her moorings on Monday, at Philadelphia. Among the passengers was Fannie Reilly, an attractive young girl of twenty years, who, despite the agonies incident to a long trip across the ocean, seemed to be fearfully overburdened with happiness all the way from Liverpool. The cause of it was developed the moment she put her foot on the dock and eagerly embraced a fine looking young fellow named Henry Bently, who had been anxiously awaiting the approach of the vessel and who returned her embraces with interest. They were betrothed two years ago in England, and she had followed him at his request to help him make his fortune in the land of his option. They were quietly married soon after the arrival of the steamer and went at once to their new home at Falls of the Schuylkill.

HON. ANDREW D. WHITE, President of Cornell Univesity, says the co-education of the sexes is a good thing. No scandals have arisen at Cornell growing out of the system. Indeed, as regards morals, the young women have acted as a restraint upon the young men. The results have been better scholarship and better deportment. He remarks: "We find in the classes that men will outrank women in study, and that two or three of them will be far ahead; but we also find that, taking the class altogether, women have a better average—that is, a higher general average. Taken altogether, the results thus far have fully realized the most sanguine hopes of the friends of co-education."

A Ghost in a Rocking Chair.

[Louisville Chronicle.]

A few days ago an old man named McIntyre, a paralytic, of Hamilton City, died. His rocking-chair was given to a neighbor. Soon the chair was heard to rock when no one was near. It was set out in the middle of the floor and the neighbors called in to witness the strange performance, all of whom were puzzled to its strange actions. It will remain motionless for a time, then all of a sudden it begins to rock furiously. Not one of the strange things seems to care who is looking at it.

A Trick Played a Bridal Pair.

The Fond du Lac Journal tells the following story at the expense of certain Milwaukee parties: About twenty years ago occurred a wedding in this city, upon a grand scale. In the course of the evening a guest suggested that one of the wedding cakes be sealed in a tin box and kept until the marriage of the bride and groom's first born. One of the most delicious cakes was selected and sent to a tin shop, with the proper instructions. As may be supposed, the tinners yearned for that cake, and soon it was divided and found its way to their stomachs. The tin box, which had been prepared for its reception, was then filled with water-soaked ashes, carefully sealed and sent to the blushing young couple, who, remembering what was expected of them and their prospective offspring, took it tenderly in charge, and have since guarded it well. In course of time, a son was born to them, who is now 19 years old, and, it is said, will ere long be married. It will be an amusing sight when that box is solemnly brought before the guests, its little romance related, and the seal of years broken in the presence of the company. The consternation may well be imagined when he or the can opener suddenly drops his instrument and exclaims, with the disappointed lover in "Hazel Kirke," 'Nothing but ashes!" The prrties reside in Milwaukee, and are doubtless remembered by many citizens of Fond'du Lac.

An Old Story in Its Original Form.

A Circarssian legend is that a man was walking along one road, and a woman along another. The roads finally united, and the man and woman, reaching the junction at the same time, marched on from there together. The man was carrying a large iron kettle on his back; in one hand he held by the legs a live chicken, in the other a cane, and he was leading a goat. Just as they were coming to a deep, dark ravine the woman said to the man:

"I am afraid to go through that ravine with you; it is a lonely place and you might overpower me and kiss me by force."

"If you were afraid of that," said the man, "you shouldn't have talked with me at all. How can I possibly overpower and kiss you by force when I have this great iron kettle on my back, and a cane in one hand and a live chicken in the other, and am leading this goat? I might as well be tied hand and foot."

"Yes," replied the woman; "but if you should stick your cane into the ground and tie the goat to it, and turn the kettle bottom side up and put the chicken under it, then you might wickedly kiss me in spite of my resistance."

"Success to thy ingenuity, oh, woman!" said the rejoicing man to himself. "I should never have thought of this expedient."

And when he came to the ravine he stuck his cane into the ground and tied the goat to it, gave the chicken to the woman, saying: "Hold it while I cut some grass for the goat," and then, lowing the kettle from his shoulders, imprisoned the fowl under it, and wickedly kissed the woman, as she was afraid he would.

Fogg's Wife Won't Black His Boots.

[Boston Transcript.]

"No," said Fogg, "I don't believe in extending the suffrage to women. I'm decidedly opposed to it. There's been so much said about it already that Mrs. F. has grown quite scrumptious and begins to think she is something after all. Why, the other day she actually declined to shine my boots. If it goes on this way, it won't be long before she will refuse to polish the kitchen stove and split the kindlings. No, sir; give the suffrage to women, and you will subvert society, knock things topsy turvey, and transform home and hearth into a barren waste." And Fogg started homeward, to have two suspender buttons sewed on that he had pulled off during the unwonted excitement he had been thrown into.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR

WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND.

It is well known to physicians, and alas! too well known to suffering women themselves, that they are subject to numerous diseases peculiar to their sex, such as suppression of the Menses, painful and scanty Menstruation, Congestion, Ulceration and Falling of the Womb, attended with an endless train of sympathetic and constitutional disorders, which embitters the whole life, and which have long been considered as almost incurable. But at last the remedy has been found in

Dr. J. Bradfield's Female Regulator.

It is not a "sure-all," but a remedy for one class of diseases, all of which pertain to the WOMB.

Any sufferer from the diseases mentioned can take this remedy, and thus relieve herself without revealing her condition to any one and without subjecting her womanly modesty to the shock of an examination by a physician.

To bring health and happiness to the homes of suffering women is a mission before which royal favor sinks into insignificance. What earthly benefaction can compare with one which protects from

"That dire disease whose ruthless power Withers beauty's truncheon flower?"

which gives ease for pain, joy for sorrow, smiles for tears, the rose of health for the pallor of disease, the light, elastic step for dragging weariness, nights of soft repose for heavy hours of tossing restlessness, bounding vigor for languishing dullness, the sweet line of full grown beauty for the sharp and withered form of emaciation, a long life of mental, physical, social and domestic enjoyments for a few sad days of pain and gloom, ending in an early grave? Such is the mission, such are the results of DR. J. BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR, which is hence truly and appropriately styled "Woman's Best Friend."

"Whites," and all those irregularities of the womb so destructive to the health, happiness and beauty of women, disappear like magic before a single bottle of this wonderful compound.

All who suffer from any of these diseases are most earnestly invited to give this great remedy a trial. It has cured thousands, and will cure you. Don't fail to try it.

Price, small size, 75 cents. Large size, $1.50.
