CHATTANOOGA:

TUESDAY MORNING, OCT. 21, 1862.

WHAT TENNESSEE HAS DONE IN THIS WAR.

In a former article on this subject we endeavored to point out some of the efforts that had been made and some of the privations that had been endured by Tennessee since this war commenced. So soon as Tennessee perceived that the Lincoln Government did not intend to respect the rights of the South, but was determined, in violation of the Constitution, to use force for the purpose of bringing back the more Southern States into the Union, she did not hesitate as to the proper course for her to pursue — With promptness and decision she cast in her lot with her sister States of the South, although she knew that war, perhaps a terrible war, was to be the result. With alacrity her sons responded to the call to arms, and in less than a month more troops had tendered their services to the Government than could be received, and there has not been a time since when Tennessee could not furnish more troops than the Government could arm. What her soldiers have done on the battle field we have too often mentioned to repeat here. Suffice it to say, Tennessee has just cause to be proud of the gallantry of her soldiers, and has no fear but the honor of the State will always be safe in their hands. The peculiar advantages of Tennessee to the Confederacy were in furnishing our army with the articles they so much needed in the way of food and clothing. At the commencement of this struggle the Government had to be supplied with money, which has justly been said to be the sinews of war. The Banks of Tennessee very materially aided the Confederate Government at that time by advancing money to arm and equip troops, to feed and clothe the army. Fortunately for the country, Tennessee made fine crops of grain and corn during last year and was able to supply the Southern army with all necessary articles of food during the present year. We have no means of ascertaining the exact amount of flour, bacon and beef that was taken from Tennessee for the use of our army. The fact that after the loss of Tennessee these articles increased enormously in price shows how dependent the Southern States were at that time upon Tennessee for food. The horses for our artillery and the mules for our wagons were mostly obtained from Tennessee. We admit that now since the attention of the farmers in the more Southern States has been drawn from the cultivation of cotton to the production of articles of food that the dependence upon Tennessee is not so great.— Even now, however, if this war continues as it bids fair to do for some years, it will require all the labor of the South and Tennessee included to raise enough food to sustain our army and support our people. But since Tennessee has been in the hands of the enemy she has illustrated her devotion to the cause of the South in a manner of which every citizen of Tennessee may be justly proud. Notwithstanding Northern troops were in their midst, and although some of those who had formerly stood high in their estimation abandoned the cause of the South, taking sides with the enemy, aiding, assisting and associating with the invaders upon terms of friendship and intimacy, yet the great body of the people remained firm and true. In the midst of disaster and defeat, as well as in the hour of triumph, they never deserted their principles or their country, and now when an opportunity is given them to show their devotion to the cause of the South they are ready and willing to do it in any and every manner. We could give individual instances to show what sacrifices the people have made rather than abandon our cause, but it is useless to do so. Tennessee is now ready to furnish as many and brave troops, in proportion to her population, to defend the honor and rights of the South as any State in the Confederacy. Even many of those who have, from causes which we will not now mention, heretofore been Union men are now ready and willing to take up arms to resist the tyranny of the Lincoln Government. He has by his duplicity deceived them, and they are now in heart and feeling with the South, although having hitherto differed in opinion as to the causes of the war from many of their Southern brethren. In view of these facts it is not only unjust and wrong in any of the Southern people to speak disparagingly of Tennessee or to treat unkindly her troops, but it is very bad policy. Nothing but the kindest feelings should be cultivated between the citizens and soldiers of the various States, and if any breaches exist the utmost efforts should be made to heal them.

Our articles have all been written with this view and we trust they will do some good towards accomplishing this object, for we learn that in some instances the troops from Tennessee have not been received with that cordiality and warmth of feeling in some of the Southern States to which their services and their sacrifices entitle them.

FROM BRAGG'S ARMY.

The latest intelligence we have from our army in Kentucky is to the 16th instant, at which time it was at London, Ky., and falling back in perfect order towards Cumberland Gap. This move, we know, will take many of our readers by surprise—who naturally think that a victorious army's course should ever be forward—but from what we can hear of the strength of the enemy, and their effort to flank our army between Cumberland Gap and Camp Dick Robinson, we are satisfied it was the only course left for Gen. Bragg to pursue, in order to prevent being cut off from his base of operations — When his communication with the Gap is secure Gen. Bragg may, and probably will, turn upon Buell and give him a lesson that will not soon be forgotten. His ability to defeat Buell at any time has never been doubted by us. A battle may be precipitated at any moment, and we await news from the Gap with great impatience.

CARELESS DRIVERS.—Every few days we hear of young mules running away and breaking their wagons all to pieces, crippling their drivers in some instances, and often endangering the lives of hundreds of pedestrians. Yesterday a government team on Market Street, got frightened or started off for some cause, which frightened two or three other teams, and in a few minutes the entire street was filled with runaway mules and portions of their wagons and harness; a cavalry company was on the street at the time and the general uproar and noise came near stampeding their horses. For a while while everything and everybody was on the move to avoid being run over. One or two country wagons were demolished. This all happened, we are told, from the inexperience of the drivers put in charge of the government wagons. The government cannot afford this recklessness, and it should be stopped in some manner or other.

We give this morning a list of casualties in the 1st Tennessee Regiment, and a partial list of those in the 1st Tennessee. We have yet to be furnished with complete lists of those killed and wounded in the late battle at Perryville, and we have seen but few casualties from any other than the 1st regiment.

Correspondence of the Daily Rebel.

ATLANTA, TENN., Oct. 18, 1862.

MR. EDITOR:—The Holston Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South is now in session in this place. I attended a few sessions at this place, but have not time enough at this place to give you a full account of its proceedings to-day. It is reported that this body is sound on the question of the day. It is instituting a searching inquiry into the political sentiments of its members, and the country may be assured that no unsound loyalty will be sent forth from this conference. This body seems to think that a man who is willing to die his country in such a crisis, will not be false to his fidelity to his God and his church, and that a man whose sympathies are with the thieves and murderers who are striving to destroy our rights and liberties, would be unfit to go out among sinners. I think that before this conference adjourns it will make some expression of opinion that will entitle it to be called a part of the "Church South." Dr. Wiley, President of Emory and Henry College, preached the opening "Conference Sermon" in which he proved that slavery is of divine establishment, and that all human efforts to subvert it are not only ungodly and wicked, but must fail. This Conference, with the stand it is taking will prove a great auxiliary in reclaiming the disaffected of this section. C.

BRYANSVILLE, KY., October 12, 1862.

MY DEAR PAUL: You will hear from many sources of our fight at Perryville, of the gallant conduct of our troops, and of our victory. We drove the enemy from the field, and occupied his position all night. As he "changed his base" very early in the morning, we withdrew—but we had a victory. Many's brigade did glorious work, troops never fought more desperately, with greater coolness, or more complete success. Every man in the brigade proved himself a hero. I cannot at present give an accurate list of our killed and wounded. Of the 1st Tennessee regiment, Lt. Col. Patterson was killed. Early in the action, he received a wound in the arm, which he bound up with his pocket handkerchief and continued on his horse, cheering his men, and urging them forward, until struck by a grape shot in the mouth, which killed him instantly. John Carter, son of Daniel Carter Esq., of Nashville, was wounded in the thigh, the bone was broken high up. As far as I have a list, I give it:

Co. A—Killed: Lieut Thos Lanier; Privates, Wm Bryant; John Clark; Jos Spence; Edw Waggins; Chas Hardee; 12 wounded.

Co. B—Killed: Lieut Davis; Lieut Blakeley; Sergt Fraser; Privates, Eugene Wharton; Morgan Smith; Joe McNish; John Goodber; Robt Hamilton; John Whitney; 15 wounded.

Co. C—Capt Winless reported wounded badly; Killed: Lieut Hawkins; Private Robt Henrey. Wounded—number not ascertained.

Co. D—Killed: Sergt W R Hughes; Private Thos Anthony.

In this company Capt. Atkins and all his officers were wounded, 21 wounded in all:

Co. K—Killed: Lieut Pitts; Sergt J Haney; Privates Richard Brown; Aug Madrey; Jas Tapley; Wounded, number not ascertained.

Co G—Killed: Yestell Jones; Fitzgerald; Reed. Wounded 17.

Co. I—Killed: Sergts J T Jarrat; M C Jamison; Privates Sam Ransom; Geo Clark; W Searcy; L Seward; L H Smith; T Boring; Joe Keats. Wounded 8.

Some of the wounded have died since the battle, but I have not ascertained the names. I am endeavoring to get back to them. Dr. J. R. Buist, Surgeon of the regt. is with them, as also Dr. Rice; Gen'l Cheatham's Medical Director. I shall return with clothing, &c.

In haste, yours truly,

C. T. QUINTARD.

Instructions to Enrolling Officers.

CHATTANOOGA, Oct. 14, 1862.

It is the duty of Enrolling officers to fully enroll every man in their respective Districts comprising the classification heretofore ordered. If residents of the district specified or cannot be found, they must be enrolled. The description will be given from memory, or information and must be so stated under the head of "Remarks."

Conscripts will remain in their respective counties until called for by me.

When the call is made the Chairman will superintend the Enrolling officers, and they will see that all persons embraced in the call obey it. Immediately after the day appointed for assembling the conscripts, the Enrolling officers are required to arrest each man of conscriptable age, who may be found in their districts without a certificate of exemption. They may call upon the Sheriff and Constables to aid them, and if other assistance be necessary, they will report the fact to me, and troops will be furnished.

Enrolling officers remain in their Districts, and the duties do not end with the first enrollment. They are required to watch the District and to make weekly reports. They will be held to a strict accountability for the truth of their reports, and whenever of them wilfully fails promptly to arrest or report persons of conscript age as directed above, will himself be dealt with. The Confederate Government gives them ample compensation, and the work must be done thoroughly. Chairmen of the county Courts are charged with the general superintendence of the enrollment in their counties. JNO. L. HOPKINS, A. D. C.

[illegible] Confederate States of America, assembled, that all persons between the ages of eighteen and thirty years, now in the military service of the Confederate States, or hereafter called into the service of the Confederate States, shall be and are hereby declared to be prolonged in service for the term of three years from the date of their respective enlistments, unless the war shall sooner terminate, and all persons who are residents of the Confederate States, between the ages of twenty and forty years, shall be and are hereby declared to be prolonged in service for the term of three years from the date of their respective enlistments, unless the war shall sooner terminate, and all persons who are residents of the Confederate States, between the ages of twenty and forty years, who are now or may hereafter be exempted from military service.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That for the encouragement of enlistments, the President be and he is hereby authorized to call for and receive into the military service of the Confederate States, for three years, unless sooner discharged, all able-bodied men resident in the Confederate States, between the ages of eighteen and forty years, who may tender themselves for service in the army, navy, or marine corps of the Confederate States, and to assign them to the military or naval service in such manner as the President may deem most conducive to the public interest.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That the President be and he is hereby authorized to call for and receive into the military service of the Confederate States, for the term of three years, unless sooner discharged, such number of companies, battalions, or regiments of artillery, cavalry, or infantry, as he may deem necessary, to be officered by the officers of the existing companies, battalions, and regiments of artillery, cavalry, and infantry of the Confederate States, in the respective localities of the said companies, battalions, and regiments, and to be armed and equipped as the law now provides for the cavalry and artillery companies, and as the law provides for the infantry companies, battalions, and regiments, and all persons who may be so received into the service of the Confederate States, shall be subject to the rules and articles of war, and to all the provisions of the act of the Congress of the Confederate States, approved March 16, 1861, and the acts amendatory thereof, and to the articles of war established for the government of the armies of the United States, so far as the same may be applicable to the organization, officers, and service of said companies, battalions, and regiments, and shall receive the same pay and allowances, and be subject to the same rules and regulations as the regular troops of the Confederate States, and be mustered, paid, and discharged in such manner as the President may direct.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That all persons who may be so received into the service of the Confederate States, shall be under the jurisdiction of the civil and military officers of the Confederate States, in the same manner as the regular troops of the Confederate States, and be subject to the same rules and regulations as the regular troops of the Confederate States, and be entitled to receive bounty, pay, and allowances, and be provided with quarters, rations, and transportation
