The Revised Catechism.

How does modern Moral Philosophy stand up and smile?

What is the chief end of man?

A. To get rich.

In what way?

A. Dishonestly if we can; honestly if we must.

Who is God, the creator and ruler?

A. Money is God. Gold and greenbacks and stocks—father, son, and the ghost of the same—three persons in one; these are the true and only vital, mighty and supreme; and William Tweed is his prophet.

Name the twelve apostles.

A. St. Andi Cob. Hall, whereon the prophet rode into Jerusalem; St. Connolly, the beloved disciple; St. Matthew Carnochan, that smooth at the receipt of customs; St. Peter Fisk, the bell-person disciple; St. Paul Gould, that suffereth many stripes and groweth in them; St. Isaacher Wisman; St. Jacob Vanderbilt, the outstanding disciple; St. Barney, the chief-table; St. Ingersoll, of the holy serpent; St. N. Y. Printing Co., the meek and lowly, that knoweth not its right hand from what its left hand taketh; St. Peter Sullivan, that dashed his (Fisk) master when the public rock had crowed six or seven times; St. Barnard, the wise judge, who inspireth injunctions in time of trouble, whereby the people are incensed to their revolt.

How shall a man attain the chief end of life?

A. By travelling imaginary carpets to the Green House, spectrophic chairs to the armories, and invisible ponies to the city.

Are there other ways?

A. Yes. By purchasing the gubernatorial apostle for a price; by figuratively shipping of all the possum; by proceeding through immigrants from ever-sea; by burying the moneybags at the public Judge and transhipping the vast 10 miles at $40 a load. By tearing you work for buildings. By furnishing lead and iron gas-pipes to the Court House and then conveying the impression in the bill that they were constructed of gold and silver and set with diamonds. By taking care of the public parks at $3 an inch. By hoeing around gin mills in a salary, under the disguise that you are imparting impetus to a shovel on the public works.

Are these sufficient? If not, what shall a man do else, to be saved?

A. Make out his bill for ten prices, and deliver one of them into the hands of the prophet and the holy family. Then shall he be saved.

Who were the models the young men were taught to emulate in former days?

A. Washington and Franklin.

Whom do they and should they emulate now in this era of larger enlightenment?

A. Tweed, Hall, Connolly, Carnochan, Fisk, Gould, Barnard, and Wisman.

What works were chiefly prized for the training of the young in former days?

A. Poor Richard's Almanac, the Pilgrim's Progress, and the Declaration of Independence.

What are the best prized Sunday School books in this more enlightened age?

A. St. Hall's Gabbled Reports, St. Fisk's Impudent Robberies, St. Carnochan's Guide to Corruption, St. Gould on the Watering of Stock, St. Barnard's Injunctions, St. Tweed's Handbook of Morals and the Court House edition of the Holy Crusade of the Forty Thieves.

Do we progress?

A. You bet your life!—New York Tribune.

Japanese Silk.

Sir Harry Parkes has forwarded to the Foreign Office a short report by Mr. Adams on the present condition of sericulture in Japan, and on the cause of the marked deterioration in the quality of Japanese silk during the last few years. This deterioration is attributed in some measure to the hasty and imperfect system of reeling now practised by the natives, but still more to the excessive export of silkworms' eggs to France and Italy—a trade which has assumed very great proportions in consequence of the dearth of good seed in those countries, owing to the prevalence of the disease called pebrine. Mr. Adams is clearly of opinion that the high prices paid by foreigners for these eggs have prevented native breeders of the worm for silk from purchasing, as formerly, first-rate native seed year after year. They have, therefore, been obliged to content themselves with the inferior seed of their own localities, and hence the silk produced has deteriorated. Mr. Adams also shows that this excessive production of seed has been the cause of the increase of the parasite called tji by the Japanese, and that there is evidence of an increase in the amount of pebrine, which may in the future become a very serious matter. There seems to be good reason to hope that pebrine is moderating in Europe, and consequently less seed will probably be required in future years from Japan. Mr. Adams says:—"Beyond disseminating information among the people on the causes of the deterioration of their silk, I do not see what action can be taken beneficially. I am convinced that interference on the part of the Government would be more likely to do harm than good. The Japanese must come to see themselves what is best for their own interest; and if they find that the foreign merchant refuses to give large prices for their inferior silk, and that the demand for their eggs becomes less, while the prices offered for them diminish, they will surely be ready to adopt those changes which are manifestly required to restore the silk industry to its former level."

The Homing, or Carrier Pigeon.

The part played by "les pigeons voyageurs" in the late war between France and Germany, and the remarkable success of the "pigeon post" between Tours and Paris, must have recalled the attention of many persons to these very curious problems of the winged creation; and Mr. Tegetmeier, a most competent and experienced authority upon this and kindred topics, has opportunely published the detailed results of his knowledge and observation of the Homing pigeon's history and training in a small volume, of which the ninth chapter of his larger "Pigeon Book" has formed the basis. Although ornithologists and the curious as to the habits of fowl life, have long got beyond the stage at which credit should be accorded to the old traveller, Lithgow's story of the surrender of Ptolemais to the French armies, owing to the interception by them of the Sultan's carriers, and the use made of these birds to carry into the city a false message; and although there has been enough written to explode the more recent canard about Sir John Ross sending home to Miss Dunlop a pair of pigeons over Arctic seas and frozen regions—a voyage of two thousand miles—there is yet so much hazyness in the public mind as to the uses and capabilities of this most interesting species, that Mr. Tegetmeier deserves all credit for putting the results of his information in a popular form, and doing his best to disperse a mental fog as dense as those which prevent his winged clients from achieving their aerial races.

Not to go with him into classical notices of the Homing pigeon, or to do more than to remind our readers of the great extent to which these birds were used in the last century and the early part of this—in fact, until electricity proved a speedier and more scientific vehicle for conveying racing news and stock-jobbing intelligence—we propose to glance briefly at some of their accredited exploits, at the differences, essential or accidental, between the English and the Belgian Homing birds, and at the question, now very near unequivocal settlement, whether it is "instinct" or a higher and more special intelligence that enables them to achieve unerring flights, which to a phrenologist, would imply a highly-developed bump of locality. For the most marvellous pigeon cures or "recoveries" on record, we have to look to the Continent; indeed, Belgium is as much the nurse of the Homing pigeon as our own country of the race-horse. Its level flats, its clearer atmosphere, its unanimous favor and affection for the sagacious birds—shown, for example, by the farmer in letting them feed unmolested in his fields or roads, and by the station-master in looking after them and giving them drink on their passage to the point where they are to be thrown—furnish conditions denied to our own country's pigeon champions, which have to contend with hills and fogs to impede the vision, and with hostile farmers and game-keepers, and other more ignoble foes. And, besides this, the care bestowed by the Belgian pigeon-breeders in breeding and training, matching and crossing selected and approved birds with others of equal goodness, insures to a greater degree than our own less careful management the perpetuation of hereditarily trained intelligence. Certain it is that the Belgian birds accomplish more than ours. Though the programme of the London Pigeon Club for 1871, given in page 12, is not unlike, it does not speak such perfected results of training as those of the Continental Colombophiles. Among English flights, those which the late Mr. Gandall records, from Exeter to Peckham (172 miles,) in four hours and fifteen minutes, and from Falmouth to Camberwell (309 miles,) within the day, and Mr. Tegetmeier's testimony as to two birds flying from King's Cross to Leeds (190 miles,) in six and a half and eight hours, the one which took the longest time on the road being in motion and having but six flights (stages,) are about the most respectable; and in the last-named instance the birds were Belgian. At Antwerp pigeon, in 1870, conveyed the name of the winner of the two thousand guineas stakes from Newmarket to London in an hour and thirty-three minutes. But the Belgian pigeon race, for young birds, involves a flight of 200, and for old birds 400 or 500 miles, the prizes, of course, being equal to the interest of the contests.

In 1870, a race took place from Bayonne, a town in the south of France, 80 miles from Bordeaux, and 480 miles from Brussels. The birds, 808 in number, filled thirty baskets. They were set free on Saturday, July 9th, at half past 4 in the morning, the wind being south west. Seven of the birds arrived on Sunday, the winners of the first prize at 10-46, and that of the second, at 10-48, both belonging to Brussels, and on the following Monday 120 had returned.

But this was nothing to the grand race from Rome to Belgium in 1869, the longest on record. It was a distance of 600 miles, of which 500 miles were strange ground. Two hundred birds were entered for it, and all were loosed at 4.00 A. M. on the 28th of July. Only twenty reached home: the first and second at 1.55 and 5.15 P. M., on the 31 of August; the third and fourth on August 4th and August 6th, and the tenth on the 11th of September. If they flew in a direct line, it must have been across the Appennines and Alps, at a height of some 7,000 feet, and right across Switzerland. But Mr. Tegetmeier surmises that they rounded the westward of these mountains, and skirting the coast came home by way of Nice, through France. From a calculation of Dr. Chapuis, the great Belgian authority, it is gathered that in the great "concours," under favorable conditions, the rate of flight of the best birds is more than a mile a minute, kept up for four hours and three-quarters; but this is exceeded by birds which know their route, in short-distance flights.—London Saturday Review.

MARVELS OF THE INSECT WORLD.—The Spectator, in its notice of M. Pouchet's work, The Universe, says: "Man generally flatters himself that his anatomy is about the highest effort of Divine skill; yet that of the insect is far more complicated. No portion of our organism can compare with the proboscis of the common fly. Man can boast 370 muscles. Lyonet, who spent his whole life in watching a single species of caterpillar, discovered in it 4,000. The common fly has 8,000 eyes, and certain butterflies 25,000. M. Pouchet treats it as an established fact that so fine are the sensory organs of ants, that they converse by means of their antennæ. Consequently, the strength and activity of insects far surpass ours in proportion. In the whole field of natural science there is nothing more astounding than the number of times a fly can flap its wings in a second. As the fly passes through space at the rate of six feet in a second, it must in that point of time vibrate its wings five or six hundred times. But in rapid flight we are required to believe that 3,600 is a moderate estimate. The mind is stupified if it attempts to realize these results.

A LESSON FOR ALL.—Many doubtless remember the touching story of the daughter of Sir Robert Peel. Her father gave her, as a birthday present, a gorgeous riding-habit, and went out with her on the same day for an airing in the park, his heart swelling with parental pride as he rode by her side. Shortly after she sickened and died of typhus fever in its most malignant form, and when inquiry was made as to how she had caught the infection, it was discovered that the habit, which had been bought from one of the London West End tradesmen, had been made in a miserable attic, where the husband of the seamstress was lying ill of a fever, and that it had been used by her to cover him in his shivering fits. Thus, whether we believe it or not, the safety of the highest is bound up in the lowest, and if we neglect their material, moral and spiritual interests, there will come a dreadful Nemesis to mark the Divine displeasure of our conduct, and we may perceive our guilt all too late, when the vast temple of our liberties a shapeless mass of wreck and rubbish lies.—Ecob.

The Sufferer's Best Friend!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

Bad Legs, Ulcerous Sores, Bad Breasts and Old Wounds.

No description of wound, sore or ulcer can resist the healing properties of this excellent Ointment. The worst cases readily assume a healthy appearance whenever this emollient is applied; sound flesh springs up from the bottom of the wound, inflamation of the surrounding skin is arrested and a complete and a permanent cure quickly follows the use of the Ointment.

Piles, Fistulas and Internal Inflamation.

These distressing and weakening diseases may with certainty be cured by the sufferers themselves, if they will use Holloway's Ointment and closely attend to the printed instructions. It should be well rubbed on the neighboring parts, when all obnoxious matter will be removed. A poultice of bread and water may sometimes be applied at bed time with advantage; the most scrupulous cleanliness must be observed. If those who read this paragraph will bring it under the notice of their acquaintances whom it may concern, they will render a service that will never be forgotten, as a cure is certain.

Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia.

Nothing has the power of reducing inflamation and relieving pain in these complaints in the same degree as Holloway's cooling Ointment and purifying Pills. When used simultaneously they drive all inflamation and depravities from the system, subdue and remove all enlargement of the joints and turn the crooked and wrinkled limb and unjointed. A cure may always be effected when under the Ointment and Pills, if the use of these medicines be persevered in.

Eruptions, Scald Head, Ringworm and other Skin Diseases.

After fomentation with warm water, the utmost relief and speediest cure can be readily obtained in all complaints affecting the skin and joints, by the simultaneous use of the Ointment and Pills. But it must be borne in mind that nearly all skin diseases indicate the depravity of the blood and the derangement of the liver and stomach; consequently, in many cases, time is required to purify the blood, which will be effected by a judicious use of the Pills. The general health will readily be improved, although the eruption may be driven out more freely than before, and which should be promoted. Perseverance is necessary.

Sore Throat, Diptheria, Quinsey, Mumps and all other Derangements of the Throat.

On the appearance of any of these maladies, the Ointment should be well rubbed at least three times a day upon the neck and upper part of the chest, so as to penetrate to the glands, as salt is forced into meat; this course will at once remove inflamation and ulceration. The worst cases will yield to this treatment by following the printed directions.

Serofula or King's Evil and Swelling of the Glands.

This class of cases may be cured by Holloway's purifying Pills and Ointment, as their double action of purifying the blood and strengthening the system renders them more suitable than any other remedy for all complaints of a scrofulous nature. As the blood is impure, the liver, stomach and bowels being much deranged, require a purifying medicine to bring about a cure.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following Cases:

Bad Legs	Cancers	Sore Throat
Bad Breasts	Contracted and Stiff Joints	Skin Diseases
Burns	Elephantiasis	Glandular Swellings
Bunions	Fistulas	Sore Head
Bite of Mosquito or Sandfly	Gout	Scurvy
Coco-bay	Lumbago	Tumors
Chiego-foot	Piles	Ulcers
Chilblains	Rheumatism	Wounds
Chapped Hands	Scalds	Yaws
Corns (soft)	Sore Nipples

Sold at the Establishment of PROFESSOR HOLLOWAY, 244 Strand, (near Temple Bar) London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the civilized world, at the following prices: 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., 22s., and 33s. each Pot.

 There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.
