THE HAWAIIAN GAZETTE.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO HAWAIIAN PROGRESS.

VOL. XI,—NO. 49. HONOLULU, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1875. WHOLE NO. 569.

A Woman's Question.

Do you know you have asked for the costliest thing
Your ready tongue can utter—
A woman's heart and a woman's life
And a woman's unpurchased love?

Do you know you have asked for this priceless thing
As a child might ask for a toy,
Demanding what others have died to win,
With the reckless death of a boy?

You have written my lesson of duty out,
And—lest you have questioned me—
Now stand at the bar of my woman's soul,
Until I have answered thee.

You require your mutton shall always be hot,
Your socks mend your shirts be whole;
I require your heart to be true as God's stars
And pure as his flowers your soul.

You require a rack for your mutton and beef,
I require a far better thing,
A resting-place you're wanting for stockings and shirts,
I look for a man and a king.

A king for the beautiful realm called home,
And a man that the maker, God,
Shall look upon as he did the first
And say, "It is very good."

I can but wait yielding, but the time will fade
From my soul, young cheek and day—
Will you love me then, 'mid the falling leaves
As you did 'mid the blooms of May?

Is your heart as warm as strong and deep
I may launch my all on its tide?
A loving woman finds heaven or hell,
On the day she is made a bride.

I require all things that are good and true,
All things that a man should be;
If you give them all, I would stake my life
To be all you demand of me.

If you cannot be this—A handiron and cook
You can have with little to pay;
But a woman's heart and a woman's life
Are not to be won that way.

Variety.

What may be done at any time is never done.

Taste depends upon those finer emotions which make the organization of the soul.

Many a man's vices have at first been nothing worse than good qualities run wild.

A mind that is conscious of its integrity scorns to say more than it means to perform.

How many think to atone for the evil they have done by the good they intend to do, and are only virtuous in the prospective!

A large share of the happiness in this world that we brag so much of is made up entirely of the arts we use to make others think we are happy.

Character is an eternal temple that each one begins to rear, yet death only can complete. The finer the architecture, the more fit for the indwelling of angels.

I have some ambition to be a perfect man—but not till after I am dead and in another state of existence, for it is a sad thing to have no character among one's fellow.—Chee Foo Tain.

The remarkable appetite of peacocks for grasshoppers induces a correspondent, who learned French with a Parisian accent in Boston, to suggest that the introduction of these birds into the Northwestern States would probably prove a paying investment.

A Portland shipmaster reports that when off Barbadoes one fine night last April he saw a meteor rush through the heavens and strike another meteor or planet, which took fire and burned for several hours. The meteor disappeared soon after the collision.

The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter, and a scarcity of words; for whoever is a master of language, and hath a mind full of ideas, will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both.—Swift.

"Thomas Towser, are you guilty or innocent of this charge?" said the judge. "May it please your Honor," replied Thomas. "I don't want to commit myself." "Ah!" said the judge blandly, "then I'll save you the trouble and do it myself. Sixty-days."

"Are the young ladies of the present day fit for wives?" asked a lecturer of his audience. "They are fit for husbands," responded a feminine voice; "but the trouble is that you men are not fit for wives!" The applause was great, and so was the discomfiture of the lecturer.

The Hudson census enumerator has found a customer whose nativity puzzles him. His father was Irish, but now a naturalized American; his mother was English; he was born on a Dutch frigate, under a French flag, in Turkish waters, and his name is John Smith.

A heart full of coldness, a sweet full of bitterness a pain full of pleasantness, which maketh thoughts have eyes and hearts have ears; bred by desire, nursed by delight, weaned by jealousy, killed by dissembling, buried by ingratitude; and this is love.—Sidy the Upholst.

Words are good but there is something better. The best it not to be explained by words. The spirit in which we act is the chief matter. Action can only be understood and represented by the spirit. No one knows what he is doing while he is acting rightly, but of what is wrong we are always conscious.—Goethe.

Fanny Wells, a colored woman of Keokuk, Iowa, has fallen heir to $1,000. Her former master recently died in California, and the administrators of the estate notified her that on opening the will they discovered that $1,000 had been left her, and an equal amount to the oldest son, who the old lady remarked, "was dat man's own chile."

We must divide thinkers into those who think for themselves and those who think for others; the latter are the rule, the former the exception. The first, therefore, are original thinkers in a double sense, and agitate in the noblest meaning of the word; it is from them alone that the world learns wisdom. For only the light which we have kindled in ourselves can illuminate others.—Schopenhauer.

"Womanly she was; instinct with that tender, sensitive power, the marvelous gift of God to woman only, which almost moves the sick man to bless his sickness; a holy gift, surely the immediate influx of Christ's spirit. Man knows it not; albeit when him and woman become more closely united than now, he may attain to share the divine prerogative. Stolly nor skill can counterfeit it; but in the true woman, it is as perfect at the first appeal as at the last!"—Julian Hawthorne.

Friendship is the soul's heaven, into which the heart shall enter, sometime, if not admitted already. Our desire for fellowship, and the persuasion that departed friends await us, is proof positive against all disappointment and delusions meanwhile of our rejoining them in the order of immortality. Because man is personally immortal he cannot accept less than immortality of fellowships in the future, nor still his anticipation of such satisfaction.—Alcott.

Art is long, life short, judgment difficult, opportunity fleeting. To act is easy, to think is difficult; to act according to our thoughts is troublesome. Every beginning is agreeable, the threshold is the place of expectation. The boy is astonished, his impressions guide him, he learns as he plays, earnestness comes to him by surprise. Imitation is born with us, but what we ought to imitate is not easily discovered. The excellent is seldom found more seldom prized. The summit charms us, the steps to it do not; with the heights before our eyes, we like to linger in the plain.—Goethe.

Old Weather Proverbs.

At a recent meeting of the Wiltshire Archæological Society, at Swindon, England, the Rev. A. C. Smith read a paper entitled "Wiltshire Weather Proverbs and Weather Fallacies," which has been very extensively reproduced by the English press. Some of the quaint old rhymes which it embodies are well worth preservation as curiosities of folk lore, aside from any value they may have as guides in anticipating the character of future weather.

I proceed now to mention such of the proverbs as are in most general use among us; but I would promise that some of them are common to every county in England. How true is the well-known saying:

Evening gray and morning red
Sends the Shepherd wet to bed;
Evening red and morning gray
Is the sure sign of a very fine day.

And this:

Mackerel sky, mackerel sky,
Never long wet, never long dry.

And this:

Rain before seven.
Fine before eleven.

And this again:

A rainbow in the morning
Is the shepherd's warning;
A rainbow at night
Is the shepherd's delight.

which is our homely way of expressing the famous lines of Byron:

Be thou the rainbow to the storms of life,
The evening beam that smiles the clouds away,
And tints to-morrow with prophetic ray.

Then, again, how true is the old Wiltshire saying:

When the wind is northwest
The weather is at the best;
But if the rain comes out of the east,
'Twill rain twice-twenty-four hours at least.

These are general proverbs, applicable to all times; but we have an unusual number of proverbs in Wiltshire which describe the evils too advanced vegetation in a precocious spring. Thus, for January we have:

If the grass grows in Janiveer,
It grows the worse fo't all the year.

And again:

A January spring
Is worth nothing.

For February:

Of all the months in the year
Curse a fair February.

So again for March, in true Wiltshire language:

As many mistises in March,
So many frostises in May.

Ah the well-known adage:

If March comes in like a lion, it goes out like a lamb;
If it comes in like a lamb, it goes out like a lion.

For April again:

A cold April
The barn will fill.

And again:

April showers
Bring summer flowers.

Another, landing the prolongation of the fierce winds of March:

When April blows his horn
'Tis good both for hay and corn.

While even for May we have:

Mist in May and heat in June,
Makes the harvest come right soon.

And again:

Who doffs his coat on a winter's day,
Will gladly put it on May.

And for June:

A dripping June
Bring's all things in tune.

Every one of these proverbs relating to the first six months of the year, proclaims the acknowledged fact that a prolonged winter and a tardy spring bespeaks more abundant crops and more assured plenty than the pleasanter, however unseasonable, warmth which sometimes gladdens all hearts in winter and early spring. Nor is this belief peculiar to our country, or even to England. It is held quite as much in the south of Europe. For the Italians have a proverb: "January commits the faults and May bears the blame;" and it is a common saying in Spain, "A year of snow, a year of plenty." Moreover, that such premature mildness of the season does not in reality advance vegetation, everybody who possesses a garden knows to his cost. And here again we have several Wiltshire proverbs relating to this fact, and containing very weighty truths. One runs thus:

Be it weal or be it woe
Beans blow before May doth go.

Another says:

Come it early or come it late,
In May comes the corn quake.

And a third:

Plant your 'taters when you will,
They won't come up before April.

But again we have Wiltshire sayings which affirms, what I believe to be an equally undeniable truth, that altogether with a prolonged winter and a dripping spring, a dry summer is to be desired by the husbandman. That, however, is a season we scarcely seem to have experienced this year, when the old Devonshire proverb, applicable enough in that rainy county, might have been quoted with much truth, even here:

The west wind always brings wet weather,
The east wind wet and cold together;
The south wind surely bring us rain—
The north wind blows it back again.

Showing that from whatever point of the compass the wind blows, rain is sure to fall.

There is a very curious old Wiltshire prejudice against a new moon occurring on a Saturday, which, if not common in the country now, prevailed not many years since, but the origin of which and the meaning of which I am at a loss to conjecture. It is handed down in the following proverb:

A Saturday's moon,
If it comes once in seven years,
Comes once too soon.

Equally unfounded, though more easily accounted for, is the notion which prevails among our people that the weather on Friday differs from that of all other days. The saying is:

To every other day in the week
Friday is not alike.

A somewhat obscurely worded sentiment, but doubtless originated in the same principle which causes sailors to dread putting out to sea on a Friday, viz., the custom, once religiously observed, of keeping Friday as a weekly fast.

A REMARKABLE MAN.—The Emperor of Germany is one of the most remarkable men in Europe. He is now in his 70th year, and seems no more inclined to rest than ordinary men at half that age. This past season he has been particularly active. The Emperor has helped to make a good deal of history in his day. He became Regent of Prussia in 1858 and three years later succeeded to the crown. The war with Austria in 1866 resulted in making the head of the North German Confederation, and the war with France in 1870-71 united Germany and made the King of Prussia its Emperor. Since then he has been active in European politics as becomes the Emperor of a great military nation.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S
CHLORODYNE
IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.
THE PUBLIC ARE CAUTIONED AGAINST the unfounded statements frequently made, "that the composition of CHLORODYNE is known to Chemists and the Medical profession." The fact is, Chlorodyne was discovered and invented by Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE (ex Army Medical Staff), and so named by him, and it has baffled all attempts at analysis by the first Chemists of the day. The method and secret of the preparation have never been published. It is obvious, therefore, that anything sold under the name, save Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE, is a spurious imitation.
CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. P. Wood stated that Dr. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne.
REMEDIAL USES AND ACTION.
This invaluable remedy produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp Hysteria, &c.
EXTRACTS FROM MEDICAL OPINIONS.
The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians, and J. T. Davenport, that he had received information to the effect that the ONLY remedy of any service in Cholera was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet Dec. 31, 1864.
Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE was administered, the patient recovered.
Extract from Medical Times, Jan 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."
Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."
CAUTION.—None genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle.
