VOL. XIX.---No. 2. HONOLULU, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1884. [WHOLE No. 991.

A Soldier's Fate.

[illegible]

Miscellaneous.

The [illegible] for piling the [illegible] gun.

Capital punishment is to be abolished in Finland.

Tahiti is forty and has been singing like sixty for thirty.

It is said that England has [illegible] female medical practitioners.

Capt. E. W. Spencer, one of the Jeannette survivors, is writing a volume to narrate his Arctic adventures.

The Japanese never wear any shoes about the house. They will commence, however, as soon as carpet tacks are introduced into that country.

Along the streets of New York and over the roofs of the buildings there are strung not less than 200 miles of electric wires used by the arc light illuminating companies.

Bran is an excellent article for softening and whitening the skin, and a bran bath should be taken at least once a week. Place the bran in little thin muslin bags and drop in the bath tub to soak about two hours before using.

The girls have a festive time of it in India. Very often the girls are married at the age of three years, and should the boy to whom they are wedded die the next day the infant is declared a perpetual widow, and may not marry again though she lives to sixty years of age.

It is well known among observant poultry-raisers that those breeds of fowls which are large layers and non-sitters possess an almost insatiable appetite for animal food. It is the gratification of this appetite which makes them such inordinate layers.

Ladies who do their own "dusting" in parlors filled with brio-a-brac and fragile things use a small bellows, instead of a brush which is apt to knock over and destroy the delicate trifles. These bellows are embroidered on the sides and have ribbon bows on the handles.

Lawrence Barrett's real name is Larry Barthet. His grandfather owned a hotel at Rancocas, where the actor was born, and was a beaten friend of the cavalier Lafayette. Barrett himself was christened by Father Pyatt, the famous patriot priest of Wategrass Hill.

The King of Dahomey, on stated occasions, puts a finely clad official under a gorgeous umbrella and directs him to take his royal compliments to his friend the ocean. This done, the official is tossed to the sharks. The salary of this position is not so much an object as the name.

The oldest school teacher in New Haven is Sarah Wilson, a negress, 77 years old, who has been teaching for sixty years. Her father was born a slave in New Haven, but bought his freedom, and Mrs. Wilson has a good education, and teaches a private school of very young children.

WAGES IN VARIOUS STATES.—Carpenters' wages in St. Louis are from $2 to $3 a day. In Dakota carpenters are in demand at $3.50 a day. Living there is costly. In El Paso carpenters receive from $4 to $5 a day, but there is no great demand for them as yet. In Charleston wages range from $1.50 to $2.25. In Chicago the building trades are $2.75 to $3 a day.

A pair of gloves once worn by Queen Elizabeth has been presented to the British Museum. They are of very fine white leather, worked with gold thread, but of a size at which our fashionable beauties would stand aghast. Good Queen Bess, however had a hand that was fit to wield a scepter. The thumb of her glove was five inches long, and the palm measured three and one-half inches across.

Gentlemen in search of picturesque wives, should go to Lucerne, Italy. They wear a jaunty costume, consisting of kitten petticoats on week days and nightcaps on Sundays and holidays. These petticoats are all starched and some are very richly adorned with lace and embroidery. A colored shirt is then looped over these bulloon skirts, and a stay body confines the waist to its smallest dimensions over a spotless white chemisette.

Engineers at Maynoo have found the remains of the bridge that Charlemagne built over the Rhine near the close of the eighth century and have already removed more than fifty of the piles, from fifteen to eighteen feet long, on which it rested. The timber is so well preserved that it is still fit for building purposes, while the iron that was riveted to the piles has only a thin coat of rust to show the lapse of more than a thousand years.

BEFFER CONCEITS.—English connoisseurs encircle cups of crimson velvet edged with ermine. That of a duke is marked by eight strawberry leaves, the marquis wear four pearls, the earl eight pearls and eight leaves, the pearls rising above the leaves, the viscount has as many pearls, but no leaves, and the baron has six pearls at regular intervals, and no leaves.

CINCHONA CULTURE IN INDIA.—The total number of cinchona trees in Bengal at the end of last year was 6,711,166, while the crop was the largest ever gathered, being 396,980 pounds of dry bark. All this was sent to the factory, among 41,800 pounds which was forwarded to London at the request of the Secretary of State, to be made up in different forms of febrifuge and to be afterward returned for experimental purposes to India.

The elevation of Prescott, the capital of Arizona, above sea level, is now given as 5350 feet. This elevation is almost one of the most elevated cities in the United States. Denver's elevation is 5196 feet and Salt Lake only 4200 feet. But Virginia city, Santa Fe, Cheyenne and Laramie are all higher, their elevations being 6205, 6989, 6800 and 7123 feet, respectively. Prescott is not, as many suppose, on the line of the newly-opened Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, but it expects to be connected therewith by a branch.

OCEAN BURIAL OF A CENTURY AGO.—A successful search was made for the remains of the Bonnaile and Astrolabe, which went down near Vanikoro, in the South Pacific, a century ago. They were the two ships with which the ill-fated La Perouse went on his last voyage. Anchors, cannon, and numerous other relics were found and conveyed to Noumea in New Caledonia. They were received by the French authorities with impressive ceremony, the garrison and blue jackets being ordered to give military honors, and a salute of twenty-one guns being fired by the guns of the forts. Among the trophies of the search is a bronze cannon dated 1785, and the anchors are covered over with coral in the strangest manner. The relics will be sent to the Louvre, and placed in the La Perouse room.

It is estimated that the United States will contain 150,000,000 people fifty years hence. The natural increase of population, as judged by the tables of the past, in conjunction with the swelling tide of immigration from Europe, will accomplish this marvel of national growth. When future historians record the fact that the American colonies, with 3,000,000 people, developed into a republic of 150,000,000 in a century and a half it will read like a tale of the Arabian Nights. Rome at its zenith had as much a population, nor one so homogeneous in language, spirit, intelligence, and inspiration. This will be the mightiest empire of all history. Figures alone fail to convey an idea adequate of its probable vastness and power. Its population will be equal to that of the German Empire, France, Spain, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy and Austria combined. It will be a match in war for the whole of Europe, or any other quarter of the globe. In the achievements of peace it promises to exceed any nation extant, or that ever came to wealth and splendor.
