MASONIC FEMALE INSTITUTE,

CLEVELAND, TENN.

Rev. J. N. Bradshaw, Principal.

THE next Session of this Institute will commence on Monday the 1st day of September next, under the direction and professorship of the Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, who has had charge of it for the last ten months.

The Trustees in making this announcement would most especially appeal to all citizens who have daughters to educate, to send them to this institution. Mr. Bradshaw has had charge of the school for the last ten months, during which time he has rendered ample, and we might say, universal satisfaction to the Trustees, patrons and public. There never was a better time for men to educate their daughters than now—money is plenty—everything a farmer raises bears two prices, and the Tuition to this School is the same that it was when everything was at low figures.—What excuse can there be now for a man who neglects to educate his daughter? None. Because here, in Cleveland a healthy locality, we have an institute, with an excellent Instructor, and only a sufficient corps of Assistants, to instruct all who may favor it with their patronage. Let one and all put their shoulder to the wheel and build up such a School as will be of incalculable benefit to us and ambition to our town.—We have the building and we have the Teachers—the balance devolves upon the people. We hope they may nobly perform their duty.

The Trustees are thankful to the citizens for the patronage bestowed upon Mr. Bradshaw heretofore, and are glad to know that under his administration the Institution has not lost any of the enviable reputation it acquired in the better days of the Republic.

The American Question in Europe.

SPEECH OF MR. G. W. BRIMBLECOMBE, M. P., ON THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION, RECOGNITION, &c.

Mr. G. W. Brimblecombe, in the course of a speech at Kingston, on the 30th, expressed himself as follows:

I contend that the question of slavery has nothing whatever to do either with the feud which is now going on between the Northern and Southern States, nor has it, nor ought it to have anything to do with the fight in which that feud ought to be regarded by the people of this country.

There is a very distinguished statesman who now holds the portfolio for foreign affairs, who, on a former occasion, in talking of the feud between the Northern and Southern States, described it in question in these words: "that the North was fighting for empire and the South for independence." I quite accept the latter assertion, but deny that the North is fighting for empire.

The men of the North are fighting for what most men fight, and for what, unfortunately, most men fight with the utmost zeal—they are fighting for dollars. (Hear.) Their position now is exactly the converse, in my humble opinion, of what their position was in the days of what was called the American rebellion, when they were themselves fighting to evade the taxes imposed by the mother country. They were described in those days by one of the greatest poets in this country—a man equally praiseworthy for his talents as a poet, and for the extreme liberality of his opinions. He went over to America, fully impressed, as many others have been, with the perfection of American institutions. He remained there a few months, and he described them in these four short lines:

"Those unmeaning demagogues, who daily pour
From England's debtors and England's shore,
Who crowd their pages with the praises of
And brook no phrase but the cause dollars!"

(Laughter and cheers.) That was the opinion of an intelligent man forty years ago, and therefore you will see that it is not the people long settled in America, but the people long settled in Britain, who are the relative partisans of the North and South.—Why, the Americans are not fighting, strictly speaking, for dollars, they are fighting for empire, they are fighting for the maintenance of their political position. What is the relative position of the North and South?—Why, the Southern States were, in the first place, colonies of England, and I believe I may venture to say that the Southern States of America were peopled by the descendants of Englishmen, and I believe I may venture to say that they were peopled by the descendants of those who were the most high-spirited men of England, who were the most high-spirited men of England, who were the most high-spirited men of England,
