Cotton

The cotton market was in a state of hesitancy yesterday. It seemed impossible for a movement in either direction to get under way, and closing prices, which were higher, showed net changes of only 3 to 14 points.

At the opening here Liverpool prices were 5 to 12 points below the previous closing. This depressed the market. Then came complaints of unfavorable weather conditions in Texas and the eastern and central belt sections, and prices rallied.

Weather conditions are undoubtedly the most influential factor in the market at the moment. The rainfall has been above normal in Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama and there has been so much rain in Texas that the soil is said to be saturated. If the wet spell continues there is believed to be danger of a real calamity in the last named state.

The South Carolina Cotton Association is pushing a project to establish three cotton reserve banks in the belt. This will result, it is said, in removing from the market a tremendous quantity of middling cotton.

Southern spot markets continue to do an active business. Sales at New Orleans yesterday were 6,575 bales. Exports from all ports were 4,033 bales.

In the local market, spot cotton was quoted at 28.90, unchanged.

Wheat.—Visible supplies of wheat decreased last week 7,284,000 bushels, leaving a total of 42,218,000. Receipts at New York yesterday were 260,400 bushels.

Corn.—Corn soared to new high prices yesterday, May going to $1.79 and July to $1.69¼. At the top May was 10 cents above the previous closing and 5⅝ cents above its previous high record. Prices closed near the top, with net gains of 6 to 9½ cents. The rise was based on wet weather, light receipts and the strength in hogs. The high price of hogs is said to be the real reason for the upward movement of corn. It is more profitable, it is declared, for farmers to feed corn to hogs than to sell it at $2 a bushel, and the only corn they are selling is the surplus which the hogs do not consume. The result is a great scarcity of cash corn, with consequent high prices for the near deliveries in futures. It is asserted that American corn is so scarce that manufacturers of corn products would have to shut down were it not for the fact that they have been able to get supplies of the Argentine product.

Sugar.—There have been heavy shipments from Cuba, and sugars continue to accumulate in the hands of the Equalization Board. Advices from Cuba are that several mills have finished their outturn for the season. Weather conditions are fine for rapid harvesting of the rest of the crop. The demand here for refined sugar is gradually improving.

Coffee Futures.—The coffee market was dull and unsettled. Closing prices were unchanged to 13 points net lower. Authoritative denials were received that the Sao Paulo government was selling any of its holdings. December sold as low as 16.80, a full cent under the high price of last Thursday. Spot demand continues fairly good, but business is said to be hampered by light offerings of the kinds and grades most in demand. Whether present prices can be maintained depends, it is said, upon the buying power of Europe and the ability of holders in producing countries to withstand the pressure of the coming crop.
