Different Paths.

I passed talked with one who sighed
To know that all my way was dark,
That life was—the road to Heaven,
And that to me I seemed lost.

"Strike into the wild I told away,
You cannot give me peace, dear friend,
Up the steep hill our paths are set
In different ways, as one view end.

"Why, though with angle glancing sighted
On heights beyond our mortal ken,
You need the final sure issues of Faith,
More firmly than the weaker men.

"To each according to his strength:
But as we leave the plains below
Let Hope cast out a wider sight,
A broader pathway through the snow.

"And when upon Delectable crest
We stand at last together, friend,
From mist that clouds round the base
Have wonder's while again, dear friend.
No pathway can be wholly wrong,
That leads into our perfect end."
—Mary Allen Jewsbury.

Miscellaneous.

London has twenty-eight daily journals, 521 weeklies and over 600 monthly magazines.

We like those to whom we do good, better than those who do us good.—[De Saint Real.

An Irish lover remarked: "It's a very great pleasure to be alone, especially when your sweetheart is wil ye."

Mrs. Wells, living near Utica, New York, says she never feels better than after a day's ploughing in the fields.

It is said that if you wish to pour boiling water into a glass jar or tumbler, it can be safely done by putting a spoon in the dish before pouring.

A correspondent of a Queensland paper, who has travelled a good deal in New Guinea, estimates the native population of that country at 5,000,000.

Satan selects his disciples when they are idle, but Christ chose His while they were busy at work, either mending their nets or casting them into the sea.

The Second District of Gibson County, Tennessee, has three men that have sixty-three children, twenty-one apiece. One of them has seventy-five grandchildren.

Religion stands upon two pillars namely; what Christ did for us in His flesh and what he performs in us by His Spirit. Most errors arise from an attempt to separate these two.

If a baby is hoarse at night, take a small piece of oil silk, rub a little lard or animal oil of any kind over it and fasten it next the skin, over the chest. It may be pinned with small safety pins to the wrapper.

"One of these dollars is a counterfeit, ma'am." "How can you tell?" "Simply by sound. Just tap it and hear how clear the genuine sounds. That's tenor. Notice when I tap the other one. That's tenor."

What the lily referred to in the sacred writings is, is the expression "lilies of the field" is unknown. Several plants have been accorded this honour, among which are the purple iris, the lily of the valley, and the tulip.

According to recently published statistics, there are at present 1,571,000 beehives in France, from which this summer 19,287,251 pounds of honey and 5,091,598 pounds of wax have been taken, the value of which amounts to £83,858.

To purify the air of the cellar, and to destroy parasitical growth, a German authority says: Put some roll brimstone into a pan, set fire to it, close the doors and windows as tight as possible for two or three hours. Repeat this inexpensive operation every three months.

If the English tongue possesses now twice as many words as the Greek possessed, that would remind us that the human race had doubled its treasures of mind and body since Homer and Pericles. Language has become a millionaire. One idea has led to another, until there is a paradise where once there was a sandy plain.

It appears from the recent investigations of the New York City Board of Health that both arsenic and lead have been found in raw coffee, which had been put through some process to improve its color. Other deleterious substances are also used to colouring coffee. Their use was promptly stopped by order of the Board.

The new Queen of Madagascar, who is described as extremely young and singularly pleasing, wore, at her coronation, a gown of ivory satin heavily embroidered in gold, with a train of dark crimson velvet, also gold embroidered, and borne by six officers of state. During the ceremonies her face was calm, but her hands trembled like aspen leaves.

One dram of carbolic acid, six drops of oil of lavender, and two and a half ounces of olive oil formed the prescription which proved effectual in destroying a parasitic affection of the moustache of a gentleman who consulted Dr. George Thin, London, Eng. The hair had fallen out, and a sort of baldness occurred in spots, but after the application of the remedy the hair grew as thick and healthy as before the parasites had attacked it.

All English railways, even those which have been using gas, are now going it collectively for electricity to light their trains by. The electricity is not generated by motive power, but by batteries. It is both cheaper and safer, and more thoroughly under control. In other words, the electricity will be generated by the combustion of zinc in the sulphuric acid of the cells, instead of by the combustion of carbon in the furnace of an engine.

Grains of the different kinds produce alcohol in about the following proportions: "Corn affords 40 pounds of spirits of the specific gravity of 0.9427, containing 45 per cent. of absolute alcohol for each 100 pounds of grain; wheat, 40 to 42 pounds of spirits; barley, 40; oats, 30; rye, 36 to 42; buckwheat, 40. Now, 40 pounds of such spirits equal 31.1-7 (3.5) gallons of Government-proof spirits. Taking corn at 56 pounds per bushel, rye at 56 pounds, wheat at 60, barley at 48, oats at 32 and buckwheat at 52, these grains should afford the following quantities of proof spirits per bushel: Corn and rye each 1.96 gallons, or almost two gallons; wheat, 2.1 gallons; barley, 1.68 gallons; oats, 1.12 gallons, and buckwheat, 1.82.

Camphor is made in Japan in this way: After a tree is felled to the earth it is cut up into chips, which are laid in a tub on a large iron pot partially filled with water and placed over a slow fire. Through holes in the bottom of the tub steam slowly rises, and, heating the chips, generates oil and camphor. Of course, the tub with the chips has a closely-fitting cover. From this cover a bamboo pipe leads to a succession of other tubs with bamboo connections, and the last of these tubs is divided into two compartments, one above the other, the dividing floor being perforated with small holes to allow the water and oil to pass to the lower compartment. The upper compartment is supplied with a straw layer which catches and holds the camphor in crystal in deposit as it passes to the cooling process. The camphor is then separated from the straw, packed in wooden tubs and is ready for the market. The oil is used by the natives for illuminating and other purposes.

Floor is peculiarly sensitive to atmospheric influences; hence it should never be stored in a room with sour liquids nor where onions or fish are kept, nor any article that taints the air of the room in which it is stored. Any smell perceptible to the sense will be absorbed by the floor. Avoid damp cellars or lofts where a free circulation of air can not be obtained. Keep in a cool, dry, airy room, and not exposed to a freezing temperature, nor to intense summer or to artificial heat for any length of time above seventy to seventy-six degrees Fahrenheit. It should not come in contact with grain or other substances which are liable to heat. Flour should be sifted and the particles thoroughly disintegrated, and then warmed before baking. This treatment improves the color and baking properties of the dough. The sponge should be prepared for the oven as soon as the yeast has performed its mission, otherwise fermentation sets in and acidity results.

Some English scientists have been trying to explain why it is that persons who become lost in a fog, or who are for any reason unable to see their way, usually walk in a circle instead of following a straight line. Mr. W. Larden thinks that the cause may be found in the strength of the legs, the stronger of the two outwalking the other when not controlled by the will. In confirmation of this view Mr. C. H. Darwin recounts some experiments in which several schoolboys were blindfolded and told to walk straight ahead, when the "rightlegged" ones circled to the left, and the "leftlegged" ones to the right, exactly as they should do if the theory is correct; while one boy, who seemed to be neither right-legged nor left-legged, but to use the two limbs with about equal facility, walked irregularly, but deviated much less from a straight course than any of the others. Another writer, Mr. Thomas Hawkeley, supposes that few persons have both legs of equal length, in which case the longer limb must have a tendency to outstrip the other in walking.
