PERHAPS the most important feature of these celebrated topcoats is that they are typically, genuinely, inimitably English. They are not adaptations of English topcoats, but originals, identical with duplicates in London. They are tailored, on those easy, swagger, informal lines indigenous to the pavements of Piccadilly. And the fabrics are a joy forever! It is not only that they are all-wool.

Lots of fabrics are all-wool. But these Aquascutum weaves seem to have some peculiar quality of their own, as if the best sheep had been segregated from the flock for the Aquascutum looms. So, too, with the colors. No ordinary description can do them justice. They have such richness and depth as can be found in no other fabrics here or abroad.
