If therefore the Democratic party, or any other party at the North suppose that their temporary triumph over the more ultra abolitionists is going to produce any effect in raising up a "Union party" at the South, they are deceiving themselves. All the world knows that if the abolition government had succeeded, or was likely to succed in subduing the South, there would be but one party there. Success will give any party power among that fanatical people, as failure will doom any party to ruin. Nothing induces them to cling with such deathless grasp to the defunct Union, but the rich prize which has forever escaped from their mercenary grasp. Between us and them there is a great gulf fixed which can never be bridged, either by coercion or "amended constitutions." Appeals to the memories of a once "glorious Union" is a senseless twaddle. The graves of a hundred thousand Confederate soldiers, the purest and best men that ever lived in any country, lie between us and that golden period, in which patriotism had some meaning in the Northern States. We shall never desecrate their memories by harboring a single lingering look after "the flesh pots of Egypt."—We have now a separate history, written in the blood of more than a hundred battle fields, consecrated in the tears of hundreds of thousands of wives, mothers, fathers and sisters, and enshrined in the memories of eight millions of people—a history, than which a more brilliant one has never been written. It is our history, and never can be shared by those whose fiendish designs have covered them with eternal infamy. God, we believe, has judged between us, and we await in calm and serene confidence the final award.—S. W. Baptist.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS IN NASHVILLE.—The proceedings of the last meeting of the City Council at Nashville, which we find in the Nashville Dispatch, of the 13th, are amusing. Among the resolutions offered, were the following by Alderman Myers:

WHEREAS, In view of the appreciation and admiration of the valuable services rendered this community by the commendable zeal and untiring energy displayed by the noble and patriotic Colonel Wm. B. Stokes and his command, the First Regiment Middle Tennessee Cavalry, in their efforts to protect and defend the citizens of this town and vicinity, from the bands of lawless guerillas hovering in our midst and preying upon the lives and property of our loyal citizens, and for their commendable devotion to the Constitution and the Union; and whereas, we believe it to be the duty of all good citizens to reciprocate and encourage the self-sacrificing devotion to the cause of liberty and justice as displayed by our brave and noble soldiers in the field, therefore—

Be it Resolved, 1st. That the City Council of Nashville do hereby appropriate the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars for the purchase of a stand of colors to be presented to the gallant Colonel Wm. B. Stokes and the braves under his command; the same to be presented on behalf of the City Council, by his Honor the Mayor, for the distinguished services rendered by this patriotic corps in its defence of our citizens, and manly exertions in behalf of our common country.

2d. That a committee, consisting of three members of the Common Council and two members of the Board of Aldermen, be, and are hereby appointed to draft the necessary amendments, and present the same to the City Council for approval, in order that the amount herein specified shall be appropriated according to established rules, and as the law directs; said committee to have full power to make all necessary arrangements to carry these resolutions into effect.

The question being put, the above was adopted by the following vote:

Ayes—Turner, Southgate, Myers, McDaniel, Huff, Sayers, Yarbrough, Stewart, Cready, Baily, and Sanborn—11.

Nays—Roberts, Driver, and President Anderson—3.

The following were offered by Mr. William Driver:

Resolved by the City Council, That inasmuch as the misery, poverty, and want, experienced in every part of the city, have been brought upon us by wealthy secessionists and traitors, who caused this war for their own benefit, regardless of the warning of all good peace-loving Union men, therefore be it

Resolved, That a committe be appointed to draw up a list of names of the most prominent and influential, of these would-be oppressors (not forgetting the committee of vigilants,) and hand the same to Andrew Johnson, Governor, with a request that he levy a suitable tax on each of them, making a sum of thirty-five thousand dollars, or more if necessary, to be used for the benefit of the poor of our city, and the numberless refugees who have come here for protection.

Resolved, That the time has come for all peace-loving Union men, here and elsewhere, to come out boldly and show their hands—that they have been crowded and treated with indignities long enough, and that it is our duty to assert our rights, and do all in our power to roll treason and traitors back to the den from which they emanated (South Carolina,) and there bury them in eternal oblivion, the scorn of all men.

William, it seems, is determined to "put the screws" to every man who is worth more money than himself. Henceforth we shall dub him "old Screw-Driver."

MATRIMONIAL. — Married on Thursday, the 11th of December, 1862, by the Rev. J. H. Martin, Capt. John G. Meem, of Lynchburg, (member of Lt. Gen. E. Kirby Smith's staff,) and Miss Nannie, daughter of James H. Cowan, Esq., of Knoxville.

THE DAILY REBEL.

Office on Market Street, over the Bank of Tennessee.

CHATTANOOGA:

SATURDAY MORNING, DEC. 20, 1862.

THE SITUATION.

The wires from one end of the land to the other have been busy with the news of clashing arms at various points of the Confederacy within the past two days. The enemy is in motion everywhere. The great programme that has been in prepartion for so long, for the crushing of the rebellion—the immense energies of the North, the great expenditure of money, the vast resources brought to bear against the South, would seem to have begun. Thus far success has crowned our arms, but great battles are still impending.

From the army of Middle Tennessee we have nothing additional. Everything continues quiet in that direction.

Parties from Murfreesboro last night, however, report that our lines are being advanced towards Nashville, and that our advance guard is within six miles of that city.

From Virginia we get farther details of the recent battles of the Rappahannock, which will be found elsewhere in the REBEL of to-day.

In these battles Archer's brigade suffered severely. It is the old brigade of the lamented Gen. Bob. Hatton, of this State, and at one time commanded by our fellow-citizen, Gen. Sam R. Anderson of Nashville. There were in it, also, three noble veteran Tennessee Regiments: Turney's 1st Tenn., Hatton's 7th and Forbes' 14th. The brigade was in the Division of Gen. Hood, of Texas, who we believe fell mortally wounded in the action.

From Charleston we learn that there are indications that Gen. Beauregard is expecting an early attack by land and water. We are as well prepared for the enemy at that point as we shall be for months to come.

From the North Carolina coast we have nothing additional save that there was another battle at Goldsborough on the 16th, in which the enemy was repulsed with heavy loss.

Our latest advices from Vicksburg are that the enemy's gunboats are again making demonstrations in that latitude. On Friday last a Federal ram was destroyed by torpedoes in the Yazoo, and on the 8th inst. a Yankee transport, with $75,000 was captured by our cavalry at Carson's Landing on the Mississippi.

A friend just arrived here from North Mississippi, informs us that he left Pemberton's army at Grenada, on last Friday. Price was six miles west—and Tilghman with his division six miles east of that city. VanDorn's Headquarters were in Grenada. He also informs us that we have no troops along the Mobile and Ohio Railroad near Okolona, except a few detachments of cavalry.

A word or two this morning in behalf of Middle Tennessee and the nobly patriotic citizens who compose the population of that section of our State. Not that Middle Tennesseans require any eulogium from this pen; not that their patriotism and devotion to the cause of the South is questioned; not because it is not universally admitted that she has made heavier sacrifices and furnished more men for the Confederacy's armies, in proportion to her population, than any other State in the Confederacy—but because her contributions of men and money, and the sacrifices she has made, in furtherance of the cause of Southern Independence, has been too little spoken of during this war, and too little appreciated by the inhabitants of other sections of the country. For eight months previous to the advance of Bragg's army into Kentucky, Middle Tennessee, as is well known, was over-run by the enemy, and her people were tyrannized over by the vandals of Yankeedom. During that period, shut out from kith and kin, and deprived of their own private property and without the opportunity enjoyed by many other sections of the Confederacy—to amass fortunes by speculation—they of course were heavy sufferers by the withdrawal of our army from the borders of the State. But the very moment they were relieved from the yoke of oppression, they immediately came forward to the help of the Confederacy.

When the fact became known that General Bragg's forces were about to be withdrawn from Kentucky, the agents of our Government, as soon as the retrograde movement commenced, were sent into Middle Tennessee, to remove in the quickest possible time, the subsistance from that section, that being the only quarter from which supplies could be looked for at that time. The agents believing it to be to the interest of the Government—fixed a regular tariff of prices for all articles of subsistance—which we believed at the time and believe now, is the true policy for the payment of uniform and liberal prices. The prices fixed by our Government agents were as follows: Hogs 8c.; Beef 3 1-2c; Bacon 20c; Flower $11,00 per bbl; Wheat $1 40; and at these prices the good people of Middle Tennessee freely willingly and gladly gave up their supplies.—They would not sell to the speculators. All they desired to know, was whether the supplies were needed by the Government, and if satisfied of that, faut freely contributed those supplies.

In the short space of four weeks, and before Gen. Bragg's army had even reached Kentucky on his march over the mountains of Tennessee, the agents had collected from eighty to one-hundred thousand hogs; seven to ten thousand beeves; two million five hundred thousand pounds of bacon; sixty thousand bushels of wheat and eight to ten thousand barrels of flour. Indeed, the country was so far depleted, that General Bragg has recently found it difficult to subsist the army along the Cumberland, and not long since, the following order to the chief Commissary was issued from Headquarters:—

"The system adopted and industry and energy used by you, has so far depleted the country of subsistence, that I find it impracticable to subsist my army; therefore must request you to turn over to the chief of subsistence, enough to subsist the armies in the field."

We are thus particular in the mention of these facts to show with what freedom the people gave up their supplies to the Government in the hour of need, proving conclusively that Middle Tennessee was willing, not only to furnish the flower of her population to fight the battles of the South, but to the best of her ability, to feed and clothe the armies of the Confederacy.

When the hogs and beeves so freely given up by the farmers of Middle Tennessee, were removed from the State to regions further South, many of them actually starved for the want of corn, from the simple reason that the people of those sections refused to sell their corn except for extortionate rates—and in many instances refused to name any price, learning that hogs and beeves were coming South from Tennessee and believing that the Government would be compelled to have corn, and that they could sell their stocks on hand at any price that might be demanded. The Agents were unable to get corn South of this point, at the enormous rate of $1 75 per bushel, and were compelled to resort to impressment. What a contrast to the action of the people of Middle Tennessee, who have experienced all the privations of a subjugated community and these speculators and consorts of other sections who have scarcely even felt the effects of the war.

In Middle Tennessee, pork was purchased for the Government at 8c; Beef at 3½c; Corn at 65; Wheat at $1.40; Flour at $11,00 and Bacon at 20c.

At points further South, Pork was purchased at 20; Beef at 6½ to 7c; Corn at $1,25; Wheat at $3,00 to $8,00; Flour at $35,00 and Bacon at 40.

We would not by the publication of these facts, cast imputation upon any of our fellow-citizens of the South, or attempt to lay the blame at the door of any other Southern State, but simply that justice may be done the people of our own section, we are impelled to this course. And in conclusion we would remark that we have had repeated assurances from the highest authority, and from the best informed persons, that the result of the campaign of the Commissary Agents of the Government in Middle Tennessee, was the production of more supplies to the armies, than Bragg's entire expedition into the heart of Kentucky.

☞ The reader will doubtless be provoked into a smile at the compression of two of our columns this morning—but must attribute the diminution to the pressure of the times, and the scarcity of paper large enough to hold all the Rebel has to say. It is an evidence of our military skill, however, to be able to reduce our columns when too closely chased.

SOUTHERN ILLUSTRATED NEWS.—The enterprising Publishers of this sterling literary Weekly, are determined to keep pace with the times, in the continual improvements on their paper. The News comes to us to-day illustrated with a handsome wood-cut representation of Gen. John Hamilton Morgan and his Staff. It is decidedly the most finished illustration which has yet appeared in its pages, and reflects credit upon the artist. Another engraving, intended to represent Gen. Jeff. Thompson, is not as good, and still another illustration "the apparition," to a story entitled "Horror House," which would have been far better left out altogether. The reading matter, editorial and otherwise, will be found entertaining and instructive and the general "make up" of this number of the News quite equal, if not superior to the preceding numbers.

Mr. Benj. B. Crew, at the Counting Room of the REBEL office is sole agent for the News in Tennessee, and North Alabama.

☞ A constant stream of applications for exemption from the operations of the Conscript Act pours in upon the War Department. The following letter says the Knoxville Register from Judge Campbell, Ass't Secretary of War, may save some trouble:

CONFEDERATE STATES OF AMERICA,
War Department, Richmond, Va., 8th Dec., 1862.

SIR: Your letter of the 27th ult. has been received.

The case of James Reed will be submitted to the President. The instances of hardship and suffering which the requisition of so much of the military population for active service is very great. No rule has yet been established for the administration of the power conferred on the President to relieve, under considerations of justice, equity and necessity. * *

No relaxation of the rule has been made as to Physicians.

Very respectfully,
J. A. CAMPBELL.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Sept. 6th, 1862.

BY order of Commissioner General I have been instructed with entire control of collecting the hides of the beeves killed for the army, for tanning, and the purchase of Leather for manufacturing. Tanners having leather on hand and wishing to dispose of it will do well to address me with proper references. The army must be shod, and it is the duty of all patriotic farmers to assist in sending. All neither sold at unreasonable prices will be impressed.
