A Frien'

I love a frien'—I may lose too—
But sure I love to trusty.
He is no gi'en tae flee awa'
When the warld, roads are dusty.
Wha cares a bodle for the chiel
Wha's frien'ship bends like leather—
Give me the one wha's heart is steel
In any kind of weather.

Aye, plenty brings the cadger chiels,
As flies sic after honey;
We ken the bumbee haunts the bell's
When days are long and sunny.
S'ae leave me on sic cauld-dip frien's
Wi' a' their lavers dowrie—
They are na' worth as many pennies,
An' lose sae business frein'.

Give me the lad wha's heart is true—
May Providence aye speed him!
Wha sees when things to you look blue,
For that's the time ye need him.
He mend na' be a prince or lord—
I ne'er thought mickle o' them—
There's mair gud help in kindly word
Than a' the good in Gotham.

Give me the one wha's sulle o' cheer
Shows that he does na' doubt ye;
Wha ne'er will stand, an' gape an' hear
An ill-faured word about ye.
Nae, when sic folks refresh yer een,
Mak' sure that ane ye luther;
Sic frien's are few and far between,
An' sae hard to gather.

—William Lyle.

Miscellaneous.

According to Professor J. W. Powell the Indians were the "mound-builders."

An equivalent of $2500 has been offered for a safe substitute for gunpowder in coal mining.

The forests of the United States comprise 412 species of trees. Of these sixty are peculiar to Florida.

Asbestos as a lining for men's hats is a new idea. Being a non-conductor of heat the advantage is apparent.

A botanical phenomenon was witnessed on the shore of Todos Santos Bay, Lower California, where an apple-tree blossomed and bore large perfect fruit on its trunk, an inch from the ground.

The Columbus Medical Journal reports a case of death from poisoning with bromide of potassium. The victim was given doses of eighty grains each at intervals of four hours during four days.

The only land from which the total phase of the solar eclipse of September 8 can be seen is New Zealand. The totality lasts only two minutes and a half. An expedition will be sent from Melbourne to observe it.

It has been observed in Russia that extreme cold converts tin into a semi-crystalline mass containing large cavities. In one instance the pipes of a church organ were so altered by cold as to be no longer sonorous.

The musk beetle, according to an English observer, has the power of emitting or suppressing its odor at pleasure; but when dying the scent is continuous, and after death more powerful than at any time during life.

The attention of the French Academy of Sciences has been called to a new process of hardening plaster of Paris. The product is recommended for floors, being as durable as oak and costing only one-fourth as much.

Dr. Wedding and Dr. Frank have brought before the Agricultural Society of Berlin the question of the value of phosphorus in rural and domestic economy. They propose the actual trial of the manurial virtue of ammonia phosphates of magnesia on a large scale.

It appears from observations made in France that the development of vegetable life is retarded by an average of nearly four days for each additional 100 yards of altitude. The arrival of the chimney swallow is delayed about two days for each increase of 100 yards in height.

A curious physiological effect produced by the action of turning eggs during incubation has been noted by M. Dareste. From experiments made with artificial incubators he has found that eggs not turned two or three times a day all invariably perish. He explains the effect of this act on the embryo, and accounts for the action of the sitting bird on purely physiological grounds.

Malaria is not confined to low-lying districts. It climbs to high altitudes, following the course of the valleys. In Italy it rises to the height of 400 to 500 feet; in California, 1000 feet; along the Appalachian chain, 3000 feet; in the West Indies, 1400 to 1800 feet; in India, 2000 feet. On the Andes it is sometimes found at the height of 11,000 feet. Under ordinary circumstances a moderate altitude will be found comparatively free from malaria.

Experiments have been made by a committee of French experts, including M. Pasteur, in order to ascertain the best means of disinfecting chambers in which cases of contagious affections have been lodged. The committee reports that sulphurous acid gas is the best disinfectant; but recommends that instead of simply burning sulphur, as is done in barracks and such places, bi-sulphide of carbon should be burned in rooms, as it is less injurious to furniture or metals.

Defective hearing is growing more prevalent in the United States, so says Dr. Sexton. It produces in children first the appearance of stupidity and then the reality. They do not hear sounds distinctly, and, of course, they cannot imitate sounds accurately. Defects in the teeth are a great cause of this lamentable calamity in the young, and this is a fresh reason for avoiding the quack applications of so-called dentists and keeping to pure soap and water in cleansing the teeth.

Is it true that birds and insects disappear from localities about to be visited by a deadly epidemic? Testimony of Europeans seems to be strongly in favor of the hypothesis. One writer says: "I venture to suggest that the investigation and collection of trustworthy meteorological data during the prevalence of epidemics, and of collateral information bearing thereupon, have not yet received as much attention as it deserves from observers outside of the medical profession."

The last invention for the protection of theatre audiences is a "penetrable safety wall," which has just been patented by an engineer at Kottsbus, Germany. The plan is to make the interior walls in all parts of the theatre of papier mache, made after a certain method. Such a wall will have the appearance of massive stone; but by pressure upon certain parts, where the words are to be painted in luminous letters: "To be broken open in case of fire," access to the exterior corridors is to be obtained, whence escape to the outer air can be made.

The prize of 40,000 francs offered by the French Academy for some certain test of death, to prevent people from being buried alive, was given to a physician who announced that on holding the hand of the supposed dead person to a strong light, if living, a scarlet tinge is seen where the fingers touch, showing a continuous circulation of the blood—no scarlet being seen if dead. Dr. Max Bush announces that on contracting a muscle by electricity its temperature will rise and be shown by any small surface thermometer if the person is living; if it does not rise life is extinct.

A tadpole, the larva of the frog, has a tail and no legs, gills instead of lungs, a heart precisely like that of a fish, a horny beak for eating vegetable food and a spiral intestine to digest it. As it matures its hinder legs show themselves, then the front pair; the beak falls off; the tail and gills waste away; the lungs are created; the digestive apparatus is changed to suit an animal diet; the heart is altered to the reptilian type by the addition of another auricle; in fact, skin, muscle, nerves, bones and blood vessels vanish, being absorbed atom by atom, and a new set is substituted.

The purest lard oil is said to be that which is manufactured by submitting solid leaf lard to great pressure during the period of winter. Oil of this quantity is use for burning in small mechanical lamps; it gives a bright flame and does not incrust the wick. A lighthouse lamp, however, being of a much larger size and evolving a much greater amount of heat, can consume oil of a coarser character; and it has been found that oil containing a certain amount of solid matter, providing the latter is not too much in quantity to be consumed by the lamp, gives a higher illuminating power.

The limit of temperature at which men can work depends upon the length of their exposure, the amount of exertion they put forth, their condition and the nature of the atmosphere, particularly as to its degree of moisture. Men have been employed on railways at 104 deg.—under very favorable conditions—at 125 deg., and are said to work occasionally in stoke-holes of tropical steamers at 156 deg. Professor Du Bois Raymond has estimated that a temperature of 122 deg. can be endured when the air is as dry as possible, but that even 104 deg. is likely to be fatal in an atmosphere saturated with moisture. It is considered certain that men cannot become accustomed to stand, for any considerable time, a higher temperature than from 140 deg. to 165 deg., even when they keep perfectly still and are in quite pure air.
