WHARF AND WAVE.

Purser Bendall, of the Monowai, reported a fair weather voyage.

The bark Albert, Captain Griffith, left San Francisco on October 9th.

The bark Edward May will leave Boston on December 15, if sufficient inducement offers.

The man-of-war Mohican, on her last trip from Unalaska, struck heavy weather, and lost two blades of her propeller. She reached San Francisco on October 19th.

The bark Sumatra was sold at auction recently in the Merchants' Exchange at San Francisco. She was purchased by William Watson for $2170. She will be taken to Hilo, stripped and turned into a coal hulk.

PORT TOWNSEND (Wash.) Oct 7.—Captain Charles A. Sawyer died last night. He had command of the bark Orpheus twenty years ago when she collided and sunk the steamer Pacific off Cape Flattery, entailing a loss of 300 lives and upwards of $1,000,000 in gold dust.

Information has reached San Francisco that the recent gale along the coast has resulted in the destruction of two schooners. The Electra went ashore at Cambria and is high and dry on the rocks. Her bottom is out. Her crew got off safely. At Stewart's Point the schooner Potria is on the rocks and breaking up fast. The crew got off safely.

Captain William B. Cobb, one of the pioneer sea captains of the port of San Francisco, died recently in San Francisco. The deceased for many years was employed by the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, and at various times had command of the steamers Great Republic, City of New York and City of Rio Janeiro. Captain Cobb was born in Massachusetts sixty-eight years ago, and reached San Francisco as first officer of the old sidewheel steamer China.

THE SCHOONER RAN AWAY.

A Vessel With All Sails Set and Not a Soul on Board.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 12.—With all sails set and with a full cargo, but with not a soul on board, a schooner ran away to sea during the severe storm, which has been raging along the coast for the past two days, eluded pursuit by another vessel all day, and disappeared in the gloom at nightfall, still plowing an independent course, under full headway, without any guiding hand at the tiller or any human agency to control her movements.

Somewhere out on the Atlantic the truant vessel is probably sailing on merrily yet, with all her canvas spread, a rich prize for the lucky skipper who may overhaul her, and the promising subject for the fanciful pen of some future Clark Russell. The runaway is the schooner Lord Elden, whose commanding officer, before she took to navigating on her own account, was Captain Harley. He started from here for Guysborough on the vessel with a full crew. When the Lord Elden was off Canso Tuesday a strong gale was blowing and a nasty sea was surging. The Canso neighborhood is a dangerous one for sailing craft under even most favorable conditions, hidden rocks abounding. On one of these the Elden was driven. The weather was thickening every minute and the vessel hard and fast upon the rock, as it seemed. Captain Harley deemed it prudent to seek a place of greater safety for himself and crew, and they put off hurriedly, leaving the Elden with all sails set. Not long after their departure the wind shited, and, under the freshening breeze, the vessel was twisted off her resting place. She evidently had not, as her captain had feared, received serious damage below the water-line. She at once turned her back eastward and began to slash along at a racing gait.

The schooner Diamond gave chase. Mile after mile the race was kept up, with the crewless Elden always in the lead. Once the Diamond drew near enough for her men to have boarded the runaway, but the sea was so high that the Diamond's bow was smashed in getting it over the side. Still the chase was continued in the hope that the sea would subside and enable the Diamond to come alongside. This hope was not realized, and darkness came on and the Elden disappeared. When last seen, she was headed out in the Atlantic.
